LEWIS DENIES BLAME FOR STRIKE

Senate Passes $463,000,000 China Aid Bill

House Approves Funds For Spain

WASHINGTON, March 30—(AP)—The senate voted $463,000,000 for China Aid today and the House, in a series of rapid-fire actions, worked closer to a vote on a massive "package" carrying $6,205,000,000 to assist foreign nations.

Leaders hope to reach a House decision on the latter measure tomorrow. Meantime the chamber voted:

1. To enable officials in charge of the aid program to clamp down on American exports of war supplies to Russia and her satellites. and,

2. To give Franco Spain a slice of the $6,205,000,000.

And Senator Vandenberg, (R-Mich) indicated there will be little difficulty in reconciling differences between House and Senate relief bills. He told reporters he would not oppose the House plan of wrapping all foreign relief bills into a single "package" although some of the House provisions might have to be compromised.

Vandenberg, apparently encouraged by today's swift developments, predicted final passage this weekend of the Foreign Relief Program, designed to spur the recovery of nations abroad and bolster them against Communism.

Passes on Voice Vote

The Senate passed the China aid Bill on a voice vote after Vandenberg declared conditions in China were "touch and go."

Senator Kem (R-Mo) launched a bitter floor attack on the China Bill and other foreign aid programs, saying the United States was following a lone wolf "piece meal" policy that will lead to war.

"Soon," he said, "American soldiers will be called upon to follow the American dollar."

Senator Pepper (D-Fla) said the China aid program "is good as far as it goes" but that it is just "a bare beginning."

Passage of the China Aid rounds out the Senate's action on its big three relief bills. It already has passed a $5,300,000,000 European Relief Plan and $275,000,000 military aid for Greece and Turkey.

The next move is up to the House, which is debating the "single package" $1,205,000,000 Foreign Aid Bill which includes all major items in one measure.

Differences between the Senate and House versions will be ironed but by a House-Senate Conference Committee after the House finishes action in its bill later this week.

The House was moving swiftly.

By voice vote it amended its "package" foreign aid bill to give teeth to controls over exports of war supplies.

An amendment by Rep. Mundt (R-S.D.) would grant the foreign aid administration power to veto any shipment of articles of military value to the Soviets and her neighbors.

The House also approved a plan aimed at preventing Russia from getting, through Western European countries participating in the Marshall Plan Program, any war supplies made from American materials.

Many Congress members have said it is foolish to combat Communism with one hand and feed Russia with the other.

The House voted 149 to 52 to invite Spain to share with 16 other Western European nations in the multi-billion dollar Marshall Plan fund if she agrees to terms laid down in the plan.

The House apparently was so heavily in favor of the Spanish

Gromyko Rejects Special Assembly

LAKE SUCCESS, March 30 (AP)—Russia declared today the United States wants to kill the Palestine Partition project to save American oil and military interests in the Middle East.

Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, the Soviet delegate, rejected a United States proposal for a special assembly of the 57 United Nations to consider the future of Palestine.

The Russian said there are no grounds for this session. Gromyko's stand forecast a Soviet veto which would force the U. S. to demand a poll of the whole membership on the question of calling a special session. Only a simple majority of the members—or 29 votes—would be needed to convene the assembly.

Slaps Proposal Down

Finally, Gromyko slapped down the U. S. proposal for a U.N. trusteeship for Palestine. He said the trusteeship idea was "an attempt to convert Palestine into a military-strategic base of the United States and England under the pretext of maintaining order in that country."

Gromyko did not mention the new U. S. plea for a truce between Jews and Arabs, which Warren R. Austin, chief U. S. delegate, formally put before the U.N. Security Council today.

Calling Palestine a pawn in a political gamble, Gromyko tore apart the last shreds of the rare U. S.-Soviet co-operative effort which had been responsible for putting the Partition plan through the U.N. Assembly last Nov. 29.

It was Russia's first declaration on Palestine in the council since Austin asked the U.N. to shelve the partition plan and consider a temporary U.N. trusteeship.

Gromyko said full responsibility for "the killing of the decision on the partition of Palestine rests on the United States which, according to general opinion, takes care not of the just settlement of the question of the future of Palestine and the relations between Arabs and Jews but of their own oil interests and military-strategic positions in the Middle East."

He told the council that the U. S. delegates to the 1947 U.N. Assembly used all their influence to attain the adoption of the partition plan. He said "reversal" of the American position now has provoked "more than an amazement in all the countries of the world."

Would Delay U. N.

Gromyko said a special assembly would mean "throwing the United Nations backwards, at least, for a year in regard to the Palestine question, while our task is not that of moving backwards but to make progress and to implement the decision already adopted."

In presenting the U. S. resolutions calling for a truce and for the special session, Austin said it is absolutely essential that violence and bloodshed in Palestine must stop.

Austin said he was not mentioning trusteeship now so that the assembly call would not be delayed by debate over trusteeship details.

But Austin served notice the U. S. is standing by the trusteeship proposal. He said this trusteeship would be without prejudice to the final political settlement in Palestine.

"We believe," he said, "that a trusteeship is essential to establish order, without which a peaceful solution of this problem cannot be found or put into effect."

Testimony Is Presented On Court Order

Insists Miners Decided Action

WASHINGTON, March 3—(AP)—Forced by a federal judge to appear before a board investigating the coal strike, John L. Lewis today entered a blanket denial that he caused the nation-wide walkout.

The strike started March 15, three days after Lewis told his United Mine Workers in a letter that the operators had "dishonored" their contract by failing to arrange pension payments.

The UMW president was compelled by the Federal District Court to answer questions before a Presidential Board investigating the strike.

The board may report its findings to President Truman tomorrow. When it does, Mr. Truman can direct the Attorney General to seek a federal court injunction to stop the strike. The board is acting under the Taft-Hartley Labor Law.

Forced Before Board

Lewis was forced before the board after he had ignored its own subpoena yesterday. Promptly the three members turned to the Federal Court, and in 10 minutes this morning, an order was issued directing Lewis to appear at 2 p. m.

So "under compulsion," as he put it, the miners' chief gave his side of the pension dispute.

"I might say I am here today under the compulsion of a decision of the United States Court. I have no particular statement to make other than responding to interrogation."

He confirmed that he wants every man who reaches 60 with 20 years' mining experience to have $100 a month pension out of a fund raised through a 10-cents a ton royalty on coal. If the fund would not support $100 payments "they certainly would have to be reduced," he said.

Did he mean the pensions should go to those retired in the past and those whose companies don't pay into the welfare fund?

"Certainly sir, because it was in behalf of those men that a pension was negotiated."

Thomas E. Murray neutral trustee, said the Lewis plan is "actuarily unsound" (meaning the fund couldn't stand it).

Lewis told the board it didn't have to be "actuarily sound."

"It's a pay-as-you-go plan," he said. "The trustees, of necessity, cannot pay out any more money than the revenues going into the fund will permit."

Chairman Minton asked Lewis whether he tried to settle the pension dispute by collective bargaining with the operators.

Lewis: "Oh, yes. On February 2, I sent a notice that a dispute existed. No attention was paid to it.

Minton: "You didn't offer to negotiate in that letter, did you?"

Lewis: "Certainly. It was implied all through that letter."

Minton then read from the February 2 letter Lewis' statement that the union 'reserves the right at will to take any independent action.' Minton asked: "Is that in you estimation an effort on your part to open negotiations? It contains an implication of independent action."

Lewis Defends Action

Lewis: "That's something that

Building, Loan League Indicted For Lobbying

1946 Act To Get First Legal Test

WASHINGTON, March 30—(AP)—The first legal test of the 1946 Lobbying Act took shape today when a federal grand jury slapped an indictment on the United States Savings and Loan League for not registering with Congress as lobbyists.

The Justice Department indicated this was merely the first of many such actions against various organizations.

Attorney General Clark, who announced today's indictment, contends that groups such as the Savings and Loan League are not only required to register as organizations, but must file regular statements of receipts and expenditures for all activities connected with lobbying, or attempting to influence the course of legislation.

Officers Are Registered

Three officials of the Savings and Loan League are registered with Congress as lobbying representatives. They are Martin Bodfish, Chicago, chairman of the executive committee; Horace Russell, Chicago, general counsel; and Abner H. Ferguson, Washington attorney for the league.

But the Justice Department says this alone does not fully comply with the lobbying act.

The United States Savings and Loan League has its principal offices in Chicago, and a branch office here.

A statement issued from its Chicago office late today said that at no time in its 56-year history had the organization "engaged in any activities that could conceivably be construed as unlawful or not in keeping with the dignity and respect of typical trade accociation work."

Has 3,600 Membership

The league is listed as a nonprofit trade organization and has a membership of about 3,600 saving and loan and building and loan associations over the nation.

The Justice Department said the league's members "have total assets of about $9,000,000,000."

The league has been active in legislation relating to housing, the consolidation of housing or home finance agencies of the government, real estate mortgage-lending business and postal savings systems.

Declares Victory Is Not Possible

WASHINGTON, March 30—(AP)—Henry A. Wallace accused the Truman Administration today of trying to railroad this country into a war which it could not win.

The third party presidential candidate charged that "preparations and plans for compulsory military training and the draft do not differ" from those of the leaders of Nazi Germany.

Under sometimes caustic questioning in a three-hour session with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Wallace said:

Sees No Threat

He declared: "Russia has not taken over Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary, Czechoslovakia or Poland. The countries she has taken over are Latvia, Esthonia and Lithuania."

And he described the Truman doctrine as a "program of unlimited aggression."

Sharply, Wallace said:

"I charge that an artificial crisis was deliberately manufactured to stampede Congress and the people into accepting universal military training and conscription."

He lashed out at both the draft and UMT. He said they were part of "a political program to control the American people."

Wallace spoke less than 24 hours after President Truman suggested sarcastically that he go to the Soviet Union and help the Russians "against his own country."

He urged that the U. S. take the lead in outlawing the atom bomb and go "back again down the road of good neighborliness, charted by (Franklin D.) Roosevelt."

Even as Wallace spoke, the national defense pace was being stepped up.

Wallace said the military preparedness program would lead only to "a war in which there can be no victory."

Criticizes Program

He said the draft and other proposals of the President and Secretary of Defense Forrestal are really "a political program to control the American people."

They are designed, the one-time vice president said, to swell the profits of "huge corporations"

Feud Is Blamed In Ky. Slaying

HYDEN, Ky., March 30 (AP)—A mountain feud was blamed here today for the street slaying last night of Theo J. Brock, 39, former tavern operator.

Leslie County Judge Elmer Begley said he issued murder warrants for Bill Caldwell and his three sons, Ray, Levi and Boyd Caldwell. The warrants were given to Sheriff Wiley Joseph this afternoon.

The sheriff was unable to find the Caldwells immediately, however to serve the warrants. The father is a Leslie County patrolman.

Brock was cut down by a stream of missles from a shotgun, rifle and two pistols as he walked along the street here with his wife and another couple, the sheriff said. Mrs. Brock suffered a slight scalp wound but the other couple escaped unharmed.

Allied Lifeline Is Threatened

BERLIN, March 30 (AP)—The Russians threatened today to restrict the supply lifelines of the British, French and Americans in Berlin.

The lines pass through the Soviet Occupied Zone and are the only ground communication routes of the Western Powers in Berlin.

Lt. Gen. G. S. Lukyanchenko, Soviet Chief of Staff, made the threat, the latest Soviet act in a series apparently designed to disrupt Four-Power rule of Germany.

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, the American Military Governor, refused to comment on the Russian General's statement. British and French officials also would not comment, but high American officials not quotable by name indicated that interference with Allied supply lines could lead to serious consequences.

Gen. Lukyanchenko's statement appeared in the form of an interview in the Soviet-licensed newspaper Voerwarts. It came as the regular day for the meeting of the Allied Control Council passed without any move from the Russians to call the Four-Power Military Governors into session. The Russians have been boycotting the council meetings since they walked out 10 days ago.

The threat brought the war of nerves being conducted by the Russians and German Communists to a higher pitch. Communist newspapers have been charging under screaming headlines that spies, criminals, hungry Germans and looters have been crossing the border into the Soviet Occupation Zone by the hundreds.

U. S. Army officials in Frankfurt said they had no comment on the latest Russian story—an account in the Communist Newspaper Pravda in Moscow saying a German spy ring financed by American Military Intelligence and German industrialists was working in the Soviet Zone.

The story quoted a Berlin correspondent of Pravda as saying the group was headed into Germany by a man named Gerhard Pinkert, a former colonel in the German Army. The story said former German spies left throughout eastern Europe during the war were being reorganized.

ROME, March 30 (AP)—Air-borne troops were rushed today to Pantelleria, the war-time fortress isle off the African Coast, to quell a riot of 2,000 taxpayers.

Russia Protests Detention Of Ocean Liner In N.Y.

Two Damage Suits Filed Against Ship

LONDON, Wednesday, March 31 (AP)—The Soviet Government has protested to the United States over the detention of the Transatlantic Liner Rossia in New York, the Moscow Radio said today.

The broadcast said that "on March 18 United States authorities put an embargo on the departure of the 16,595-ton ship which formerly served Germany's Hamburg American Line under the name of Patria.

"According to available information," the broadcast said, "American authorities attempted to justify their unlawful action on grounds of a court claim by two passengers who had allegedly received injuries on the ship 'Rossia' when it was buffetted by heavy seas."

Damage Suits Filed

(Last week two damage suits totaling $75,000 were filed in Brooklyn Federal Court against the Rossia in behalf of two passengers who claimed they were injured aboard it and that it was "unseaworthy" and "undermanned."

(John Lorina, Quincy, Mass., asked $50,000 for injuries he allegedly received last October while the Rossia was docked at Marseille, France. Mrs. Race Suhl, Brooklyn, claimed $25,000 for injuries suffered Jan. 6 in an east-west passage. She named the Rossia and Amtorg, the Russian purchasing agency, as co-defendants.

(Court spokesmen said the Rossia would not be allowed to leave New York until $75,000 is posted to cover both suits.

(The Moore-McCormack Lines, owners of the pier at which the Rossia usually moors in New York, said the ship now is at the Todd Shipyards in Brooklyn for repairs. The line said the Rossia was scheduled to sail April 15 from Manhattan.

(Meanwhile, veterans groups in New York drafted plans to ask organized labor to stop loading the Rossia and other Soviet ships with machinery, industrial equipment and other goods now stockpiled in Jersey City, N. J.)

Protests Detention

The Moscow Radio broadcast said the Soviet Embassy in Washington, acting on its government's instructions, had "drawn the attention of the U. S. State Department to the inadmissability of detaining a vessel belonging to a foreign state x x x."

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP) — The State Department has received a formal Soviet protest against detention of the Russian ship Rossia in New York but officials said tonight the vessel was not held up by department order.

They said the department is "looking into" the Russian complaint, but they presumed the detention was under Maritime Law.

These officials said they were informed the French Liner Ile De France recently was detained for a time because of damage suits in much the same manner as the Rossia.

Nation Gets New Rent Law 'Better Than None At All'

Controls Extended Until March, 1949

WASHINGTON, March 30—(AP)—The nation got a new Rent Control Law today, one day before the old act was due to expire.

In signing the legislation—reluctantly—President Truman said it wasn't the strengthened measure he had asked of Congress, but is "better than no rent control at all."

"If I had not signed it," he said in a statement, "rent controls would have expired tomorrow at midnight. As was true of the rent control bill of June, 1947, I had no choice but to sign."

The bill extends controls for one year, to March 31, 1949, and gives an emergency federal court the final say over the raising or removing of rent ceilings in any area. The recommendations of local rent boards would bear great weight, however, and the court would have to uphold them if it found they were based on "adequate and substantial evidence."

Mr. Truman promised that the administration "will do everything it can under this act to hold rents to reasonable levels." But he also said "we cannot hope to be wholly successful in holding the lines on rents by the powers granted by this law."

He added:

"Since the Rent Control law was weakened last June, rents have risen more than six per cent over a period of eight months. With continuing inflationary pressures and the extreme shortage of housing, the need for effective rent control continues to be as great as ever."

The new law sanctions rent increases of up to 15 per cent when tenant and landlord can agree on a lease running through 1949. Such increases would not be permitted, however, in cases where a tenant had agreed to a similar increase last year under the old law. The new law "freezes" the rents of such tenants, who signed leases running through this year, until March 31, 1949.

The act also provides that:

All hotel accommodations go ceiling-free. So do non-housekeeping rooms in homes where there are not more than two paying guests.

Tenants may be evicted on 60-day notice if the landlord wants the dwelling for the personal use of a member of his family, or plans to demolish or alter it substantially, or decides to take the quarters off the rental market.

Controls are removed from dwellings covered by leases which were ended in the first three months of this year.

Sixty-day eviction notices are required generally. There are exceptions if the tenant does not pay his rent or becomes a nuisance. In such cases local laws govern eviction.

Election Probe Reported Delayed

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP) — A Special Investigating Committee today put off for a week its report on the contested election of Sen. Herbert R. O'Conor, Maryland Democrat and former Governor.

D. John Markey, Walkersville Republican who ran 2,232 votes behind O'Conor in the 1946 general election, has charged the ballots were miscounted and there were irregularities in the voting.

A Senate Sub-Committee headed by Sen. Jenner (R-Ind.), held a closed meeting on the election contest today but did not make its final report as planned.

Cables Strike Ends

NEW YORK, March 30 (AP)—The nearly three months-old strike of CIO Western Union Cables Workers was settled today, the company announced. There was no immediate comment from the union.

BALTIMORE, March 30. (AP)—Frank G. Schenuit, pioneer flier and rubber manufacturer, died at his home today after an illness of several months. He was 53.

New Fund For A-Weapons, Road In Alaska Approved

WASHINGTON, March 30—(AP)—The House Appropriations Committee voted today to give the Atomic Energy Commission an extra $150,000,000 in contract authority and told the commission to "move forward with all possible speed" in its research programs.

The $150,000,000 authorization was contained in a $332,407,782 catch-all appropriation bill granting funds to supplement appropriations previously made for various agencies of the government.

The committee trimmed the bill $66,311,478 below the total asked by President Truman, cutting funds which had been sought for the Post-office Department, the Maritime Commission and for outfitting the Air Force with blue uniforms.

The measure also contained $7,370,000 in cash and $4,000,000 in contract authority to construct a militarily important road between Seward and Anchorage, Alaska, and $3,000,000 for the U. S. information and educational exchange program, which operates the "Voice of America" overseas broadcasts. Mr. Truman had recommended $5,120,000 for the latter item.

The Atomic Energy Commission got exactly what it asked for. The new contract authority raises the total the commission has to spend in the current fiscal year to $659,091,863.

Carroll L. Wilson, the commission's general manager, told the committeee that most of the new funds will be "directed toward insuring the continuity of production of fissionable materials, the fabrication of these into weapons, and the conduct of research and development."

He also told the committee, without elaboration, that the military interest in the commission's work "goes far beyond atomic bombs." And he said that atomic weapon production facilities, previously centered at Los Alamos, N. M., are being dispersed and duplicate source weapon parts and assemblies are being built.

The army asked $150,000,000 and got $143,000,000 for government and relief expenses in Germany, Japan and Korea. The Air Force's request for $26,670,000 to buy new uniforms was cut to $10,000,000. The committee said that ought to be enough to get the program going.

Mrs. Mickey Rooney Threatens Divorce

HOLLYWOOD, March 30 (AP)—Mrs. Mickey Rooney says she is going to file suit for divorce against her freckled young actor husband because two trial separations didn't "work out."

She announced today that she would file the suit within 30 days.

Mrs. Rooney, the former Betty Jane Rase, Birmingham, Ala., beauty said she has retained an attorney and "we are trying to work out details of the settlement."

Gas Companies Merge

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP) — Texas Gas Transmission Corporation won permission today to take over facilities of Memphis Natural Gas Company, Memphis, Tenn., and Kentucky Natural Gas Company, Owensboro, Ky.

ITU Is Instructed To Sign Year Pact

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP) — The AFL International Typographical Union tonight wrote instructions for its local unions to offer full-year contracts without discrimination against non-union job applicants.

Both union and government lawyers expressed the hope that the new document will clear up all current disputes between the ITU and employers—both in the newspaper and commercial printing industries.

The instructions will be mail to the 850 local unions from Indianapolis within a day or two.

Police, Pickets Clash Briefly Outside Wall Street Exchange

The spectacular scrapping opened the second day of a strike of AFL financial workers against the New York Stock and Curb Exchanges.

It was fought at the very doors of the stock exchange as striking financial workers and husky AFL seamen who swelled their picket lines tried to block the main entrance of the building when brokers arrived to begin business. The technique was to throw themselves on the ground across the entrance.

Police guards met them with clubs swinging.

Pickets who stretched themselves out on the sidewalk were hauled to their feet. Policemen were knocked down. Women screamed.

Clothing was torn. There were several minor injuries. Two men suffered fractured arms. A detective was sent to a hospital, his head bleeding.

Calls went in for riot squads and ambulances. Wall street was roped off. Private phones in nearby stores were allocated for police emergency use only.

Pan American Delegates Prepare To Discuss Communistic Effects

BOGOTA, Colombia, March 30—(INS)—Delegates to the ninth Pan American Conference decided at a closed meeting today to take up the problem of Communism and its effect on the peace and security of the Americas.

U. S. Secretary of State Marshall took the initiative in getting the question placed on the agenda when he raised the issue at a meeting of the Conference's Steering Committee.

The theme set by the United States was taken up later when President Mariano Ospina Perez, of Colombia, welcomed the delegates of the 21 Western Hemisphere nations at the formal opening session at 4 p. m. (EST) in the flag-bedecked salon Eliptico of the Capitolio, the Congress building.

He called on the delegates for "acts rather than words," and demanded that "the forces opposed to the principle of democracy" be "prevented from prevailing in the world."

Marshall made it clear that the United States feels the conference should do something about curbing Communist activities when he arose in the pre-opening steering Committee meeting.

LEWIS DENIES BLAME FOR STRIKE

Senate Passes $463,000,000 China Aid Bill

House Approves Funds For Spain

WASHINGTON, March 30—(AP)—The senate voted $463,000,000 for China Aid today and the House, in a series of rapid-fire actions, worked closer to a vote on a massive "package" carrying $6,205,000,000 to assist foreign nations.

Leaders hope to reach a House decision on the latter measure tomorrow. Meantime the chamber voted:

1. To enable officials in charge of the aid program to clamp down on American exports of war supplies to Russia and her satellites, and,

2. To give Franco Spain a slice of the $6,205,000,000.

And Senator Vandenberg, (R-Mich) indicated there will be little difficulty in reconciling differences between House and Senate relief bills. He told reporters he would not oppose the House plan of wrapping all foreign relief bills into a single "package" although some of the House provisions might have to be compromised.

Vandenberg, apparently encouraged by today's swift developments, predicted final passage this weekend of the Foreign Relief Program, designed to spur the recovery of nations abroad and bolster them against Communism.

Passes on Voice Vote

The Senate passed the China aid Bill on a voice vote after Vandenberg declared conditions in China were "touch and go."

Senator Kem (R-Mo) launched a bitter floor attack on the China Bill and other foreign aid programs, saying the United States was following a lone wolf "piece meal" policy that will lead to war.

"Soon," he said, "American soldiers will be called upon to follow the American dollar."

Senator Pepper (D-Fla) said the China aid program "is good as far as it goes" but that it is just "a bare beginning."

Passage of the China Aid rounds out the Senate's action on its big three relief bills. It already has passed a $5,300,000,000 European Relief Plan and $275,000,000 military aid for Greece and Turkey.

The next move is up to the House which is debating the "single package" $1,205,000,000 Foreign Aid Bill which includes all major items in one measure.

Differences between the Senate and House versions will be ironed but by a House-Senate Conference Committee after the House finishes action in its bill later this week.

The House was moving swiftly.

By voice vote it amended its "package" foreign aid bill to give teeth to controls over exports of war supplies.

An amendment by Rep. Mundt (R-S.D.) would grant the foreign aid administration power to veto any shipment of articles of military value to the Soviets and her neighbors.

The House also approved a plan aimed at preventing Russia from getting, through Western European countries participating in the Marshall Plan Program, any war supplies made from American materials.

Many Congress members have said it is foolish to combat Communism with one hand and feed Russia with the other.

The House voted 149 to 52 to invite Spain to share with 16 other Western European nations in the multi-billion dollar Marshall Plan fund if she agrees to terms laid down in the plan.

The House apparently was so heavily in favor of the Spanish

Gromyko Rejects Special Assembly

LAKE SUCCESS, March 30 (AP)—Russia declared today the United States wants to kill the Palestine Partition project to save American oil and military interests in the Middle East.

Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, the Soviet delegate, rejected a United States proposal for a special assembly of the 57 United Nations to consider the future of Palestine.

The Russian said there are no grounds for this session. Gromyko's stand forecast a Soviet veto which would force the U. S. to demand a poll of the whole membership on the question of calling a special session. Only a simple majority of the members—or 29 votes—would be needed to convene the assembly.

Slaps Proposal Down

Finally, Gromyko slapped down the U. S. proposal for a U.N. trusteeship for Palestine. He said the trusteeship idea was "an attempt to convert Palestine into a military-strategic base of the United States and England under the pretext of maintaining order in that country."

Gromyko did not mention the new U. S. plea for a truce between Jews and Arabs, which Warren R. Austin, chief U. S. delegate, formally put before the U.N. Security Council today.

Calling Palestine a pawn in a political gamble, Gromyko tore apart the last shreds of the rare U. S.-Soviet co-operative effort which had been responsible for putting the Partition plan through the U.N. Assembly last Nov. 29.

It was Russia's first declaration on Palestine in the council since Austin asked the U.N. to shelve the partition plan and consider a temporary U.N. trusteeship.

Gromyko said full responsibility for "the killing of the decision on the partition of Palestine rests on the United States which, according to general opinion, takes care not of the just settlement of the question of the future of Palestine and the relations between Arabs and Jews but of their own oil interests and military-strategic positions in the Middle East."

He told the council that the U. S. delegates to the 1947 U.N. Assembly used all their influence to attain the adoption of the partition plan. He said "reversal" of the American position now has provoked "more than an amazement in all the countries of the world."

Would Delay U. N.

Gromyko said a special assembly would mean "throwing the United Nations backwards, at least, for a year in regard to the Palestine question, while our task is not that of moving backwards but to make progress and to implement the decision already adopted."

In presenting the U. S. resolutions calling for a truce and for the special session, Austin said it is absolutely essential that violence and bloodshed in Palestine must stop.

Austin said he was not mentioning trusteeship now so that the assembly call would not be delayed by debate over trusteeship details.

But Austin served notice the U. S. is standing by the trusteeship proposal. He said this trusteeship would be without prejudice to the final political settlement in Palestine.

"We believe," he said, "that a trusteeship is essential to establish order, without which a peaceful solution of this problem cannot be found or put into effect."

Testimony Is Presented On Court Order

Insists Miners Decided Action

WASHINGTON, March 3—(AP)—Forced by a federal judge to appear before a board investigating the coal strike, John L. Lewis today entered a blanket denial that he caused the nation-wide walkout.

The strike started March 15, three days after Lewis told his United Mine Workers in a letter that the operators had "dishonored" their contract by failing to arrange pension payments.

The UMW president was compelled by the Federal District Court to answer questions before a Presidential Board investigating the strike.

The board may report its findings to President Truman tomorrow. When it does, Mr. Truman can direct the Attorney General to seek a federal court injunction to stop the strike. The board is acting under the Taft-Hartley Labor Law.

Forced Before Board

Lewis was forced before the board after he had ignored its own subpoena yesterday. Promptly the three members turned to the Federal Court, and in 10 minutes this morning, an order was issued directing Lewis to appear at 2 p. m.

So "under compulsion," as he put it, the miners' chief gave his side of the pension dispute.

"I might say I am here today under the compulsion of a decision of the United States Court. I have no particular statement to make other than responding to interrogation."

He confirmed that he wants every man who reaches 60 with 20 years' mining experience to have $100 a month pension out of a fund raised through a 10-cents a ton royalty on coal. If the fund would not support $100 payments "they certainly would have to be reduced," he said.

Did he mean the pensions should go to those retired in the past and those whose companies don't pay into the welfare fund?

"Certainly sir, because it was in behalf of those men that a pension was negotiated."

Thomas E. Murray neutral trustee, said the Lewis plan is "actuarily unsound" (meaning the fund couldn't stand it).

Lewis told the board it didn't have to be "actuarily sound."

"It's a pay-as-you-go plan," he said. "The trustees, of necessity, cannot pay out any more money than the revenues going into the fund will permit."

Chairman Minton asked Lewis whether he tried to settle the pension dispute by collective bargaining with the operators.

Lewis: "Oh, yes. On February 2, I sent a notice that a dispute existed. No attention was paid to it.

Minton: "You didn't offer to negotiate in that letter, did you?"

Lewis: "Certainly. It was implied all through that letter."

Minton then read from the February 2 letter Lewis' statement that the union 'reserves the right at will to take any independent action.' Minton asked: "Is that in you estimation an effort on your part to open negotiations? It contains an implication of independent action."

Lewis Defends Action

Lewis: "That's something that

Building, Loan League Indicted For Lobbying

1946 Act To Get First Legal Test

WASHINGTON, March 30—(AP)—The first legal test of the 1946 Lobbying Act took shape today when a federal grand jury slapped an indictment on the United States Savings and Loan League for not registering with Congress as lobbyists.

The Justice Department indicated this was merely the first of many such actions against various organizations.

Attorney General Clark, who announced today's indictment, contends that groups such as the Savings and Loan League are not only required to register as organizations, but must file regular statements of receipts and expenditures for all activities connected with lobbying, or attempting to influence the course of legislation.

Officers Are Registered

Three officials of the Savings and Loan League are registered with Congress as lobbying representatives. They are Martin Bodfish, Chicago, chairman of the executive committee; Horace Russell, Chicago, general counsel; and Abner H. Ferguson, Washington attorney for the league.

But the Justice Department says this alone does not fully comply with the lobbying act.

The United States Savings and Loan League has its principal offices in Chicago, and a branch office here.

A statement issued from its Chicago office late today said that at no time in its 56-year history had the organization "engaged in any activities that could conceivably be construed as unlawful or not in keeping with the dignity and respect of typical trade accociation work."

Has 3,600 Membership

The league is listed as a non-profit trade organization and has a membership of about 3,600 saving and loan and building and loan associations over the nation.

The Justice Department said the league's members "have total assets of about $9,000,000,000."

The league has been active in legislation relating to housing, the consolidation of housing or home finance agencies of the government, real estate mortgage-lending business and postal savings systems.

Declares Victory Is Not Possible

WASHINGTON, March 30—(AP)—Henry A. Wallace accused the Truman Administration today of trying to railroad this country into a war which it could not win.

The third party presidential candidate charged that "preparations and plans for compulsory military training and the draft do not differ" from those of the leaders of Nazi Germany.

Under sometimes caustic questioning in a three-hour session with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Wallace said:

Sees No Threat

"I see no threat to us from Russian Communism today."

He declared: "Russia has not taken over Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary, Czechoslovakia or Poland. The countries she has taken over are Latvia, Esthonia and Lithuania."

And he described the Truman doctrine as a "program of unlimited aggression."

Sharply, Wallace said:

"I charge that an artificial crisis was deliberately manufactured to stampede Congress and the people into accepting universal military training and conscription."

He lashed out at both the draft and UMT. He said they were part of "a political program to control the American people."

Wallace spoke less than 24 hours after President Truman suggested sarcastically that he go to the Soviet Union and help the Russians "against his own country."

He urged that the U. S. take the lead in outlawing the atom bomb and go "back again down the road of good neighborliness, charted by (Franklin D.) Roosevelt."

Even as Wallace spoke, the national defense pace was being stepped up.

Wallace said the military preparedness program would lead only to "a war in which there can be no victory."

Criticizes Program

He said the draft and other proposals of the President and Secretary of Defense Forrestal are really "a political program to control the American people."

They are designed, the one-time vice president said, to swell the profits of "huge corporations"

Feud Is Blamed In Ky. Slaying

HYDEN, Ky., March 30 (AP)—A mountain feud was blamed here today for the street slaying last night of Theo J. Brock, 39, former tavern operator.

Leslie County Judge Elmer Begley said he issued murder warrants for Bill Caldwell and his three sons, Ray, Levi and Boyd Caldwell. The warrants were given to Sheriff Wiley Joseph this afternoon.

The sheriff was unable to find the Caldwells immediately, however to serve the warrants. The father is a Leslie County patrolman.

Brock was cut down by a stream of missles from a shotgun, rifle and two pistols as he walked along the street here with his wife and another couple, the sheriff said. Mrs. Brock suffered a slight scalp wound but the other couple escaped unharmed.

Allied Lifeline Is Threatened

BERLIN, March 30 (AP)—The Russians threatened today to restrict the supply lifelines of the British, French and Americans in Berlin.

The lines pass through the Soviet Occupied Zone and are the only ground communication routes of the Western Powers in Berlin.

Lt. Gen. G. S. Lukyanchenko, Soviet Chief of Staff, made the threat, the latest Soviet act in a series apparently designed to disrupt Four-Power rule of Germany.

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, the American Military Governor, refused to comment on the Russian General's statement. British and French officials also would not comment, but high American officials not quotable by name indicated that interference with Allied supply lines could lead to serious consequences.

Gen. Lukyanchenko's statement appeared in the form of an interview in the Soviet-licensed newspaper Voerwarts. It came as the regular day for the meeting of the Allied Control Council passed without any move from the Russians to call the Four-Power Military Governors into session. The Russians have been boycotting the council meetings since they walked out 10 days ago.

The threat brought the war of nerves being conducted by the Russians and German Communists to a higher pitch. Communist newspapers have been charging under screaming headlines that spies, criminals, hungry Germans and looters have been crossing the border into the Soviet Occupation Zone by the hundreds.

U. S. Army officials in Frankfurt said they had no comment on the latest Russian story—an account in the Communist Newspaper Pravda in Moscow saying a German spy ring financed by American Military Intelligence and German industrialists was working in the Soviet Zone.

The story quoted a Berlin correspondent of Pravda as saying the group was headed into Germany by a man named Gerhard Pinkert, a former colonel in the German Army. The story said former German spies left throughout eastern Europe during the war were being reorganized.

Taxpayers Riot

ROME, March 30 (AP)—Air-borne troops were rushed today to Pantelleria, the war-time fortress isle off the African Coast, to quell a riot of 2,000 taxpayers.

Russia Protests Detention Of Ocean Liner In N.Y.

Two Damage Suits Filed Against Ship

LONDON, Wednesday, March 31 (AP)—The Soviet Government has protested to the United States over the detention of the Transatlantic Liner Rossia in New York, the Moscow Radio said today.

The broadcast said that "on March 18 United States authorities put an embargo on the departure of the 16,595-ton ship which formerly served Germany's Hamburg American Line under the name of Patria.

"According to available information," the broadcast said, "American authorities attempted to justify their unlawful action on grounds of a court claim by two passengers who had allegedly received injuries on the ship 'Rossia' when it was buffetted by heavy seas."

Damage Suits Filed

(Last week two damage suits totaling $75,000 were filed in Brooklyn Federal Court against the Rossia in behalf of two passengers who claimed they were injured aboard it and that it was "unseaworthy" and "undermanned."

(John Lorina, Quincy, Mass., asked $50,000 for injuries he allegedly received last October while the Rossia was docked at Marseille, France. Mrs. Race Suhl, Brooklyn, claimed $25,000 for injuries suffered Jan. 6 in an east-west passage. She named the Rossia and Amtorg, the Russian purchasing agency, as co-defendants.

(Court spokesmen said the Rossia would not be allowed to leave New York until $75,000 is posted to cover both suits.

(The Moore-McCormack Lines, owners of the pier at which the Rossia usually moors in New York, said the ship now is at the Todd Shipyards in Brooklyn for repairs. The line said the Rossia was scheduled to sail April 15 from Manhattan.

(Meanwhile, veterans groups in New York drafted plans to ask organized labor to stop loading the Rossia and other Soviet ships with machinery, industrial equipment and other goods now stockpiled in Jersey City, N. J.)

Protests Detention

The Moscow Radio broadcast said the Soviet Embassy in Washington, acting on its government's instructions, had "drawn the attention of the U. S. State Department to the inadmissability of detaining a vessel belonging to a foreign state x x x."

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP) — The State Department has received a formal Soviet protest against detention of the Russian ship Rossia in New York but officials said tonight the vessel was not held up by department order.

They said the department is "looking into" the Russian complaint, but they presumed the detention was under Maritime Law.

These officials said they were informed the French Liner Ile De France recently was detained for a time because of damage suits in much the same manner as the Rossia.

Nation Gets New Rent Law 'Better Than None At All'

Controls Extended Until March, 1949

WASHINGTON, March 30—(AP)—The nation got a new Rent Control Law today, one day before the old act was due to expire.

In signing the legislation—reluctantly—President Truman said it wasn't the strengthened measure he had asked of Congress, but is "better than no rent control at all."

"If I had not signed it," he said in a statement, "rent controls would have expired tomorrow at midnight. As was true of the rent control bill of June, 1947, I had no choice but to sign."

The bill extends controls for one year, to March 31, 1949, and gives an emergency federal court the final say over the raising or removing of rent ceilings in any area. The recommendations of local rent boards would bear great weight, however, and the court would have to uphold them if it found they were based on "adequate and substantial evidence."

Mr. Truman promised that the administration "will do everything it can under this act to hold rents to reasonable levels." But he also said "we cannot hope to be wholly successful in holding the lines on rents by the powers granted by this law."

He added:

"Since the Rent Control law was weakened last June, rents have risen more than six per cent over a period of eight months. With continuing inflationary pressures and the extreme shortage of housing, the need for effective rent control continues to be as great as ever."

The new law sanctions rent increases of up to 15 per cent when tenant and landlord can agree on a lease running through 1949. Such increases would not be permitted, however, in cases where a tenant had agreed to a similar increase last year under the old law. The new law "freezes" the rents of such tenants, who signed leases running through this year, until March 31, 1949.

The act also provides that:

All hotel accommodations go ceiling-free. So do non-housekeeping rooms in homes where there are not more than two paying guests.

Tenants may be evicted on 60-day notice if the landlord wants the dwelling for the personal use of a member of his family, or plans to demolish or alter it substantially, or decides to take the quarters off the rental market.

Controls are removed from dwellings covered by leases which were ended in the first three months of this year.

Sixty-day eviction notices are required generally. There are exceptions if the tenant does not pay his rent or becomes a nuisance. In such cases local laws govern eviction.

Pioneer Flyer Dies

BALTIMORE, March 30. (AP)—Frank G. Schenuit, pioneer flier and rubber manufacturer, died at his home today after an illness of several months. He was 53.

Election Probe Reported Delayed

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP) — A Special Investigating Committee today put off for a week its report on the contested election of Sen. Herbert R.O'Conor, Maryland Democrat and former Governor.

D. John Markey, Walkersville Republican who ran 2,232 votes behind O'Conor in the 1946 general election, has charged the ballots were miscounted and there were irregularities in the voting.

A Senate Sub-Committee headed by Sen. Jenner (R-Ind.), held a closed meeting on the election contest today but did not make its final report as planned.

Cables Strike Ends

NEW YORK, March 30 (AP)—The nearly three months-old strike of CIO Western Union Cables Workers was settled today, the company announced. There was no immediate comment from the union.

New Fund For A-Weapons, Road In Alaska Approved

WASHINGTON, March 30—(AP)—The House Appropriations Committee voted today to give the Atomic Energy Commission an extra $150,000,000 in contract authority and told the commission to "move forward with all possible speed" in its research programs.

The $150,000,000 authorization was contained in a $332,407,782 catch-all appropriation bill granting funds to supplement appropriations previously made for various agencies of the government.

The committee trimmed the bill $66,311,478 below the total asked by President Truman, cutting funds which had been sought for the Post-office Department, the Maritime Commission and for outfitting the Air Force with blue uniforms.

The measure also contained $7,370,000 in cash and $4,000,000 in contract authority to construct a militarily important road between Seward and Anchorage, Alaska, and $3,000,000 for the U. S. information and educational exchange program, which operates the "Voice of America" overseas broadcasts. Mr. Truman had recommended $5,120,000 for the latter item.

The Atomic Energy Commission got exactly what it asked for. The new contract authority raises the total the commission has to spend in the current fiscal year to $659,091,863.

Carroll L. Wilson, the commission's general manager, told the committeee that most of the new funds will be "directed toward insuring the continuity of production of fissionable materials, the fabrication of these into weapons, and the conduct of research and development."

He also told the committee, without elaboration, that the military interest in the commission's work "goes far beyond atomic bombs." And he said that atomic weapon production facilities, previously centered at Los Alamos, N. M., are being dispersed and duplicate source weapon parts and assemblies are being built.

The army asked $150,000,000 and got $143,000,000 for government and relief expenses in Germany, Japan and Korea. The Air Force's request for $26,670,000 to buy new uniforms was cut to $10,000,000. The committee said that ought to be enough to get the program going.

Mrs. Mickey Rooney Threatens Divorce

HOLLYWOOD, March 30 (AP)—Mrs. Mickey Rooney says she is going to file suit for divorce against her freckled young actor husband because two trial separations didn't "work out."

She announced today that she would file the suit within 30 days.

Mrs. Rooney, the former Betty Jane Rase, Birmingham, Ala., beauty said she has retained an attorney and "we are trying to work out details of the settlement."

Gas Companies Merge

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP) — Texas Gas Transmission Corporation won permission today to take over facilities of Memphis Natural Gas Company, Memphis, Tenn., and Kentucky Natural Gas Company, Owensboro, Ky.

The Power Commission affirmed an earlier decision of its presiding examiner recommending the merger.

ITU Is Instructed To Sign Year Pact

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP) — The AFL International Typographical Union tonight wrote instructions for its local unions to offer full-year contracts without discrimination against non-union job applicants.

Government attorneys agreed that the new instructions comply with a Federal Court injunction issued against the union Saturday.

Both union and government lawyers expressed the hope that the new document will clear up all current disputes between the ITU and employers—both in the newspaper and commercial printing industries.

The instructions will be mail to the 850 local unions from Indianapolis within a day or two.

Police, Pickets Clash Briefly Outside Wall Street Exchange

The spectacular scrapping opened the second day of a strike of AFL financial workers against the New York Stock and Curb Exchanges.

It was fought at the very doors of the stock exchange as striking financial workers and husky AFL seamen who swelled their picket lines tried to block the main entrance of the building when brokers arrived to begin business. The technique was to throw themselves on the ground across the entrance.

Police guards met them with clubs swinging.

Pickets who stretched themselves out on the sidewalk were hauled to their feet. Policemen were knocked down. Women screamed.

Clothing was torn. There were several minor injuries. Two men suffered fractured arms. A detective was sent to a hospital, his head bleeding.

Calls went in for riot squads and ambulances. Wall street was roped off. Private phones in nearby stores were allocated for police emergency use only.

Pan American Delegates Prepare To Discuss Communistic Effects

BOGOTA, Colombia, March 30—(INS)—Delegates to the ninth Pan American Conference decided at a closed meeting today to take up the problem of Communism and its effect on the peace and security of the Americas.

U. S. Secretary of State Marshall took the initiative in getting the question placed on the agenda when he raised the issue at a meeting of the Conference's Steering Committee.

The theme set by the United States was taken up later when President Mariano Ospina Perez, of Colombia, welcomed the delegates of the 21 Western Hemisphere nations at the formal opening session at 4 p. m. (EST) in the flag-bedecked salon Eliptico of the Capitolio, the Congress building.

He called on the delegates for "acts rather than words," and demanded that "the forces opposed to the principle of democracy" be "prevented from prevailing in the world."

Marshall made it clear that the United States feels the conference should do something about curbing Communist activities when he arose in the pre-opening steering Committee meeting.

Fourth Stickup Man Is Arrested In Club Robbery

Dodo Tenace Is Nabbed In Calif.

BALTIMORE, March 30 (AP)—The fourth man accused of participating in Baltimore's famous "Fourth of July strip-tease holdup" was picked up by FBI agents in California today.

He was identified as 40-year-old Nicholas (Dodo) Tenace, living in Los Angeles under the name of Joseph Ciro and also known as Nicholas Russo.

Three other men already are serving long prison sentences. The gang's boss was knocked off during some intramural gun fighting in Brooklyn. So Dodo's arrest about closed the books on the "what hold-up?" almost two years ago.

Police didn't find out about the gang's raid on the Century Athletic Club for almost 72 hours. Then a dozen victims reluctantly pieced together the story.

Five men had invaded the club while the assorted fighters, trainers, promoters and "characters" who hang out there were listening to a baseball game on the radio. One of them carried a big flower box, which he unwapped. There was a tommy gun inside.

Everyone was lined up. All were forced to take off their trousers so they couldn't give chase. The invaders ripped out telephone wires and sped away.

The Century Club is in "the block," East Baltimore Street's congregation of honky-tonk night clubs. The police began to hear stories that hijackers hit the jackpot for up to $50,000 but the victims would never own up to losing more than $1,200 to $1,500.

Warrants eventually were sworn out against five men. Since the technique was the same as that used almost a year earlier on the Independent Democratic Club, some of them were charged with both jobs.

Julius Taibi and Alfred Rollo were arrested in Brooklyn and got sentences of 40 years and 20 years respectively. Joseph Anthony (Chicken Joe) Cassiolla, was arrested in California several months later and got 40 years.

The death of the gang's boss was reported in court at the time "Chicken Joe" was sentenced, along with the fact that another member was serving a 15-year robbery sentence in New York's Sing Sing prison.

Swooning Bobby Soxers Begin To Fade Into Past

New Look Gives Girls Decorum

CHICAGO, March 30—(INS)—The swooning bobby soxer has joined her ancestral counterparts—the flapper and the Gibson girl—as a thing of the past.

The swooning, moaning and fainting that marked demonstrations in recent years by teen-agers of their crushes on movie stars and crooners has been dealt a fatal blow by the return of the longer skirts and the more feminine look.

Today's teen-aged lass has adjusted herself to the new look with a new way, a decorum faintly akin to the girlhood of grandma's day.

A survey in Chicago discloses that the metamorphosis is complete—swooning just isn't the thing to do anymore.

The fad, spurred by publicity agents, that established many an artist in star rating and bank account quietly vanished almost simultaneously with the younger girl's adoption of older relatives' styles.

Another reason for the silent dispersal of the "swoon" period is that the girls who gasped heart-felt sighs at the stage or screen appearance of their favorite have simply grown up.

Now two to four years older the one-time bobby soxers are more interested in the men they know personally in college or in chosen business fields.

Not that hero worship has been wiped out. There still are fan clubs. The girls devour movie magazines and keep scrapbooks and pictures. They still swarm to stage and screen appearances of their idols, and write fan letters.

Franco Reported Ready To Step Up Army By 300,000

MADRID, March 30 (AP) — Generalissimo Franco's regime was reported today ready to increase the Spanish Army by about 300,000 men as a precautionary step in view of the Communist threat in Europe, especially Italy.

There is no official information available on such plans. It was reported however that the 1948 and 1949 classes may be called to the colors several months ahead of time.

The cabinet at its last meeting on March 22 is known to have given much attention to the report of Jose Antonio San Gronez, Spanish Ambassador in Rome. An informed source said the report described the situation as "very grave" and that the cabinet took the "necessary measures."

A communique after the meeting said the ministers received a report on "the advance of Communism in Europe."

The machinery for calling up the class of 1948 is already in motion under Spain's two-year compulsory military service law.

Under normal procedure 140,000 to 150,000 youths 21 years of age would be called for this service in October. Shortly after, the 1946 class would be released.

Government Control Of Mines Is Asked

WASHINGTON, March 30—(AP)—Congress was asked today to give the government power to take over and operate the coal mines.

Rep. Harrison (D-Va) introduced a bill to revive war-time powers of the President over the coal mine operations. Under the War Labor Disputes Act, now expired, the federal government had power to take control of essential industries when work stoppages occurred. Strikes were banned during government operation.

It was under this law that the government seized the coal mines more than once on the occasion of miners' walkouts during and after the war.

Contractors Charged With Cheating Vets

BALTIMORE, March 30 (AP) — Three more building contractors were indicted today on charges of conspiring to violate building codes and cheat war veterans on new homes.

It was the second series of indictments returned by the grand jury since it started an investigation touched off by complaints of more than 2,000 veterans.

Dodo Tenace Is Nabbed In Calif.

BALTIMORE, March 30 (AP)—The fourth man accused of participating in Baltimore's famous "Fourth of July strip-tease holdup" was picked up by FBI agents in California today.

He was identified as 40-year-old Nicholas (Dodo) Tenace, living in Los Angeles under the name of Joseph Ciro and also known as Nicholas Russo.

Three other men already are serving long prison sentences. The gang's boss was knocked off during some intramural gun fighting in Brooklyn. So Dodo's arrest about closed the books on the "what hold-up?" almost two years ago.

Police didn't find out about the gang's raid on the Century Athletic Club for almost 72 hours. Then a dozen victims reluctantly pieced together the story.

Five men had invaded the club while the assorted fighters, trainers, promoters and "characters" who hang out there were listening to a baseball game on the radio. One of them carried a big flower box, which he unwapped. There was a tommy gun inside.

Everyone was lined up. All were forced to take off their trousers so they couldn't give chase. The invaders ripped out telephone wires and sped away.

The Century Club is in "the block," East Baltimore Street's congregation of honky-tonk night clubs. The police began to hear stories that hijackers hit the jackpot for up to $50,000 but the victims would never own up to losing more than $1,200 to $1,500.

Warrants eventually were sworn out against five men. Since the technique was the same as that used almost a year earlier on the Independent Democratic Club, some of them were charged with both jobs.

Julius Taibi and Alfred Rollo were arrested in Brooklyn and got sentences of 40 years and 20 years respectively. Joseph Anthony (Chicken Joe) Cassiolla, was arrested in California several months later and got 40 years.

The death of the gang's boss was reported in court at the time "Chicken Joe" was sentenced, along with the fact that another member was serving a 15-year robbery sentence in New York's Sing Sing prison.

Franco Reported Ready To Step Up Army By 300,000

MADRID, March 30 (AP) — Generalissimo Franco's regime was reported today ready to increase the Spanish Army by about 300,000 men as a precautionary step in view of the Communist threat in Europe, especially Italy.

There is no official information available on such plans. It was reported however that the 1948 and 1949 classes may be called to the colors several months ahead of time.

The cabinet at its last meeting on March 22 is known to have given much attention to the report of Jose Antonio San Gronez, Spanish Ambassador in Rome. An informed source said the report described the situation as "very grave" and that the cabinet took the "necessary measures."

A communique after the meeting said the ministers received a report on "the advance of Communism in Europe."

The machinery for calling up the class of 1948 is already in motion under Spain's two-year compulsory military service law.

Under normal procedure 140,000 to 150,000 youths 21 years of age would be called for this service in October. Shortly after, the 1946 class would be released.

Government Control Of Mines Is Asked

WASHINGTON, March 30—(AP)—Congress was asked today to give the government power to take over and operate the coal mines.

Rep. Harrison (D-Va) introduced a bill to revive war-time powers of the President over the coal mine operations. Under the War Labor Disputes Act, now expired, the federal government had power to take control of essential industries when work stoppages occurred. Strikes were banned during government operation.

It was under this law that the government seized the coal mines more than once on the occasion of miners' walkouts during and after the war.

Swooning Bobby Soxers Begin To Fade Into Past

New Look Gives Girls Decorum

CHICAGO, March 30—(INS)—The swooning bobby soxer has joined her ancestral counterparts—the flapper and the Gibson girl—as a thing of the past.

The swooning, moaning and fainting that marked demonstrations in recent years by teen-agers of their crushes on movie stars and crooners has been dealt a fatal blow by the return of the longer skirts and the more feminine look.

Today's teen-aged lass has adjusted herself to the new look with a new way, a decorum faintly akin to the girlhood of grandma's day.

A survey in Chicago discloses that the metamorphosis is complete—swooning just isn't the thing to do anymore.

The fad, spurred by publicity agents, that established many an artist in star rating and bank account quietly vanished almost simultaneously with the younger girl's adoption of older relatives' styles.

Another reason for the silent dispersal of the "swoon" period is that the girls who gasped heart-felt sighs at the stage or screen appearance of their favorite have simply grown up.

Now two to four years older the one-time bobby soxers are more interested in the men they know personally in college or in chosen business fields.

Not that hero worship has been wiped out. There still are fan clubs.

The girls devour movie magazines and keep scrapbooks and pictures. They still swarm to stage and screen appearances of their idols, and write fan letters.

Contractors Charged With Cheating Vets

BALTIMORE, March 30 (AP) — Three more building contractors were indicted today on charges of conspiring to violate building codes and cheat war veterans on new homes.

It was the second series of indictments returned by the grand jury since it started an investigation touched off by complaints of more than 2,000 veterans.

Failure To Think Of Consequences Lands Youth In Serious Trouble

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

No matter how many times life shows us that the consequences of wrong doing almost invariably catch up with us in the end, few of us ever stop to think about it in time. Or else we think it couldn't possibly happen to us.

That is almost certainly the kind of thinking that got the writer of the following letter into his serious trouble.

"I am a young man of 22," the letter reads, "and in love with a girl of high moral standing who is deeply in love with me. We are planning to be married. but now something is threatening our happiness.

"A few months ago I had an affair with another girl who is now having a baby. She claims the baby is mine, and demands that I marry her. If I don't, she threatens to tell my fiancee. What shall I do?"

This young man fails to say whether he had this affair before or after he became engaged. The problem is serious enough, and regrettable enough, if it took place before his engagement. If it was afterward, it takes on an even darker shade.

There is no use at all in approaching the problem at this point from the moral standpoint. My correspondent, who seems to be a young man of intelligence, has his own conscience to reckon wifh on that score. What must be dealt with now is the strictly practical question of how he shall handle the disastrous situation in which he finds himself.

I should think the first thing he would have to do would be to tell his fiancee the story himself. In the first place, she has the right to hear it from him and to be given the chance to say whether she wants to continue the plans for marriage or give them up. In the second place, if he does not tell her himself he is going to be continually tortured by the fear that the girl in question will take matters into her own hands as she threatens to do. If this happened, he would be in an even worse position than he is in now so far as his fiancee's attitude toward him is concerned.

If his fiancee is a girl of character, and her love for him is deep, she may be able to adjust herself to this blow to her faith in him which comes so tragically early in their relationship. She may be able also, to help him work out a solution which would be acceptable, insofar as anything of this kind could be acceptable, to the other girl involved.

In any event, I think it is something he and his fiancee should talk over together so that whatever course is adopted, it will represent their joint decision.

UMT Held "Incompetent, Irrelevant, Immaterial"

In the security crisis facing the United States today, the proposal for universal military training is what the lawyers call "incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial."

Chairman Gurney of the Senate Armed Services committee links UMT with a limited draft as "an absolute necessity." The United States Chamber of Commerce favors UMT because it "would serve notice to the world and to any potential aggressors that we do not intend again to relax our guard." Dr. Karl Compton, like the President, favors a draft until UMT could come into force. Former Supreme Court Justice Roberts charges that Communists are the chief opponents of UMT. He neglects to add that Communists also oppose revival of the draft.

No Communist opposes UMT on the ground that it would hamper success of a temporary draft. That is the position of many patriotic and informed military experts in the country.

The trouble with UMT is that it simply does not fit into an immediate and urgent picture. It would provide some military training over a six-month period to about 800,000 high school graduates. The youths would not be in the Army or in any other branch of the service. They would not be under military direction or subject to overseas duty. Only by a special act of Congress could they be used as regular troops —and using them in battle after only six months of partly non-military training would be tantamount to murder.

The value of this leisurely plan in impressing Russia is highly questionable. Over a period of years such training might be useful as part of a national mobilization plan. But the need of the present crisis is not mobilization. It is readiness for military aid to Western Europe, in case Russia should march or touch off a series of revolts. To have any value whatever in the present crisis, UMT should have been started on V-J Day. Ordered today, it could only hamper the draft plan by diverting 185,000 Army officers and men to youth camp duties.

The temporary draft is the only means of getting the men we need to build up our defense establishment quickly. The actual number of men drafted would probably be small, since the prospects of the draft would encourage many to enlist. Educators who clamor for UMT now are urging a long-range plan for an immediate emergency. Members of Congress who favor UMT rather than the draft are thinking of votes next November.

In this crisis, Congress and the American people must be both courageous and clear-sighted. We need greater military strength, not several years hence but now.

Allegany and Garrett Offer Vacation Havens

Recreational and vacationing spots in Allegany and Garrett counties are expected to attract a still larger number of persons this year than was the case in 1947 when attendance records jumped 30 per cent. That is in keeping with predictions from all parts of the country that the forthcoming summer will see all records, for the number of persons on the move, broken.

Those who predicted that fewer would take to the road this summer because of high prices encountered last year were wrong. It is obvious that high prices will not keep Americans at home.

Beauty spots in Allegany and Garrett counties were visited, for various periods in 1947, by 185,269 persons. This total was scattered over the Savage River State Forest, Deep Creek Lake, Swallow Falls, Potomac Forest, Green Ridge and the South Branch of the Potomac.

Requests for information on vacation facilities in these two counties are being received earlier than usual, indicating increased interest in the various spots.

While the number of persons visiting these areas is growing yearly, the total could be greatly increased if a planned advertising campaign were undertaken. The advantages, the scenic beauty and facilities are brought to the attention of those outside other states by the use of folders which are made available through various agencies. This is done either by Chambers of Commerce or by groups of public-spirited residents in the areas affording unusual vacation spots.

Many state governments perform this, but more direct results for any particular territory can best be secured through a concentrated publicity drive by organized groups directly interested in promoting specified sections.

It is evident, however, that another tide of those wanting to spend as much time as possible in the woodland and mountainous areas will sweep the country this year, and places in Allegany and Garrett counties offering vacation advantages will receive such a share that it will tax facilities to the utmost.

The Willow's Secret

In springtime when the sap runs in the willows, all boys are lucky. Just to be young right now is good fortune in full measure; but the cup runs over for the boy whose dad can make a willow whistle.

This is an ancient art known only to boys. Once learned, it is never forgotten. So, he who fashions a willow pipe is a boy at heart though his hands be blue-veined with age.

Let the blade be keen. Let the stalk be straight, round, budless and of thumb diameter to produce a goodly blast. Let the bark be smooth but not too thin. One sure, diagonal cut produces the blowing tip.

Now notch it—not too deeply but just right. Ring the bark with a clean cut a few inches below the notch. Now tap it gently on the anvil of your knee, with knife handle or smooth stick for mallet. Tap it round and round, 'til an expert twist will loosen it.

Off slips the bark! The blade works swiftly now. The wood beneath the notch is pared away and the tip above the notch is flattened, so.

Slip back the bark and blow. If you have whittled well a sweet, clear note comes forth, pure and high as a meadow lark's call. It is no earthly instrument that you have made, but a pipe of Pan—the boy who made one first. Pan has handed down the secret of his craft from boy to boy, father to son, since time itself was young.

Thus it came to you. The sap is running in the willows now. The time has come to pass the secret on.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Wart Remedies

There are warts and warts. They come in many sizes, shapes, and colors and some individuals have only one; others sport hundreds. Whether the growths are troublesome depends upon their location; those on the hands and face detract from the appearance while a wart on the sole is subject to pressure and causes pain.

It is difficult to estimate how many persons are afflicted. From 1.5 to 4 per cent of all patients with skin blemishes who seek medical care exhibit the lesions but there are many more victims who never contact a physician. The most common varieties affect principally children and young adults.

A filtrable virus is responsible and it is thought to gain entrance over areas that are likely to be injured. Hence the hands and fingers and, to a lesser degree, the feet are susceptible. The causative organism has been demonstrated not only in man and lower animals but in decomposed substances in the soil; McLaughlin and Edington traced one epidemic to contaminated glue. Warts are slightly contagious and when one is present, handling or touching it may lead to the development of others.

Removal is suggested whenever the growth proves bothersome. Internal medication is less effective than local treatment. For this purpose, myriads of remedies are available including anything that burns to surgery. Caustics, such as monochloracetic acid, phenol, silver nitrate, and glacial acetic acids are popular. A drop of this material is applied each day until the wart falls out. Care must be exercised to protect the normal skin. Several applications are usually necessary and the dosage depends upon the thickness of the lesion. A paste containing 60 per cent salicylic acid or a plaster of 40 per cent of the same substance have been recommended by Niedelman. Such preparations are left in place for several days until the surface of the wart becomes macerated and can be peeled down.

Electrolysis, the procedure used for hair removal, and electrical dessiccation current are helpful also. An anesthetic must be injected if the latter is employed and the results are satisfactory. X-ray and radium have their adherents but these agents must be administered correctly; if not, the bad effects may not appear for months or years, when an ulcer occurs that is difficult to heal.

One of the most controversial methods is psychotherapy. It is well known that some warts disappear completely after suggestion but in order to be successful both patient and physician must have faith in the procedure. Cases have been reported in which one lesion was treated with an electric current and the youngster told that the remainder would soon vanish. Now and then this actually happens, and no one knows why. We receive letters from many readers who have acquired a reputation for their ability to remove warts in this manner. One man rubs the area with a kernel of corn; another just strokes the fingers. The effect is apparently through the nervous system but the details are obscure.

Blood Test Variations

B.W.B. writes: Is a blood test infallible proof as to the existence or nonexistence of syphilis regardless of whether it is in the early or late stages?

Reply

No. Several weeks must elapse after contracting the disease before the blood becomes positive. In rare instances, it never becomes positive. Furthermore, in the late stages, the reaction may be negative. In making the diagnosis, the physician must rely upon blood and spinal fluid tests unless the skin lesions are unmistakably due to syphilis.

Ineffective

B.C.M. writes: Will streytomycin kill a virus?

Reply

Not to my knowledge—at least, with the doses currently used.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

Attention fashion editors: Washington society has announced a new note in dress.

The Senate voted to give its pageboys that "new look." The fellows won't have to wear knickers and long black stockings anymore. They can now walk around the Halls of Congress in long pants.

For a long time the proposal to give the boys long pants was fought. Then Senators were afraid they'd mistake them for small voters and give out all their cigars.

And I understand they're forming a committee to investigate it first. They think General Myers might be mixed up in the clothing business, too.

Of course, the pages wanted the long pants. They didn't like walking down the street and showing more ankle than the girls.

I won't say one pageboy of 16 was relieved because he doesn't have to wear long stockings anymore, but as soon as he got the news he called off his appointment with a psychiatrist.

I don't know what they're going to do with all the pages' old uniforms, but I heard that when Santa visits the homes of the Senators next Christmas he'll find nothing but black stockings on the mantel.

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, March 30 — It now looks as if the poverty-stricken Navajo Indians, trying to scratch a precarious living from the wastelands of Arizona and New Mexico, may own one of the most priceless pieces of property in the U.S.A.

For some time our chief worry in the production of atomic energy was the fact that all uranium deposits lay outside the United States. However, it now appears that the Navajos have been tending their pitiful flocks above a hidden atomic treasure. For, upon the Navajo reservation in the upper corner of Arizona and New Mexico, the Vanadium Corporation of America has been quietly extracting uranium.

Further details regarding this operation must remain a military secret. However, one amazing fact can be revealed. So far, the Navajos haven't received one penny for the uranium taken from their land. Instead, the profits have been raked in by the Vanadium Corporation.

The price which the atomic energy commission is paying the Vanadium Corporation for uranium is also secret, but a member of the joint congressional committee on atomic energy predicted that the metal may become almost as precious as diamonds. Since the richest deposits are all outside the United States and could be cut off in case of war, this domestic supply becomes all the more valuable.

But the Navajos, sitting on one of nature's jackpots, so far haven't been able to collect a cent. Reason for this again is largely obscured by secrecy, and only part of the story can be told within the limits of national security.

For one thing, uranium does not exist in its pure form on the reservation but must be extracted as a by-product from vanadium. The only leases to dig for vanadium on Navajo territory—six in all—are held by the Vanadium Corporation. These leases specify that the Indians will be paid 10 per cent royalty on all mineral compounds—except vanadium compounds. In the latter case, the royalty is stipulated as 10 per cent of the vanadium oxide, a metal used to toughen steel. Since uranium is part of the raw vanadium ore until processed, the company conceivably might get away with paying royalty only on the comparatively valueless vanadium oxide, not on the other raw vanadium out of which uranium comes.

However, the Indian service takes the view that uranium is a separate metal apart from vanadium, therefore is subject to the full 10 per cent royalty fee. But the amount of uranium taken from the reservation is unknown to the Indian service which hasn't any record of a single royalty payment to the Navajos for uranium. Yet the Vanadium corporation is known to have been extracting it for several years. The Vanadium Corporation declined all comment on the grounds that its uranium project is top secret. But the Atomic Energy Commission informed this ccolumnist that on the amount of royalty payments no secrecy is involved.

Lewis Will Fight

John L. Lewis has told close friends that he is set to go to the Supreme Court to test the constitutionality of the Taft-Hartley Labor Act.

Lewis firmly believes that the Taft-Hartley provision compelling workers to return to their jobs by injunction—if a strike endangers the nation's welfare—is unconstitutional.

Therefore, if an injunction is obtained against Lewis's striking United Mine Workers members, the mine labor boss intends to fight it right up to the Supreme Court.

"This is not so much a fight against mine operators," Lewis told an intimate. "It's a fight against the Taft-Hartley Act. I want a showdown and I won't give up until I get one."

MacArthur's Censorship

When Harry Truman was chairman of the Senate War Investigating committee he came near blasting one piece of wartime censorship. If he had, it would have cast a somewhat different light on one of his present political opponents—Douglas MacArthur. But he didn't.

Wartime censorship sometimes operated in a peculiar manner. The manner in which U.S. plaens were caught napping and burned on the ground at Pearl Harbor was known to the world and the military commanders responsible were severely reprimanded. But the manner in which General MacArthur's bombers were also caught napping at Manila and burned on the ground was censored.

Three hundred planes, sent to Manila at great sacrifice to U.S. air forces in other areas, were lost as a result. MacArthur had been demanding that planes be sent him instead of going to beleagured England, at that time unmercifully pounded by Nazi air attacks.

But though MacArthur had a special warning that the Japs were attacking, while Pearl Harbor didn't, he left his 300 planes helpless on the ground.

The Truman committee, discovering this fact, devoted two paragraphs to it in a quarterly report dated March 4, 1944. The copies of the report were in type and circulated confidentially to committee members, when three senators—Hatch of New Mexico and Connally of Texas, Democrats; with Ball of Minnesota, Republican — objected. Truman yielded to their objection and withdrew the criticism of MacArthur.

The two censored paragraphs read:

"Censorship is an insult to the patriotism and intelligence of the American people. In the past, it has led to many unwise acts, such as the concealing of facts known to the enemy, and even the dissemination of distorted information. For example, the Japanese knew perfectly well the destruction they had wreaked upon our airplanes in the Philippines, but for two years the War Department requested that it be kept a secret from the public that 300 planes were destroyed on Philippine airfields a number of hours after the attack on Pearl Harbor was known.

"The loss was only recently made public, and there is at least a suspicion that part of the reason for requesting the committee to consider the information 'secret' was the desire to avoid resentment by the public of the loss of 300 planes which would have been so valuable to the defense of the Philippines."

Merry-Go-Round

Quoth ex-Congressman Maury Maverick after returning to San Antonio following several months in Los Angeles: "I love my worst Texas enemy more than my best California friend." . . . Payne Ratner, ex-governor of Kansas, recently dropped in to see Capt Howard Yeager, efficient aide to chief of naval operations Adm. Louis Denfield, asked Yeager to use his influence with his father-in-law, Roy Bailey, publisher of the Salina, Kans., Journal, in favor of Sen. Arthur Capper. Ratner admitted Kansas didn't have much of a choice between Capper and his G.O.P. primary opponent, Andy Schoeppel, but claimed Capper was the lesser of two evils. Replied Captain Yeager: "My job is the Navy, not running my father-in-law's politics."

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK, March 30—(INS)—The stories from Bucharest said that communist-bloc candidates attracted 93 per cent of the popular vote when Romanians went to the polls last week to elect a new parliament.

What they neglected to say—probably because to have said so would have meant that the credentials of the reporters would have been picked up—is that the election followed the identical pattern which was imposed upon Poland just a little over a year ago.

It is a pattern which will be followed in Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria and, when the time comes, Finland. It is being attempted in Italy but the result there probably will be different—for the communists do not control the police and the army.

In Poland, where the Reds were able to take the police with the consent of Roosevelt and Churchill —and easily able to hold them in face of what Stalin privately scorned as "paper protests" from their successors — the communist bloc parties won by about the same margin as they won in Romania last week.

It is a simple process. The victims themselves cannot protest without being killed, imprisoned or ruined, and the United Nations cannot act because Russia can veto out of existence any decision on the part of all the other nations to whip the aggressor.

The 93 per cent margin in Romania was arbitrarily established weeks in advance of the actual balloting. The Communists could have chosen any figure up to 100 per cent. By choosing an odd number they hope—as they did in the electoral rape of Poland to persuade some sectors of the free world to believe that the count actually turned out as announced. In Poland they reduced the faked count on the election to the decimal point stage.

Once in possession of a country's ministry of interior, the communists can rule indefinitel. New laws or rules are rushed through enabling the Security Police to make arrests without warrants or such other requisites as free peoples demand.

Then the democratic parties are systematically eliminated. They are first deprived of newsprint, radio time. Their periodicals are heavily censored, or—on the threat of complete foreclosure—forced to print materials that lauds the Communists.

Police take over protest meetings of recognized democratic parties—usually provincial meetings, at the start—arrest the district leaders, and then introduce (and pass) motions either disbanding the local organization or turning its further direction over to Reds.

Special commissions are set up to control working conditions, housing, taxation and other facets of the nation's life. Each large factory, mine or office gets a political adviser. Workers who rebel against the tightening of the vise, or continue membership in a democratic party, are fired. A man without a job is deprived of his food ration card and his housing permit. His family suffers the same economic blow. He can find no other work until he yields in his stand against the armed minority.

Small business men who persist in belonging to democratic parties find special taxes confiscating their property, or they are sent off to a slave labor camp for two years "for black-marketing." Unless, of course, they recant and publicly denounce the democratic leaders who brought them to their ruin.

Factory and office workers are assembled and told they must "vote voluntarily" — which means vote openly. At an appointed time they are marched to the polling place, sometimes with music, and always under armed guard. They must hold their ballots above their heads, so that the guards can plainly see that they are voting for the Communist bloc.

The Communist bloc may be made up of half a dozen parties bearing fine old democratic names, but they mean nothing. In Poland, for instance, the head of the new Christian Labor Party, completely Communist-dominated, was an atheist and convicted abortionist.

Several parties are always permitted to remain outside the Communist bloc, but their independence is a fiction. They are told to stay outside and present their so-called independent candidates, only to give the west the illusion that the election, in the corroded words of Yalta is "free and unfettered." In Poland's case, two such parties—the Polish Peasant Party (new liberation) and the Catholic Progressive Party—were formed a few weeks before the election and disbanded immediately thereafter.

All candidates for the parliaments of Red-controlled countries must have at least 100 sponsors who are registered members of the party concerned. When the independent candidates present their lists, the sponsors are arrested. By a variety of NKVD tortures, a certain number will be forced to withdraw in order to save their lives and the lives of their families. When the number drops below 100, the candidate is no longer eligible to run. The Reds had 141 candidates of the courageously Independent Polish Peasant Party in jail during the 1947 elections.

On the day of the election, those who have been beaten into voting for the Communist bloc are admitted to the polling places first. Doors are often locked on the others. And if the actual balloting does not come up to the prescribed margin of victory, the dissenting ballots are burned and their totals added to the Communists.

Nor does Stilwell say a word of the genius in compromise which made it possible for Chiang to force feudal lords and revolutionary generals, any one of whom was more powerful than he was, to accept his leadership and to recognize the authority of the Nanking government. I know of these things because I took part in them.

Nor does Stilwell explain how it could be that Chiang was able to hold China together against all the power and might of Japan from September 18, 1931, to December 7, 1941, when Pearl Harbor brought us into the war. China and Chiang stood alone those ten years, fighting as best they could, betrayed by Chinese feudal lords and politicians and by the very Communists whom Stilwell would have had Chiang include in his government.

Nor does Stilwell explain the current phenomenon (he could not, of course, as he is dead) that despite a war with Soviet Russia, despite abandonment by the United States due to George Marshall's mistaken notions, despite a devastating infiltration which originated in an unfortunate American silver policy and crazy British and American ideas concerning managed currencies, Chiang Kai-shek still stands and China has not been conquered by either Japan or Soviet Russia.

To me, the interesting fact is that General Stilwell discloses how miserably we assisted Chiang Kai-shek during the war. Stilwell wrote his wife:

". . . You know I have a little job to do over here, so I asked for a few tools to do it with. I have tried it once without any tools and it didn't work, so I reminded our folks of some promises and made what I though was a very modest request. You should have seen the answer. Peanut and I are on a raft, with one sandwich between us, and the rescue ship is heading away from the scene. . . ."

Again he wrote her:

". . . Got back from Cairo day before yesterday, we got the usual answers down there and after Bloody Joe (Stalin) got through laying down the law up there at Teheran, we were lucky to get away with our shirts."

When Franklin D. Roosevelt was speaking to the American people of what we were doing for China, we were not doing it. General Stilwell, his successor, General Wedemeyer, Pat Hurley were sent there to arouse hopes but were not permitted to produce results and they wondered that Chiang Kai-shek, who knew the problem, was shocked that they were granting Soviet Russia the power to conquer China through the Chinese Communists!

It all adds to the record of Franklin D. Roosevelt's duplicity.

U. S.-Russo State Of Affairs Cannot Go On Indefinitely

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, March 30. — Are the United States and Russia in a technical state of war already or is the present position one of undeclared war?

So far as previous international law is concerned, the United States has accused Russia of violating agreements and has also condemned the Soviet regime as an aggressor state.

In the press of this country Russia is openly referred to as a potential if not an actual enemy.

Congress has appropriated money to be used in the Middle East to help arm the troops of Greece as against irregular forces known to be sponsored or equipped by governments in the Balkans which are under Soviet control.

The President of the United States, moreover, in a message to Congress — which, under the constitution, alone has the power to declare war or authorize the use of armed forces — has asked for funds and for revival of the system of Selective Service which is the method of conscription used by America in the last two wars.

Japan did not declare war on the United States before making an attack on American territory at Pearl Harbor, and the Congress of the United States voted in December 1941 merely to recognize a "state of war" which had already begun.

Lack of War Not Decisive Factor

The war powers possessed by the President, some of which have not been repealed, were originally voted by Congress in connection with the war against Germany. There is no authorization to use these same war powers in a war against a nation which hitherto has been an ally.

The fact that direct hostilities have not commenced is not in any way a decisive factor in interpreting the present status. For there is military action and support being given by Russia in Greece and also by the United States in that same country. Heretofore this would have been regarded as an unfriendly act and as a basis for breaking off diplomatic relations by one nation or the other.

Theoretically the American government is merely assisting the Greek government at its request, but actually the United States and Russia are engaged in the same theater of operations.

Recently the Secretary of the Army cautioned all members of his service below the policy-making office not to refer to Russia as an enemy. But is is apparent that officers of the government and the President himself do not make any bones about calling Russia an aggressor and characterizing it as a government that is bent on breaking the peace

This state of affairs cannot drift on without some explicit definition. Every now and then exports are sent to Russia and the explanation is made that Russia and the U. S. are still friendly nations. But this distinction is not clear because most Americans feel that, if Russia is a potential enemy, she should not receive any exports of war-making materials or equipment.

Showdown Is Inevitable

The present anomalous position of the two biggest powers in the world may be continued deliberately by both sides until the time for a showdown comes, though eventually such a showdown is inevitable. Whether war or an era of peace will follow cannot be conjectured, but it is a safe assumption that, if the American people continue to distrust the Russian government and the Moscow regime feels distrustful of the U. S., there will be no chance for the United Nations to function or any settlement to be made short of war.

Old-fashioned diplomacy was often sneered at as secret but it did manage to keep the peace longer than two or three years after a major war. There are many experienced diplomats who feel something is wrong in the contact between Moscow and Washington and who think a peaceful settlement could yet be made. Even the recent approach of the Russian government to an American diplomatic officer met a rebuff that has not been explained.

The use of the phrase "cold war" has been misleading. The present is a period where measures "short of war" are being employed. It certainly resembles the 1939-1941 pre-war period, with Russia taking the place of Germany as the aggressor and potential enemy.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Vinegar Joe's Story

When I heard that General Joseph W. Stilwell's experiences in China were to be published, I anticipated a vicious, bitter attack on Chiang Kai-shek. For Stilwell and Chiang never understood each other, were temperamentally and by training unsuited to work together, and finally were separated in an outburst of anger.

However, as I read his memoirs in the current issue of the "Ladies' Home Journal," I find a repetition of the impressions of Franklin D. Roosevelt that have already appeared in the Byrnes, Farley, Flynn, Hull and Stimson memoirs, which, in effect, comes down to this:

Roosevelt tried to do everything himself, was not always informed, played all sides against the middle, and kept his subordinates and associates in a gay but disastrous chaos.

What General Stilwell has to say of Chiang Kai-shek, whom he calls "Peanut," Madame Chiang Kai-shek, Madame H. H. Kung and T. V. Soong is mere private judgment of persons he did not understand and did not like. I have known these four individuals longer and more intimately than General Stilwell. I knew them not only when they achieved position but also when they were young and not involved in great affairs. General Stilwell has overdrawn their very human weaknesses; he has not even approached the strength and character which stimulated a creative power, making it possible for Chiang, in 1925, to move in on anarchy in Canton, following Sun Yat-sen's death; fighting through the Communist revolution of 1925-7, when Soviet Russia was actually directing the affairs of China through Michael Borodin and General Galens-Bleucher, experimenting in China with the devices which were finally perfected in Poland and Czechoslovakia.

UMT Held "Incompetent, Irrelevant, Immaterial"

In the security crisis facing the United States today, the proposal for universal military training is what the lawyers call "incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial."

Chairman Gurney of the Senate Armed Services committee links UMT with a limited draft as "an absolute necessity." The United States Chamber of Commerce favors UMT because it "would serve notice to the world and to any potential aggressors that we do not intend again to relax our guard." Dr. Karl Compton, like the President, favors a draft until UMT could come into force. Former Supreme Court Justice Roberts charges that Communists are the chief opponents of UMT. He neglects to add that Communists also oppose revival of the draft.

No Communist opposes UMT on the ground that it would hamper success of a temporary draft. That is the position of many patriotic and informed military experts in the country.

The trouble with UMT is that it simply does not fit into an immediate and urgent picture. It would provide some military training over a six-month period to about 800,000 high school graduates. The youths would not be in the Army or in any other branch of the service. They would not be under military direction or subject to overseas duty. Only by a special act of Congress could they be used as regular troops —and using them in battle after only six months of partly non-military training would be tantamount to murder.

The value of this leisurely plan in impressing Russia is highly questionable. Over a period of years such training might be useful as part of a national mobilization plan. But the need of the present crisis is not mobilization. It is readiness for military aid to Western Europe, in case Russia should march or touch off a series of revolts. To have any value whatever in the present crisis, UMT should have been started on V-J Day. Ordered today, it could only hamper the draft plan by diverting 185,000 Army officers and men to youth camp duties.

The temporary draft is the only means of getting the men we need to build up our defense establishment quickly. The actual number of men drafted would probably be small, since the prospects of the draft would encourage many to enlist. Educators who clamor for UMT now are urging a long-range plan for an immediate emergency. Members of Congress who favor UMT rather than the draft are thinking of votes next November.

In this crisis, Congress and the American people must be both courageous and clear-sighted. We need greater military strength, not several years hence but now.

Allegany and Garrett Offer Vacation Havens

Recreational and vacationing spots in Allegany and Garrett counties are expected to attract a still larger number of persons this year than was the case in 1947 when attendance records jumped 30 per cent. That is in keeping with predictions from all parts of the country that the forthcoming summer will see all records, for the number of persons on the move, broken.

Those who predicted that fewer would take to the road this summer because of high prices encountered last year were wrong. It is obvious that high prices will not keep Americans at home.

Beauty spots in Allegany and Garrett counties were visited, for various periods in 1947, by 185,269 persons. This total was scattered over the Savage River State Forest, Deep Creek Lake, Swallow Falls, Potomac Forest, Green Ridge and the South Branch of the Potomac.

Requests for information on vacation facilities in these two counties are being received earlier than usual, indicating increased interest in the various spots.

While the number of persons visiting these areas is growing yearly, the total could be greatly increased if a planned advertising campaign were undertaken. The advantages, the scenic beauty and facilities are brought to the attention of those outside other states by the use of folders which are made available through various agencies. This is done either by Chambers of Commerce or by groups of public-spirited residents in the areas affording unusual vacation spots.

Many state governments perform this, but more direct results for any particular territory can best be secured through a concentrated publicity drive by organized groups directly interested in promoting specified sections.

It is evident, however, that another tide of those wanting to spend as much time as possible in the woodland and mountainous areas will sweep the country this year, and places in Allegany and Garrett counties offering vacation advantages will receive such a share that it will tax facilities to the utmost.

Off slips the bark! The blade works swiftly now. The wood beneath the notch is pared away and the tip above the notch is flattened, so.

Slip back the bark and blow. If you have whittled well a sweet, clear note comes forth, pure and high as a meadow lark's call. It is no earthly instrument that you have made, but a pipe of Pan—the boy who made one first. Pan has handed down the secret of his craft from boy to boy, father to son, since time itself was young.

Thus it came to you. The sap is running in the willows now. The time has come to pass the secret on.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Wart Remedies

There are warts and warts. They come in many sizes, shapes, and colors and some individuals have only one; others sport hundreds. Whether the growths are troublesome depends upon their location; those on the hands and face detract from the appearance while a wart on the sole is subject to pressure and causes pain.

It is difficult to estimate how many persons are afflicted. From 1.5 to 4 per cent of all patients with skin blemishes who seek medical care exhibit the lesions but there are many more victims who never contact a physician. The most common varieties affect principally children and young adults.

A filtrable virus is responsible and it is thought to gain entrance over areas that are likely to be injured. Hence the hands and fingers and, to a lesser degree, the feet are susceptible. The causative organism has been demonstrated not only in man and lower animals but in decomposed substances in the soil; McLaughlin and Edington traced one epidemic to contaminated glue. Warts are slightly contagious and when one is present, handling or touching it may lead to the development of others.

Removal is suggested whenever the growth proves bothersome. Internal medication is less effective than local treatment. For this purpose, myriads of remedies are available including anything that burns to surgery. Caustics, such as monochloracetic acid, phenol, silver nitrate, and glacial acetic acids are popular. A drop of this material is applied each day until the wart falls out. Care must be exercised to protect the normal skin. Several applications are usually necessary and the dosage depends upon the thickness of the lesion. A paste containing 60 per cent salicylic acid or a plaster of 40 per cent of the same substance have been recommended by Niedelman. Such preparations are left in place for several days until the surface of the wart becomes macerated and can be peeled down.

Electrolysis, the procedure used for hair removal, and electrical desiccation current are helpful also. An anesthetic must be injected if the latter is employed and the results are satisfactory. X-ray and radium have their adherents but these agents must be administered correctly; if not, the bad effects may not appear for months or years, when an ulcer occurs that is difficult to heal.

One of the most controversial methods is psychotherapy. It is well known that some warts disappear completely after suggestion but in order to be successful both patient and physician must have faith in the procedure. Cases have been reported in which one lesion was treated with an electric current and the youngster told that the remainder would soon vanish. Now and then this actually happens, and no one knows why. We receive letters from many readers who have acquired a reputation for their ability to remove warts in this manner. One man rubs the area with a kernel of corn; another just strokes the fingers. The effect is apparently through the nervous system but the details are obscure.

Blood Test Variations

B.W.B. writes: Is a blood test infallible proof as to the existence or nonexistence of syphilis regardless of whether it is in the early or late stages?

Reply

No. Several weeks must elapse after contracting the disease before the blood becomes positive. In rare instances, it never becomes positive. Furthermore, in the late stages, the reaction may be negative. In making the diagnosis, the physician must rely upon blood and spinal fluid tests unless the skin lesions are unmistakably due to syphilis.

Ineffective

B.C.M. writes: Will streytomycin kill a virus?

Reply

Not to my knowledge—at least, with the doses currently used.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

Attention fashion editors: Washington society has announced a new note in dress.

The Senate voted to give its pageboys that "new look." The fellows won't have to wear knickers and long black stockings anymore. They can now walk around the Halls of Congress in long pants.

For a long time the proposal to give the boys long pants was fought. Then Senators were afraid they'd mistake them for small voters and give out all their cigars.

And I understand they're forming a committee to investigate it first. They think General Myers might be mixed up in the clothing business, too.

Of course, the pages wanted the long pants. They didn't like walking down the street and showing more ankle than the girls.

I won't say one pageboy of 16 was relieved because he doesn't have to wear long stockings anymore, but as soon as he got the news he called off his appointment with a psychiatrist.

I don't know what they're going to do with all the pages' old uniforms, but I heard that when Santa visits the homes of the Senators next Christmas he'll find nothing but black stockings on the mantel.

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, March 30 — It now looks as if the poverty-stricken Navajo Indians, trying to scratch a precarious living from the wastelands of Arizona and New Mexico, may own one of the most priceless pieces of property in the U.S.A.

For some time our chief worry in the production of atomic energy was the fact that all uranium deposits lay outside the United States. However, it now appears that the Navajos have been tending their pitiful flocks above a hidden atomic treasure. For, upon the Navajo reservation in the upper corner of Arizona and New Mexico, the Vanadium Corporation of America has been quietly extracting uranium.

Further details regarding this operation must remain a military secret. However, one amazing fact can be revealed. So far, the Navajos haven't received one penny for the uranium taken from their land. Instead, the profits have been raked in by the Vanadium Corporation.

The price which the atomic energy commission is paying the Vanadium Corporation for uranium is also secret, but a member of the joint congressional committee on atomic energy predicted that the metal may become almost as precious as diamonds. Since the richest deposits are all outside the United States and could be cut off in case of war, this domestic supply becomes all the more valuable.

But the Navajos, sitting on one of nature's jackpots, so far haven't been able to collect a cent. Reason for this again is largely obscured by secrecy, and only part of the story can be told within the limits of national security.

For one thing, uranium does not exist in its pure form on the reservation but must be extracted as a by-product from vanadium. The only leases to dig for vanadium on Navajo territory—six in all—are held by the Vanadium Corporation. These leases specify that the Indians will be paid 10 per cent royalty on all mineral compounds—except vanadium compounds. In the latter case, the royalty is stipulated as 10 per cent of the vanadium oxide, a metal used to toughen steel. Since uranium is part of the raw vanadium ore until processed, the company conceivably might get away with paying royalty only on the comparatively valueless vanadium oxide, not on the other raw vanadium out of which uranium comes.

However, the Indian service takes the view that uranium is a separate metal apart from vanadium, therefore is subject to the full 10 per cent royalty fee. But the amount of uranium taken from the reservation is unknown to the Indian service which hasn't any record of a single royalty payment to the Navajos for uranium. Yet the Vanadium corporation is known to have been extracting it for several years.

The Vanadium Corporation declined all comment on the grounds that its uranium project is top secret. But the Atomic Energy Commission informed this coolumnist that on the amount of royalty payments no secrecy is involved.

Lewis Will Fight

John L. Lewis has told close friends that he is set to go to the Supreme Court to test the constitutionality of the Taft-Hartley Labor Act.

Lewis firmly believes that the Taft-Hartley provision compelling workers to return to their jobs by injunction—if a strike endangers the nation's welfare—is unconstitutional.

Therefore, if an injunction is obtained against Lewis's striking United Mine Workers members, the mine labor boss intends to fight it right up to the Supreme Court.

"This is not so much a fight against mine operators," Lewis told an intimate. "It's a fight against the Taft-Hartley Act. I want a showdown and I won't give up until I get one."

MacArthur's Censorship

When Harry Truman was chairman of the Senate War Investigating committee he came near blasting one piece of wartime censorship. If he had, it would have cast a somewhat different light on one of his present political opponents—Douglas MacArthur. But he didn't.

Wartime censorship sometimes operated in a peculiar manner. The manner in which U.S. plaens were caught napping and burned on the ground at Pearl Harbor was known to the world and the military commanders responsible were severely reprimanded. But the manner in which General MacArthur's bombers were also caught napping at Manila and burned on the ground was censored.

Three hundred planes, sent to Manila at great sacrifice to U.S. air forces in other areas, were lost as a result. MacArthur had been demanding that planes be sent him instead of going to beleagured England, at that time unmercifully pounded by Nazi air attacks.

But though MacArthur had a special warning that the Japs were attacking, while Pearl Harbor didn't, he left his 300 planes helpless on the ground.

The Truman committee, discovering this fact, devoted two paragraphs to it in a quarterly report dated March 4, 1944. The copies of the report were in type and circulated confidentially to committee members, when three senators—Hatch of New Mexico and Connally of Texas, Democrats; with Ball of Minnesota, Republican — objected. Truman yielded to their objection and withdrew the criticism of MacArthur.

The two censored paragraphs read:

"Censorship is an insult to the patrotism and intelligence of the American people. In the past, it has led to many unwise acts, such as the concealing of facts known to the enemy, and even the dissemination of distorted information. For example, the Japanese knew perfectly well the destruction they had wreaked upon our airplanes in the Philippines, but for two years the War Department requested that it be kept a secret from the public that 300 planes were destroyed on Philippine airfields a number of hours after the attack on Pearl Harbor was known.

"The loss was only recently made public, and there is at least a suspicion that part of the reason for requesting the committee to consider the information 'secret' was the desire to avoid resentment by the public of the loss of 300 planes which would have been so valuable to the defense of the Philippines."

Merry-Go-Round

Quoth ex-Congressman Maury Maverick after returning to San Antonio following several months in Los Angeles: "I love my worst Texas enemy more than my best California friend." . . . Payne Ratner, ex-governor of Kansas, recently dropped in to see Capt Howard Yeager, efficient aide to chief of naval operations Adm. Louis Denfield, asked Yeager to use his influence with his father-in-law, Roy Bailey, publisher of the Salina, Kans., Journal, in favor of Sen. Arthur Capper. Ratner admitted Kansas didn't have much of a choice between Capper and his G.O.P. primary opponent, Andy Schoeppel, but claimed Capper was the lesser of two evils. Replied Captain Yeager: "My job is the Navy, not running my father-in-law's politics."

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK, March 30—(INS)—The stories from Bucharest said that communist-bloc candidates attracted 93 per cent of the popular vote when Romanians went to the polls last week to elect a new parliament.

What they neglected to say—probably because to have said so would have meant that the credentials of the reporters would have been picked up—is that the election followed the identical pattern which was imposed upon Poland just a little over a year ago.

It is a pattern which will be followed in Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria and, when the time comes, Finland. It is being attempted in Italy but the result there probably will be different—for the communists do not control the police and the army.

In Poland, where the Reds were able to take the police with the consent of Roosevelt and Churchill —and easily able to hold them in face of what Stalin privately scorned as "paper protests" from their successors — the communist bloc parties won by about the same margin as they won in Romania last week.

It is a simple process. The victims themselves cannot protest without being killed, imprisoned or ruined, and the United Nations cannot act because Russia can veto out of existence any decision on the part of all the other nations to whip the aggressor.

The 93 per cent margin in Romania was arbitrarily established weeks in advance of the actual balloting. The Communists could have chosen any figure up to 100 per cent. By choosing an odd number they hope—as they did in the electoral rape of Poland to persuade some sectors of the free world to believe that the count actually turned out as announced. In Poland they reduced the faked count on the election to the decimal point stage.

Once in possession of a country's ministry of interior, the communists can rule indefinitel. New laws or rules are rushed through enabling the Security Police to make arrests without warrants or such other requisites as free peoples demand.

Then the democratic parties are systematically eliminated. They are first deprived of newsprint, radio time. Their periodicals are heavily censored, or—on the threat of complete foreclosure—forced to print materials that lauds the Communists.

Police take over protest meetings of recognized democratic parties—usually provincial meetings, at the start—arrest the district leaders, and then introduce (and pass) motions either disbanding the local organization or turning its further direction over to Reds.

Special commissions are set up to control working conditions, housing, taxation and other facets of the nation's life. Each large factory, mine or office gets a political adviser. Workers who rebel against the tightening of the vise, or continue membership in a democratic party, are fired. A man without a job is deprived of his food ration card and his housing permit. His family suffers the same economic blow. He can find no other work until he yields in his stand against the armed minority.

Small business men who persist in belonging to democratic parties find special taxes confiscating their property, or they are sent off to a slave labor camp for two years "for black-marketing." Unless, of course, they recant and publicly denounce the democratic leaders who brought them to their ruin.

Factory and office workers are assembled and told they must "vote voluntarily" — which means vote openly. At an appointed time they are marched to the polling place, sometimes with music, and always under armed guard. They must hold their ballots above their heads, so that the guards can plainly see that they are voting for the Communist bloc.

The Communist bloc may be made up of half a dozen parties bearing fine old democratic names, but they mean nothing. In Poland, for instance, the head of the new Christian Labor Party, completely Communist-dominated, was an atheist and convicted abortionist.

Several parties are always permitted to remain outside the Communist bloc, but their independence is a fiction. They are told to stay outside and present their so-called independent candidates, only to give the west the illusion that the election, in the corroded words of Yalta is "free and unfettered." In Poland's case, two such parties—the Polish Peasant Party (new liberation) and the Catholic Progressive Party—were formed a few weeks before the election and disbanded immediately thereafter.

All candidates for the parliaments of Red-controlled countries must have at least 100 sponsors who are registered members of the party concerned. When the independent candidates present their lists, the sponsors are arrested. By a variety of NKVD tortures, a certain number will be forced to withdraw in order to save their lives and the lives of their families. When the number drops below 100, the candidate is no longer eligible to run. The Reds had 141 candidates of the courageously Independent Polish Peasant Party in jail during the 1947 elections.

On the day of the election, those who have been beaten into voting for the Communist bloc are admitted to the polling places first. Doors are often locked on the others. And if the actual balloting does not come up to the prescribed margin of victory, the dissenting ballots are burned and their totals added to the Communists.

U. S.-Russo State Of Affairs Cannot Go On Indefinitely

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, March 30. — Are the United States and Russia in a technical state of war already or is the present position one of undeclared war?

So far as previous international law is concerned, the United States has accused Russia of violating agreements and has also condemned the Soviet regime as an aggressor state.

In the press of this country Russia is openly referred to as a potential if not an actual enemy.

Congress has appropriated money to be used in the Middle East to help arm the troops of Greece as against irregular forces known to be sponsored or equipped by governments in the Balkans which are under Soviet control.

The President of the United States, moreover, in a message to Congress — which, under the constitution, alone has the power to declare war or authorize the use of armed forces — has asked for funds and for revival of the system of Selective Service which is the method of conscription used by America in the last two wars.

Japan did not declare war on the United States before making an attack on American territory at Pearl Harbor, and the Congress of the United States voted in December 1941 merely to recognize a "state of war" which had already begun.

Lack of War Not Decisive Factor

The war powers possessed by the President, some of which have not been repealed, were originally voted by Congress in connection with the war against Germany. There is no authorization to use these same war powers in a war against a nation which hitherto has been an ally.

The fact that direct hostilities have not commenced is not in any way a decisive factor in interpreting the present status. For there is military action and support being given by Russia in Greece and also by the United States in that same country. Heretofore this would have been regarded as an unfriendly act and as a basis for breaking off diplomatic relations by one nation or the other.

Theoretically the American government is merely assisting the Greek government at its request, but actually the United States and Russia are engaged in the same theater of operations.

Recently the Secretary of the Army cautioned all members of his service below the policy-making office not to refer to Russia as an enemy. But is is apparent that officers of the government and the President himself do not make any bones about calling Russia an aggressor and characterizing it as a government that is bent on breaking the peace

This state of affairs cannot drift on without some explicit definition. Every now and then exports are sent to Russia and the explanation is made that Russia and the U. S. are still friendly nations. But this distinction is not clear because most Americans feel that, if Russia is a potential enemy, she should not receive any exports of war-making materials or equipment.

Showdown Is Inevitable

The present anomalous position of the two biggest powers in the world may be continued deliberately by both sides until the time for a showdown comes, though eventually such a showdown is inevitable. Whether war or an era of peace will follow cannot be conjectured, but it is a safe assumption that, if the American people continue to distrust the Russian government and the Moscow regime feels distrustful of the U. S., there will be no chance for the United Nations to function or any settlement to be made short of war.

Old-fashioned diplomacy was often sneered at as secret but it did manage to keep the peace longer than two or three years after a major war. There are many experienced diplomats who feel something is wrong in the contact between Moscow and Washington and who think a peaceful settlement could yet be made. Even the recent approach of the Russian government to an American diplomatic officer met a rebuff that has not been explained.

The use of the phrase "cold war" has been misleading. The present is a period where measures "short of war" are being employed. It certainly resembles the 1939-1941 pre-war period, with Russia taking the place of Germany as the aggressor and potential enemy.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Vinegar Joe's Story

When I heard that General Joseph W. Stilwell's experiences in China were to be published, I anticipated a vicious, bitter attack on Chiang Kai-shek. For Stilwell and Chiang never understood each other, were temperamentally and by training unsuited to work together, and finally were separated in an outburst of anger.

However, as I read his memoirs in the current issue of the "Ladies' Home Journal," I find a repetition of the impressions of Franklin D. Roosevelt that have already appeared in the Byrnes, Farley, Flynn, Hull and Stimson memoirs, which, in effect, comes down to this:

Roosevelt tried to do everything himself, was not always informed, played all sides against the middle, and kept his subordinates and associates in a gay but disastrous chaos.

What General Stilwell has to say of Chiang Kai-shek, whom he calls "Peanut," Madame Chiang Kai-shek, Madame H. H. Kung and T. V. Soong is mere private judgment of persons he did not understand and did not like. I have known these four individuals longer and more intimately than General Stilwell. I knew them not only when they achieved position but also when they were young and not involved in great affairs. General Stilwell has overdrawn their very human weaknesses; he has not even approached the strength and character which stimulated a creative power, making it possible for Chiang, in 1925, to move in on anarchy in Canton, following Sun Yat-sen's death; fighting through the Communist revolution of 1925-7, when Soviet Russia was actually directing the affairs of China through Michael Borodin and General Galens-Bleucher, experimenting in China with the devices which were finally perfected in Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Nor does Stilwell say a word of the genius in compromise which made it possible for Chiang to force feudal lords and revolutionary generals, any one of whom was more powerful than he was, to accept his leadership and to recognize the authority of the Nanking government. I know of these things because I took part in them.

Nor does Stilwell explain how it could be that Chiang was able to hold China together against all the power and might of Japan from September 18, 1931, to December 7, 1941, when Pearl Harbor brought us into the war. China and Chiang stood alone those ten years, fighting as best they could, betrayed by Chinese feudal lords and politicians and by the very Communists whom Stilwell would have had Chiang include in his government.

Nor does Stilwell explain the current phenomenon (he could not, of course, as he is dead) that despite a war with Soviet Russia, despite abandonment by the United States due to George Marshall's mistaken notions, despite a devastating infiltration which originated in an unfortunate American silver policy and crazy British and American ideas concerning managed currencies, Chiang Kai-shek still stands and China has not been conquered by either Japan or Soviet Russia.

To me, the interesting fact is that General Stilwell discloses how miserably we assisted Chiang Kai-shek during the war. Stilwell wrote his wife:

". . . You know I have a little job to do over here, so I asked for a few tools to do it with. I have tried it once without any tools and it didn't work, so I reminded our folks of some promises and made what I though was a very modest request. You should have seen the answer. Peanut and I are on a raft, with one sandwich between us, and the rescue ship is heading away from the scene. . . ."

Again he wrote her:

". . . Got back from Cairo day before yesterday, we got the usual answers down there and after Bloody Joe (Stalin) got through laying down the law up there at Teheran, we were lucky to get away with our shirts."

When Franklin D. Roosevelt was speaking to the American people of what we were doing for China, we were not doing it. General Stilwell, his successor, General Wedemeyer, Pat Hurley were sent there to arouse hopes but were not permitted to produce results and they wondered that Chiang Kai-shek, who knew the problem, was shocked that they were granting Soviet Russia the power to conquer China through the Chinese Communists!

It all adds to the record of Franklin D. Roosevelt's duplicity.

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

Billy Rose

Every spring, day and date with the first pussywillow, I get to daydreaming about world's fairs.

Remembering the pretty music played by the Aquacade cash registers, I naturally yen to get mixed up with at least one more midway before they put me out to pasture.

But as of right now, no one is even contemplating a fair. And for two good reasons—(a) some loony may drop the big bomb and disintegrate most of the customers, and (b) building costs have gotten mixed up with astronomy, and even Ed Pauley hasn't enough dough to finance an exposition.

The only fellow I know of who is actually trying to promote a postwar fair is a Mexcian gentleman named Senor Rubio Gonzelez y Lopez. And it's about time this caballero got some publicity.

A couple of years ago, an ambassador called on me. I think he said he was from Honduras, but I'm not sure—my geography gets a little hazy south of Macy's basement. In an accent you could cut with a rusty machete, the ambassador informed me he represented important interests which were planning a world's fair in Mexico City. Would Senor Rose be interested in heading up this peso-laden proposition? Could he leave for Mexico immediately?

I told his excellency Senor Rose would be interested indeed, but before investing in that kind of carfare, he wanted an official invitation from the Mexican Government.

"But of course, amigo," said the ambassador. "And when the exposition opens, I trust you will not forget the man who brought you word of this bonanza."

A week later the mailman dropped off an envelope large enough to hold a high school diploma. And sure enough, the seal of the Mexican Government was embossed on a piece of stationery that must have cost fifty cents a sheet. The invitation was signed by the brother of a former Mexican President, and the most conservative sentence in the document informed me all Mexico awaited my arrival.

I reached for the three phones on my desk.

"Pack your huraches," I told Eleanor. "We're heading for the border."

"Phone Paramount on the West Coast," I said to the switchboard girl, "and ask them to lend me Dorothy Lamour for six months. Tell them I'm going to stage 'The Conquest of Mexico.'"

"Dig up a geologist," I instructed my secretary, "and find out if he can fix it for Mt. Popocatepetl to erupt on schedule."

When Eleanor and I climbed out of the plane at the Mexico City airport a few days later, I could feel my hatband giving way. Waiting to glad-hand us was Senor Gonzalez y Lopez, three generals, and six motorcycle cops. Gonzalez handed Eleanor enough gardenias to blanket a gangster's grave, and then let go with a few thousand words on Pan-American cultural relations.

"Aren't you glad you married me?" I whispered to my missus.

"There may be less to this than meets the eye," said Eleanor.

We got into a long, black, supercharged something, and with the sirens open, were driven to Mr. Blumenthal's Hotel Reforma. "I hope Senor Rose will not be offended if I place my car and chauffer at his disposal," said Gonzalez.

"Senor Rose is not easily offended," I assured him.

When we got to the hotel, Gonzalez informed me he had arranged an appointment for me to see the Governor that afternoon. "It is important you arouse his official interest," said the man with the two last names.

"I don't get it," I said. "I thought official interest had been aroused. Anyhow, I think I ought to see the fair site first."

After lunch and more speeches, Gonzalez, Eleanor and I set out for the site. A few miles south of the new bull ring, we turned off on a dirt road, cut across a dried-up creek, and headed into the open country.

"It's a little cooler here," said Eleanor. "I think we just passed the Equator."

Several hundred bumps later, we got to a hill which featured an interesting assortment of sun-baked rocks. "We will walk from here," said Gonzalez. "It is not too far."

"We might get lost, Pop," said Eleanor. "Shouldn't we tie a rope to each other's legs?"

On top of the hill we found ourselves looking down on a dried mud valley. On the far side, some skinny goats were nibbling on a sign which read, "Vote for Aleman."

"This is the site," said Gonzalez, "and if we need more land we can option it for a few cents an acre." He pointed in the general direction of the Gulf of Mexico.

I sat down on a rock. It was a very hard rock.

"An interesting location," I said, "but how will the customers get out here?"

"That is why you must see the Governor,'" smiled Gonzalez. "He must build roads. Also a railroad."

"An exposition uses a lot of water," I said. "I don't see any pipes."

"Maybe there is water beneath," said Gonzalez. "Anyhow, my countrymen prefer tequilla."

"How about sanitation?" I asked. "You'll have to get rid of thousands of tons of refuse every twenty-four hours."

Gonzalez thought for a moment. "We can throw it away," he said.

"A world's fair figures to cost a hundred million dollars," I said. "Where's the money coming from?"

"From America, of course," said Gonzalez. "General Motors and General Electric will rent space for exhibits."

"Very neat," I said. "Incidentally, who owns this land?"

Gonzalez brightened up. "I do," he said.

On the way back to Mexico City, I pointed out to Gonzalez that world's fairs were essentially civic enterprises run on a non-profit basis. When I said, "Non-profit," the entrepreneur winced as if I had called his mother a bad name.

As we shook hands at the hotel, Gonzalez prophesied I would some day regret my decision not to speak to the Governor.

A minute later I did.

When the Senor left, the car and chauffeur he had put at my disposal left with him.

Remembering the pretty music played by the Aquacade cash registers, I naturally yen to get mixed up with at least one more midway before they put me out to pasture.

But as of right now, no one is even contemplating a fair. And for two good reasons—(a) some loony may drop the big bomb and disintegrate most of the customers, and (b) building costs have gotten mixed up with astronomy, and even Ed Pauley hasn't enough dough to finance an exposition.

The only fellow I know of who is actually trying to promote a postwar fair is a Mexcian gentleman named Senor Rubio Gonzelez y Lopez. And it's about time this caballero got some publicity.

A couple of years ago, an ambassador called on me. I think he said he was from Honduras, but I'm not sure—my geography gets a little hazy south of Macy's basement. In an accent you could cut with a rusty machete, the ambassador informed me he represented important interests which were planning a world's fair in Mexico City. Would Senor Rose be interested in heading up this peso-laden proposition? Could he leave for Mexico immediately?

I told his excellency Senor Rose would be interested indeed, but before investing in that kind of carfare, he wanted an official invitation from the Mexican Government.

"But of course, amigo," said the ambassador. "And when the exposition opens, I trust you will not forget the man who brought you word of this bonanza."

A week later the mailman dropped off an envelope large enough to hold a high school diploma. And sure enough, the seal of the Mexican Government was embossed on a piece of stationery that must have cost fifty cents a sheet. The invitation was signed by the brother of a former Mexican President, and the most conservative sentence in the document informed me all Mexico awaited my arrival.

I reached for the three phones on my desk.

"Phone Paramount on the West Coast," I said to the switchboard girl, "and ask them to lend me Dorothy Lamour for six months. Tell them I'm going to stage 'The Conquest of Mexico.'"

"Dig up a geologist," I instructed my secretary, "and find out if he can fix it for Mt. Popocatepetl to erupt on schedule."

When Eleanor and I climbed out of the plane at the Mexico City airport a few days later, I could feel my hatband giving way. Waiting to glad-hand us was Senor Gonzalez y Lopez, three generals, and six motorcycle cops. Gonzalez handed Eleanor enough gardenias to blanket a gangster's grave, and then let go with a few thousand words on Pan-American cultural relations.

"Aren't you glad you married me?" I whispered to my missus.

"There may be less to this than meets the eye," said Eleanor.

We got into a long, black, supercharged something, and with the sirens open, were driven to Mr. Blumenthal's Hotel Reforma. "I hope Senor Rose will not be offended if I place my car and chauffer at his disposal," said Gonzalez.

"Senor Rose is not easily offended," I assured him.

When we got to the hotel, Gonzalez informed me he had arranged an appointment for me to see the Governor that afternoon. "It is important you arouse his official interest," said the man with the two last names.

"I don't get it," I said. "I thought official interest had been aroused. Anyhow, I think I ought to see the fair site first."

After lunch and more speeches, Gonzalez, Eleanor and I set out for the site. A few miles south of the new bull ring, we turned off on a dirt road, cut across a dried-up creek, and headed into the open country.

"It's a little cooler here," said Eleanor. "I think we just passed the Equator."

Several hundred bumps later, we got to a hill which featured an interesting assortment of sun-baked rocks. "We will walk from here," said Gonzalez. "It is not too far."

"We might get lost, Pop," said Eleanor. "Shouldn't we tie a rope to each other's legs?"

On top of the hill we found ourselves looking down on a dried mud valley. On the far side, some skinny goats were nibbling on a sign which read, "Vote for Aleman."

"This is the site," said Gonzalez, "and if we need more land we can option it for a few cents an acre." He pointed in the general direction of the Gulf of Mexico.

I sat down on a rock. It was a very hard rock.

"An interesting location," I said, "but how will the customers get out here?"

"That is why you must see the Governor,'' smiled Gonzalez. "He must build roads. Also a railroad."

"An exposition uses a lot of water," I said. "I don't see any pipes."

"Maybe there is water beneath," said Gonzalez. "Anyhow, my countrymen prefer tequilla."

"How about sanitation?" I asked. "You'll have to get rid of thousands of tons of refuse every twenty-four hours."

Gonzalez thought for a moment. "We can throw it away," he said.

"A world's fair figures to cost a hundred million dollars," I said. "Where's the money coming from?"

"From America, of ccurse," said Gonzalez. "General Motors and General Electric will rent space for exhibits."

"Very neat," I said. "Incidentally, who owns this land?"

Gonzalez brightened up. "I do," he said.

On the way back to Mexico City, I pointed out to Gonzalez that world's fairs were essentially civic enterprises run on a non-profit basis. When I said, "Non-profit," the entrepreneur winced as if I had called his mother a bad name.

As we shook hands at the hotel, Gonzalez prophesied I would some day regret my decision not to speak to the Governor.

A minute later I did.

Naval Recruiter Re-enlists Here

Chief Machinist Mate R. G. Belnap, naval recruiter for the Cumberland area for the past several months, has re-enlisted for two more years, it was announced Tuesday, following a quarterly inspection of the Post Office headquarters .

Belnap, a native of Dover, Ohio, has served the Navy for 10 previous years and participated in several battles during the last World War.

Making the quarterly inspection Tuesday was Lt. Cmdr. F. J. Coulter, officer in charge of the Baltimore recruiting office and Lt. J. Marshall. A satisfactory report was given the local office.

Although it isn't definite as yet, Chief Belnap said that the March quota of enlistments would probably be met, but that definite word from Baltimore is expected today.

1,200 Persons File For Idle Benefits

The sharp curtailment of production at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company plant this week caused the heaviest filing for unemployment benefits since June, 1943, when some 5,000 Celanese workers were thrown out of work by an explosion at the plant.

Francis A. Kenney, manager of the Unemployment Compensation Division of the State Department of Unemployment Security, estimated yesterday some 1,200 workers applied for benefits.

The tire company cut production schedules almost 90 per cent this week due to a sharp slump in tire orders and to allow certain mechanical changes to be made at the plant. Production is expected to return to normal next week.

Next week the 12000 must check in at the unemployment office a second time to file their claim. Benefits range from $6 to $25.

Local Stockyards Report Good Run

The Cumberland Stock Yards, Inc., reported a good run yesterday, but said the market was not as strong as last week's offerings except for chickens. The market report:

Steer cattle 23-24 cents; stock cattle 20-23½; heifers 21½-23½; heiferettes 19-21; bulls 19-22.70; good butcher cows 16½-18½; medium cows 14-16; Shelly kind 12-14.

County Gets Complaints On Blocked Summit Road

County Commissioners William H. Lemmert and James Holmes stated Tuesday that they had received many complaints concerning the blocking of the Vale Summit Road for a strip mining concern.

Lemmert said the road is maintained by the State Roads Commission, and permission was granted by that group to begin the strip mining operation. In the meantime, traffic is being detoured over a county-maintained road.

The Vale Summit Road is expected to be closed but a short time, and according to the Commission, it will be restored and probably will be in better shape than before.

County Health Budget Is Lower

Dr. Winter R. Frantz, county health officer, submitted the budget of the County Health Department for the new fiscal period to the Board of Allegany County Commissioners yesterday.

The budget shows a decrease in the department's financial needs over the current levy of nearly $6,000.

Dr. Frantz submitted his budget for a 12-months period and also for a 15-months period. The Board is considering the 15-month levy to bring the county in line with the state's new plan of uniform accounting.

The County Health Department, Dr. Frantz indicated, will require $18,071.93 for salaries and other expenses for the regular 12-month period, or $22,598.91 for a 15-month period. The current levy for 1947-48 fiscal year appropriated the Health Department $25,000.

Charles N. Wilkinson, Jr., president of the county commissioners, said it was necessary to buy the health department some new automobiles this year, which accounted for the higher appropriation.

Dr. Frantz explained that his budgets include the salaries of the health officer, an assistant health officer, nurse supervisor, three public health nurses, sanitary inspector, two clerks, laboratory assistants, car expense, clinic and laboratory expense, dental clinic, drugs and anti-toxin, and $1,500 for painting and redecorating the public health offices.

Two Pay Fines Here On Disorderly Charge

Donald Renotas, 125 Polk Street, and George Harvey, Windsor Hotel, were found guilty of creating a disturbance in the Capitol Lunch on North Mechanic Street early Tuesday and were fined $5 in Police Court.

John C. Liakos, proprietor of the restaurant, said he called police when the fight started shortly after midnight.

Tract Of Timber Destroyed By Fire

A forest fire destroyed about seven acres of woodlands Monday night at the Billmyer State Game Refuge between Green Ridge Mountain and Town Hill, William A. Parr, district forester, has announced.

U. S. Department of Agriculture reserach workers have some promising new varieties of strawberries which have not been given names. They will be tested further before being released for commercial production. The experimenters found that the vitamin C content of vine ripened berries is higher than when half-red berries are picked.

Horace Whitworth Named To County Liquor Board

Westernport Lawyer Given Appointment

Horace P. Whitworth, Sr., Westernport attorney and member of the Allegany County Board of Education, was appointed yesterday to fill the vacancy on the Allegany County Liquor Control Board created by the death of Henry Sweene.

The appointment was made by Walter C. Capper, chairman, and Fred Crowe, secretary of the three-man board, in compliance with the law which provides that the surviving members of the board shall make appointments to fill vacancies. Whitworth is to serve the three years remaining of Mr. Sweene's unexpired term. His appointment places two attorneys on the board, since Capper is also a member of the Bar.

Whitworth is a native of Westernport, and was born there December 18, 1882. In 1902 he entered the Maryland Law School and finished the three year course in two years and was one of three honor men in his class. He was admitted to the practice of law in 1904 in this county.

He is regarded as successful in his profession and numbers several corporations among his clientele. He has always been an active member of the Republican party. He served as mayor of Westernport in 1906-07-08, and in 1909 was a candidate for State Senator from Allegany County, but was defeated by Fred N. Zihlman. He has also served as chairman of the Republican State Central Committee of Allegany County, and as attorney to the County Board of Commissioners.

His son, Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., is also a well known attorney and is chairman of the county delegation to the General Assembly.

Whitworth will take office as a member of the board officially, April 1, according to Crowe.

The appointment of Whitworth was made from a list of 28 applicants who sought the $2,000 per year job.

Robert C. Pollock, Mt. Savage; J. William Beck, 170 Church Street, Westernport; Wesley Sleeman, Mt. Savage; Joseph P. Montana, Eckhart; Odith M. Brotemarkle, 114 Arch Street, and John M. Robb, 18 Washington Street.

Longevity Pay Is Restored To Guard

Over 100 veteran Maryland National Guardsmen in Headquarters Company and Company C of the 1st Battalion, 115th Infantry, here, will participate in a general National Guard pay increase approved yesterday by President Truman.

About 1,200 Maryland Guardsmen are included, it was indicated last night, as this is the estimate of the number of men with sufficient service to qualify for the increase.

Under the new regulation, five per cent increase in base pay is awarded for each three years of service in any branch of the armed forces. Known as longevity pay, or to the soldier as "foggies," for each three-year enlistment, the plan has been dropped since the war for the National Guard.

To put the National Guard on the same footing as the Army, and to encourage enlistments and re-enlistments, the longevity pay system has been re-established, it was explained.

Dates Announced For Guard Camp

August 23 to September 3, inclusive, has been designated as the period of summer training encampment for Maryland National Guardsmen at Camp Ritchie, Cascade, Capt. Robert Powell of Headquarters Company, First Battalion, 115th Infantry, said last night.

Capt. Powell said an effort will be made to enlist a number of additional men in the two local guard units between now and the annual camping period, so as many young men as possible will receive the benefits of the annual outing and field training.

Men past the age of 17, who are in good physical condition, residents of Maryland and of good character and reputation will be considered for enlistment upon application at the Armory, South Centre Street, Capt. Powell explained.

Yellow rosebud corsages, symbolizing the sorority flower, were presented to Miss Bonig, Mrs. Witherup, Miss Lippold, Mrs. Ruehl and Mrs. Clifford E. Gainer, Keyser, W. Va., social sponsor of Omicron Chapter.

The sorority plans to conduct similar contests each year. No contest was held for 1946.

General Assembly, is made available from Class A and Class D automobile licensing. The law provides that the amount of licensing fees which must be transferred to the Board of Education by the County Commissioners is that portion of the amount returned from the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles represented by the ratio of the tax levied for school purposes to the total county levy. That amount for the current year is 42.11 per cent of $59,222.99 or $24,938.80.

"It is estimated that the amount will be the same for next year, and it has consequently been included under receipts."

Tractor Course Planned For County Farm Boys

Guy W. Gienger, associate extension agriculture engineer of the University of Maryland, will meet with Boys 4-H Club leaders Thursday at 8 p. m. at the Court House to discuss plans for a course in tractor maintenance.

Joseph M. Steger, assistant county farm agent, said yesterday that Roy Shryock, Oldtown, took the course last February at the University, and will assist in arranging the program here.

Steger expalins that the course will cover all phases of maintenance of tractors and will be held one afternoon or one night a week for five or six weeks.

Co-operation of farm equipment firms is being sought and other details will be worked out at the meeting tomorrow, Steger explained. He expressed the view that there will be considerable interest in the course, since more farms in this area have tractors or plan to get them.

Two Men Apprehended On Mechanic Street

Saigon Gamblers Pay $20,000 A Day

SAIGON—(AP)—Legalized gaming has returned to Saigon and the large Chinese city nearby, Cholon. The concession to operate the games of chance was awarded by the Provisional Government of Cochin, China, to a syndicate, largely made up of Chinese for a daily payment of 262,000 Indochinese piastres (about $20,000 U. S.). The syndicate also operates the largest dance hall and amusement park in Cholon.

One Saigon newspaper, the French language Le Populaire, protested the award, asserting it was made only two days after bids were called for, and that sufficient time was not given to groups interested in submitting proposals.

The Sportlight

they hustle. Those are the two 'musts' on my ball club.

"My old Cardinals were in condition, and they all hustled. All of them—Slaughter, Medwick, Marion, Kurowski, Moore, etc. And I can tell you this—my Brave team is in good physical condition and I hope it will outhustle any team in the league. I know this—no team will outhustle us.

"We have a sound squad—not a brilliant one. Like everyone else, we could use a few more good players—maybe an extra outfielder, infielder and pitcher. But we'll have a ball club that has just about as good a chance to win the pennant as anyone else in a tough race.

"Maybe we haven't the power the Giants have, and they have plenty. Maybe we haven't the experience and the number or fine starting pitchers the Cardinals have—eight or nine. Maybe we haven't the youth and speed that Brooklyn has, but we have a ball club just as well-rounded.

If one or two things happen—that I think might happen—we can get hotter than the crater of Vesuvius. This is the year at least four clubs are shooting for the pennant. Don't forget that. Not to run two-three-four. To run first."

An Odd Dodger Angle

A year ago under Burt Shotton, the Dodgers won the National League pennant, going away. They came within a game of winning the world series, even when they were outclassed. They had no pitcher who could go beyond four innings. Burt Shotton was the hero there.

Now I find that few National League managers are picking the Dodgers to win. This may be due to a rather wide dislike of Branch Rickey and Leo Durocher, who are far from being popular, for one reason or another, whether right or wrong. I don't believe Rickey or Durocher care, as long as the cash rolls in.

For example, when I asked Billy Southworth how he rated the National League pennant race, Billy picked the Cardinals and the Giants as the two teams to beat.

"The Cardinals are the experienced, sound squad, pitching and all," he said. "The Giants have the power. With one or two good pitchers they can tear this league apart. They have the star outfield." (Frank Frisch says this Giant outfield is the best he ever saw, and Frisch has been around. I know Southworth rates the Braves close around the top.)

"How about the Dodgers?" I asked.

"The champions of the year before must always be given consideration," he said. "You can't throw them out. I think the Cardinals and Giants are stronger."

It was apparent that Billy Southworth was not sold on the Dodgers repeating.

In the meanwhile, Leo Durocher was quoted by several writers saying this Dodger squad was the greatest he had ever seen. This means that Leo must win the National League pennant by eight or ten games, when you figure last year's finish. Leo is an enthusiast, with everyone but Stanky.

"When Durocher was barred for a year," Stanky told me, "I said there goes my best friend. Then he reached out for the first knife in sight and stabbed me in the back. It was the foulest trick that baseball has ever known."

Anyway, it was hardly the act of a close friend. You should talk to Eddie Stanky to get the true, inside story.

Right or wrong, I feel that Billy Southworth isn't worrying about the Dodgers and all their myriad stars about whom Rickey and Durocher are raving. His main worry now is Eddie Dyer's Cardinals.

Rickey and Durocher had better be much better than just good.

Coal Walkout Delays Pipe Plant Work

Although construction of the concrete pipe plant being built in Ridgeley for the new water line from Lake Gordon to the city was scheduled for completion by April 1, slow delivery of essential parts is delaying the work.

This was reported yesterday by officials of the Lock Joint Pipe Company, who said some parts of the installations on the five and three-quarters acre site are being held up due to slow delivery of steel caused by the coal walkout and resulting railroad tie-up.

A long shed, 150 by 120 feet, will be used to house the molding, pouring and curing operations in making pipe for the 36-inch conduit in the new water main. An estimated 42,000 feet is required for the line.

The Cumberland Contracting Company has been awarded a $744,838 contract to lay the line. Work is expected to start this summer.

only circumstances and the organization itself could determine. What I was doing there was notifying each of several thousand operators that their agent, Mr. Van Horn, was not fulfilling the contract."

Lewis: "I didn't take independent action."

Minton: "You did send a letter March 12 to the officers and members and all the local unions in the bituminous coal industry telling them of your inability to get the (pension) fund activated. That was some independent action you did take, wasn't it?"

Lewis: "No, No.. That letter was a long overdue report to the beneficiaries, the miners, giving them an explanation why they were not getting any benefits from the fund.

Minton: "Now the fuel supply is interrupted. What caused the interruption?"

Lewis: "That had nothing to do with the letter."

A little later, Lewis said:

"If the purpose of your questioning is on the premise that my letter inspired any action by the United Mine Workers, then you are entirely in error."

Lewis contended that "on July 8, 1947, the coal operators contracted for a pension plan and on this day of March, 1948, nine months after, there is no welfare fund, no pension plan, no medical fund and no relief for widows and orphans out of this money.

"That is a very successful record from the standpoint of the greedy operators."

Minton said the board would begin work at once on its report to the White House. He said it would be sent to Mr. Truman tomorrow if possible, and by Friday at the latest.

amendment that it did not require any speeches of persuasion from its backers, once the Foreign Affairs Committee agreed to take it.

In a report recommending the aid bill to the House, the committee said "the possible desirability of readmitting Spain to the family of Western European Nations seems to be growing among the countries of Western Europe and is certainly manifesting itself in opinion in the United States."

Rep. O'Konski (R-Wis) offered the Spanish amendment, calling Spain the "greatest bulwark against Communism in Europe."

Some of the opponents labelled the Franco regime as "Fascist" and said to aid it would be a great mistake.

In another amendment, the House voted overwhelmingly to require that at least half of all goods shipped abroad under the aid program be carried in U.S. Vessels. This was sponsored by Rep. Bradley (R-Calif).

By a standing vote of 165 to 32 it defeated a provision to allow the chartering of 200 American ships to European nations getting American aid. American shipping interests and unions have bitterly fought the chartering provisions which the House today cut out. (The Senate killed a similar provision.)

and "as the means for staving off a depression."

Wallace said the "Truman-Forrestal Doctrine," as he called it, would "whet the appetites" of military leaders until they demanded $40,000,000,000 to $50,000,000,000 a year for arms—"not to protect America but because they want more power."

And he predicted that the stepped-up defense program would raise prices "above the clouds," regiment the people, stifle criticism, freeze wages and "terrorize" the unions.

It was Wallace's second appearance before a Congressional Committee in recent weeks. In earlier testimony to the House Foreign Affairs Committee, he denounced the European Recovery Program as a scheme to destroy liberties at home and abroad and as a blueprint for war.

Horace Whitworth Named To County Liquor Board

Westernport Lawyer Given Appointment

Horace P. Whitworth, Sr., Westernport attorney and member of the Allegany County Board of Education, was appointed yesterday to fill the vacancy on the Allegany County Liquor Control Board created by the death of Henry Sweene.

The appointment was made by Walter C. Capper, chairman, and Fred Crowe, secretary of the three-man board, in compliance with the law which provides that the surviving members of the board shall make appointments to fill vacancies. Whitworth is to serve the three years remaining of Mr. Sweene's unexpired term. His appointment places two attorneys on the board, since Capper is also a member of the Bar.

Whitworth is a native of Westernport, and was born there December 18, 1882. In 1902 he entered the Maryland Law School and finished the three year course in two years and was one of three honor men in his class. He was admitted to the practice of law in 1904 in this county.

He is regarded as successful in his profession and numbers several corporations among his clientele. He has always been an active member of the Republican party. He served as mayor of Westernport in 1906-07-08, and in 1909 was a candidate for State Senator from Allegany County, but was defeated by Fred N. Zihlman. He has also served as chairman of the Republican State Central Committee of Allegany County, and as attorney to the County Board of Commissioners.

His son, Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., is also a well known attorney and is chairman of the county delegation to the General Assembly.

Whitworth will take office as a member of the board officially, April 1, according to Crowe.

The appointment of Whitworth was made from a list of 28 applicants who sought the $2,000 per year job.

Applicants included, in addition to Whitworth, Thomas H. Burke, 122 Greene Street; Raymond G. Messmer, Sr., 1036 Myrtle Street; George F. Sansbury, 604 Washington Street; Maurice Robinette, 759 Maryland Avenue; Oscar C. Gurley, 519 Louisiana Avenue; George E. Longevity Pay Is Restored To Guard

Over 100 veteran Maryland National Guardsmen in Headquarters Company and Company C of the 1st Battalion, 115th Infantry, here, will participate in a general National Guard pay increase approved yesterday by President Truman.

About 1,200 Maryland Guardsmen are included, it was indicated last night, as this is the estimate of the number of men with sufficient service to qualify for the increase.

Under the new regulation, five per cent increase in base pay is awarded for each three years of service in any branch of the armed forces. Known as longevity pay, or to the soldier as "foggies," for each three-year enlistment, the plan has been dropped since the war for the National Guard.

To put the National Guard on the same footing as the Army, and to encourage enlistments and re-enlistments, the longevity pay system has been re-established, it was explained.

Dates Announced For Guard Camp

August 23 to September 3, inclusive, has been designated as the period of summer training encampment for Maryland National Guardsmen at Camp Ritchie, Cascade, Capt. Robert Powell of Headquarters Company, First Battalion, 115th Infantry, said last night.

Capt. Powell said an effort will be made to enlist a number of additional men in the two local guard units between now and the annual camping period, so as many young men as possible will receive the benefits of the annual outing and field training.

Men past the age of 17, who are in good physical condition, residents of Maryland and of good character and reputation will be considered for enlistment upon application at the Armory, South Centre Street, Capt. Powell explained.

Saigon Gamblers Pay $20,000 A Day

SAIGON—(AP)—Legalized gaming has returned to Saigon and the large Chinese city nearby, Cholon. The concession to operate the games of chance was awarded by the Provisional Government of Cochin, China, to a syndicate, largely made up of Chinese for a daily payment of 262,000 Indochinese piastres (about $20,000 U. S.). The syndicate also operates the largest dance hall and amusement park in Cholon.

One Saigon newspaper, the French language Le Populaire, protested the award, asserting it was made only two days after bids were called for, and that sufficient time was not given to groups interested in submitting proposals.

they hustle. Those are the two 'musts' on my ball club.

"My old Cardinals were in condition, and they all hustled. All of them—Slaughter, Medwick, Marion, Kurowski, Moore, etc. And I can tell you this—my Brave team is in good physical condition and I hope it will outhustle any team in the league. I know this—no team will outhustle us.

"We have a sound squad—not a brilliant one. Like everyone else, we could use a few more good players—maybe an extra outfielder, infielder and pitcher. But we'll have a ball club that has just about as good a chance to win the pennant as anyone else in a tough race.

"Maybe we haven't the power the Giants have, and they have plenty. Maybe we haven't the experience and the number or fine starting pitchers the Cardinals have—eight or nine. Maybe we haven't the youth and speed that Brooklyn has, but we have a ball club just as well-rounded.

If one or two things happen—that I think might happen—we can get hotter than the crater of Vesuvius. This is the year at least four clubs are shooting for the pennant. Don't forget that. Not to run two-three-four. To run first."

An Odd Dodger Angle

A year ago under Burt Shotton, the Dodgers won the National League pennant, going away. They came within a game of winning the world series, even when they were outclassed. They had no pitcher who could go beyond four innings. Burt Shotton was the hero there.

Now I find that few National League managers are picking the Dodgers to win. This may be due to a rather wide dislike of Branch Rickey and Leo Durocher, who are far from being popular, for one reason or another, whether right or wrong. I don't believe Rickey or Durocher care, as long as the cash rolls in.

For example, when I asked Billy Southworth how he rated the National League pennant race, Billy picked the Cardinals and the Giants as the two teams to beat.

"The Cardinals are the experienced, sound squad, pitching and all," he said. "The Giants have the power. With one or two good pitchers they can tear this league apart. They have the star outfield." (Frank Frisch says this Giant outfield is the best he ever saw, and Frisch has been around. I know Southworth rates the Braves close around the top.)

"How about the Dodgers?" I asked.

"The champions of the year before must always be given consideration," he said. "You can't throw them out. I think the Cardinals and Giants are stronger."

It was apparent that Billy Southworth was not sold on the Dodgers repeating.

In the meanwhile, Leo Durocher was quoted by several writers saying this Dodger squad was the greatest he had ever seen. This means that Leo must win the National League pennant by eight or ten games, when you figure last year's finish. Leo is an enthusiast, with everyone but Stanky.

"When Durocher was barred for a year," Stanky told me, "I said there goes my best friend. Then he reached out for the first knife in sight and stabbed me in the back. It was the foulest trick that baseball has ever known."

Anyway, it was hardly the act of a close friend. You should talk to Eddie Stanky to get the true, inside story.

Right or wrong, I feel that Billy Southworth isn't worrying about the Dodgers and all their myriad stars about whom Rickey and Durocher are raving. His main worry now is Eddie Dyer's Cardinals.

Rickey and Durocher had better be much better than just good.

Coal Walkout Delays Pipe Plant Work

Although construction of the concrete pipe plant being built in Ridgeley for the new water line from Lake Gordon to the city was scheduled for completion by April 1, slow delivery of essential parts is delaying the work.

This was reported yesterday by officials of the Lock Joint Pipe Company, who said some parts of the installations on the five and three-quarters acre site are being held up due to slow delivery of steel caused by the coal walkout and resulting railroad tie-up.

A long shed, 150 by 120 feet, will be used to house the molding, pouring and curing operations in making pipe for the 36-inch conduit in the new water main. An estimated 42,000 feet is required for the line.

The Cumberland Contracting Company has been awarded a $744,838 contract to lay the line. Work is expected to start this summer.

amendment that it did not require any speeches of persuasion from its backers, once the Foreign Affairs Committee agreed to take it.

In a report recommending the aid bill to the House, the committee said "the possible desirability of readmitting Spain to the family of Western European Nations seems to be growing among the countries of Western Europe and is certainly manifesting itself in opinion in the United States."

Rep. O'Konski (R-Wis) offered the Spanish amendment, calling Spain the "greatest bulwark against Communism in Europe."

Some of the opponents labelled the Franco regime as "Fascist" and said to aid it would be a great mistake.

In another amendment, the House voted overwhelmingly to require that at least half of all goods shipped abroad under the aid program be carried in U.S. Vessels. This was sponsored by Rep. Bradley (R-Calif).

By a standing vote of 165 to 32 it defeated a provision to allow the chartering of 200 American ships to European nations getting American aid. American shipping interests and unions have bitterly fought the chartering provisions which the House today cut out. (The Senate killed a similar provision.)

Wallace Says

Wallace said the "Truman-Forrestal Doctrine," as he called it, would "whet the appetites" of military leaders until they demanded $40,000,000,000 to $50,000,000,000 a year for arms—"not to protect America but because they want more power."

And he predicted that the stepped-up defense program would raise prices "above the clouds," regiment the people, stifle criticism, freeze wages and "terrorize" the unions.

It was Wallace's second appearance before a Congressional Committee in recent weeks. In earlier testimony to the House Foreign Affairs Committee, he denounced the European Recovery Program as a scheme to destroy liberties at home and abroad and as a blueprint for war.

Boxing Weights Juggled

Lewistown Gets 28 Bouts

Three Teams In One Park?

"Rattle" Fleming Dies

By C. V. BURNS

Ed Knepp, heavyweight member of the Lewistown (Pa.) team, who has registered three straight victories here—doesn't like the idea of juggling weights of boxers just for the sake of making the fans believe the boys are evenly matched in avoirdupois.

He cites the Bill Frazier-Elmer Rothrock match on Monday night. The weights were announced as: Frazier 150 and Rothrock 148.

The last time Rothrock boxed here and decisioned Ray Alcorn of Washington he tipped the beam at 147. Three weeks ago Frazier's weight was announced as 158 for his match with Danny Merwood.

Frazier actually outweighed Rothrock 10 pounds in Monday's bout and that seems to be too much of a difference for amateurs.

Matchmaker "Sparky" Chisholm of the Amvets suggested to Knepp that another bout be arranged between Homer Boone and Randall "Skeets" Starkey and Ed replied:

"Homer has whipped him twice and he's Starkey's master so why match them for the third time."

Maybe "Sparky" got his boxing confused with the Shaughnessy playoffs and figured out the series on a best-of-five bouts basis.

Remember the first time the Lewistown amateur team made its appearance here?

Matchmaker John Henry Stitcher brought the Pennsylvanians here for the first time on October 21, 1946 for a Police Boys' Club show at SS. Peter and Paul gym. And it was a bad night for the visitors.

Pat Murphy knocked out Junior Boreman in 44 seconds, Joe Niland TKO'd Elmer Rothrock in the third, Jim Catanese trounced Arky "Tarban" Klinger and Jim Klosterman TKO'd Bill Klinger in the second stanza.

The Keystone State team has appeared in eight local shows. Four times they've won a majority of their bouts and four times they finished on the short end in bouts won.

Lewistown's record in eight Cumberland shows is an even .500 per cent—14 wins and 14 losses.

Ed Knepp leads with a record of 3-0, Homer Boone is runner-up with 5-1 and Rothrock is even-Stephen at 4-4. Rothrock has appeared in all of the shows.

Prognosis, according to Webster's Dictionary, means "a forecast of the probable course and end of a disease."

The Cumberland Amvets baseball team would rather play its home games at Community Park than Taylor Field but feels that three teams—the Eagles, Legion and Amvets—can't crowd their home contests into the Wineow Street park.

Believe it, or not, the three teams could play all their home games at Community Park if both leagues open their season Sunday, April 25, close on Labor Day, Monday, September 6, and the Legion and Eagles agree to play three games as parts of double headers or as single twilight games.

There wouldn't be any open dates on Saturdays but there is plenty of room for playing off postponed games as twilight games with Daylight Saving Time in effect again this summer.

"Rattle" starred on the gridiron and diamond and it was an injury he suffered in the former sport that cut short his athletic career.

He was tackled out-of-bounds at Community Park during a football game between the Ridgeley Firemen and Cumberland Hurricanes and was seriously injured when he leg struck the players' bench on the sidelines. He always walked with a slight limp thereafter.

Fleming drove a Potomac Edison bus for a number of years and played with the P. E. championship baseball team that included Jim Stevenson, Sam Rainey, Joe Buskey, Joe Barley and Lefty Joe Decker.

His brother Phil, who was pitching for the American Legion that year stopped the P.E. winning streak in a 13-inning thriller at Taylor Field.

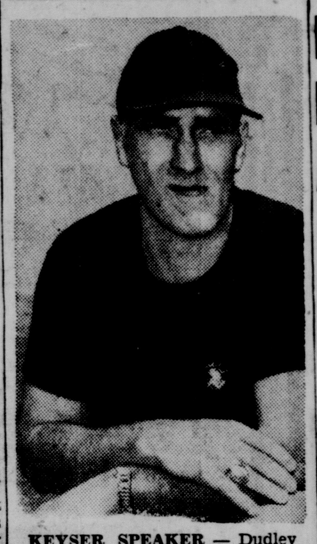
"Rattle" played his first football at Allegany High School and he looked so promising as a baseball player that he received a trial with the Cumberland Colts of the Mid-Atlantic League.

Potomac Valley Team Names Chaney Manager

Oberlin Chaney, well known athlete and athletic instructor at Cresaptown Junior High School, will manage the Potomac Valley softball team of the County League this season.

Chaney appointed John R. Armstrong as assistant manager and called for practice sessions each Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings at 5:30 p. m., prior to the opening of the league season.

Twenty-two candidates for the team met at the home diamond Monday and engaged in a light workout. Several more candidates are expected to try out for the 18-player roster.



KEYSER SPEAKER — Dudley Sargent DeGroot, West Virginia University's new football coach, will be the principal speaker at the dinner honoring Potomac State School's basketball squad tonight at Keyser. DeGroot formerly coached the Los Angeles Dons and Washington Redskins, professional teams. He will be accompanied by Roy M. "Legs" Hawley, athletic director at W. V. U.

Dudley S. DeGroot To Speak Tonight At Potomac State

Cat Cagers Will Be Honored At Dinner

DeGroot will be accompanied by Roy "Legs" Hawley, athletic director of the state university, and James McCartney.

"Dud" as DeGroot is more familiarly known, returns to the collegiate coaching field after four years with the professionals. He was first with the Washington Redskins of the National League and more recently with the Los Angles Dons of the All-America Football Conference. Previous to that he coached for 18 years in college and junior college football.

Before joining the Redskins, DeGroot coached at Rochester University from 1940 to 1943. He also tutored grid teams at Santa Barbara College, Menlo Junior College and San Jose State, which won three Far West Conference titles. Teams coached by DeGroot have won 80 per cent of their games.

West Virginia's new grid mentor made the All-America eleven when he played center at Stanford. He later served as Glenn "Pop" Warner's assistant at the California university. In his college days, "Dud" was also a champion swimmer and was a member of the United States Olympic Rugby team that copped the title in Paris, France, in 1924.

On Monday night, DeGroot addressed a smoker at the Waldo Hotel in Clarksburg, and yesterday he spoke at the Kiwanis Club luncheon there.

Tonight's dinner is scheduled for 7 o'clock in Potomac State's dining room. Approximately 120 persons will attend. Vernon E. Rankin, prosecuting attorney for Mineral county, will be the toastmaster.

LONACONING CLUB PLANS TWO DRILLS

LONACONING, March 30—Larry McKenzie, manager of the Lonaconing Republican Club of the Bi-State Baseball League, has called practice sessions for his squad Wednesday and Friday at 4 p. m. at the Lonaconing ball park.

A meeting of players and fans is scheduled for Friday at 7:30 in the club room.

Mangus To Pilot Reed's, Team Will Meet Tonight

John Mangus has been named manager of Reed's Electricians softball team of the City League and Ray Martin has been appointed coach, it was announced last night.

The team will start practice Thursday at 5:30 p. m. on East Side Field.

A meeting of the team will be held tonight at 7:30 at Reed's office, 346 Baltimore avenue. Holdovers and new candidates for the team are requested to attend.

BAYLOR BEARS IRKED BY SONG ABOUT TEXAS, JEER NANCY WALKER

NEW YORK, March 30 (AP)—The Baylor University Bears are carrying chips on both shoulders today.

Their feelings were ruffled last night when they were drubbed by Kentucky, 77-59, in the semi-finals of the Olympic basketball trials in Madison Square Garden.

The hit song is when star Nancy Walker sings, "I'm Tired of Texas."

The Baylor cagers had to be cautioned by ushers several times to cease their raucous Bronx Cheers" in protest against the song, or else be evicted from the theater.

Dickson Of Cards Hurls No-Hitter Against Yankees

Musial Wallops 3-Run Homer In 7-0 Victory

Murry Dickson

It was the first no hitter in the spring exhibition season since the late Cy Blanton of the Pittsburgh Pirates handcuffed the Cleveland Indians, 6-0, April 9, 1939, in New Orleans.

Dickson, who won 13 and lost 16 for the Cardinals last year, walked five batters today and hit one. He fanned six, including Linus Frey, Ed Stewart and Johnny Lindell who came to the plate in that order in the sixth inning.

Stan Musial smacked a three-run homer off Bevens and later in the frame. Al Schoeneidnst also drove in a trio of mates with a base-clearing double.

The triumph gave the Cardinals a four to three edge in the spring series with the Yankees.

After the fray it was announced that Outfielder Charley Keller, out since last June because of a spinal operation, would be in the Yankees starting lineup on Thursday in hopes of bolstering the New Yorkers' attack. On that day the Yankees will play the Philadelphia Phils.

Tomorrow, however, the Yanks and Cardinals tangle again here.

Score:

ST. LOUIS (N)	700 000 00x	7	0

Bevens Believes Arm Is "Through"

Yank Hurler Suffers Excruciating Pains

ST. PETERSBURG, March 30 (INS)—Floyd (Bill) Bevens, New York Yankee hurler said today that he is "through" pitching because of excruciating pains in his pitching arm.

Bevens, obviously discouraged after being shelled for all seven runs scored by the Cardinals today, rubbed his right arm and said:

Dr. Sidney Gaynor admitted he is puzzled. Dr. Gaynor said that X-rays do not reveal any growth or tear in the right-hander's arm.

Bevens almost achieved baseball immortality in the 1947 world series by pitching 8-⅔ innings of hitless ball against the Brooklyn Dodgers before surrendering a game-winning double to Cookie LaVagetto.

Bevens said that he is going to request the Yankee management to send him to Johns Hopkins Hospital or to Dr. Robert F. Hyland noted St. Louis physician.

The Southworth System

BRADENTON, Fla., March 30—A good many years ago Harvard had a football coach who counted seconds. He planned his working schedule the night before, allotting as many minutes to each form of work. His name was Percy Haughton. Haughton was the most systematic football coach I've ever known.

Today, Boston has another leader who is just as systematic as Haughton used to be. His name is Billy Southworth. I would like to bet a fair amount of money, if I had it, that Southworth is the only manager in baseball who can tell you what every member of his big squad is doing at any given moment between 10 A. M. and 4 P. M.

The answer is that every member of his squad has been given certain duties to look after at certain hours, and you can bet they will be looking after those duties at the time set.

"I wouldn't quite call that a system," Billy said in a long interview. "I have only so much time with a big squad that I don't want to waste a second.

"If I had a system, which I doubt, it would be this—condition and hustle. I ask my men to do many things. I only demand two things—that they get and keep in shape—and that

PIRATES BANK ON IMPROVED PITCHING TO LIFT CLUB OUT OF SECOND DIVISION

By Central Press

In fact, Meyer is worried about his hitting, which probably should be the least of his worries with such fence busters as Ralph Kiner, home run king, and Dixie Walker among his employes.

Woefully weak in hill talent last year when the club finished seventh, the Pirate management went out and bought or bargained for talent which is expected to give the Bucs a major league pitching staff.

Hal Gregg, a big righthander who has a world of stuff but has been an in-and-outer, was brought over from Brooklyn. Vic Lombardi, the little left-hander who won 12 games for the Dodgers, is another Brooklyn fugitive. Elmer Riddle, also an in-and-outer with Cincinnati, is another righthander added to the Pirate slab corps. Mel Queen, who once was on Meyer's club in the minors, is another addition, having come over from the Yankees.

Most-talked-about rookie in the Pirates camp also is a pitcher, Bob Chesnes, who was purchased from San Francisco for a big price. Chesnes, a right-hander, notched 22 victories for the Seals in the Pacific Coast league last season and he is reported ready for sure-fire brackets.

In his debut in the camp games, Chesnes went against the Giants and gave up one unearned run on two hits in three innings. He admitted he was nervous, however, but despite this he passed the first test.

Holdover staff of twirlers is headed by Ernie (Tiny) Bonham, 11-8 last year; Kirby Higbe, veteran righthander, and Fritz Ostermueller, ancient portsider. One of the most impressive in camp thus far has been Riddle, who gave up but five hits in 10 innings against major league opposition.

With strength added to the pitching department the Pirate management looked for help for the catching slot. The bigwigs came up with Eddie FitzGerald, who pounded the ball for a .363 mark for Sacramento and stole 25 bases. This rookie has been in organized ball only two years but he has shown so much stuff that the Pirates figure him for the No. 1 receiving spot behind Clyde Kluttz, the club's starting backstop.

The Pirate infield presents new faces and an untested first-sacker, Eddie Stevens, who hit .290 for Montreal. Only regular from the 1947 varsity is Frankie Gustine, the third baseman. Eddie Bockman, who failed to get much of a chance with the Indians last year, also is a third sacker and has been playing in most of the camp games.

Danny Murtaugh, former Phil infielder and a .302 belter with Milwaukee in 1947, and Romanus Basgall, who comes up from Fort Worth, are competing for the second base job that Murtaugh will win. Stan Rojek, who understudied Peewee Reese in Brooklyn last year, is the shortstop.

Kiner, who knocked in 127 runs and smashed out 51 homers last season, is the big gun in the outfield. He's in left. Walker, the "people's choice" in Brooklyn, still can play good ball and his hitting ability ranks with the best in the loop. Johnny Hopp, a fine outfielder who wound up with a .288 bat mark with the Boston Braves last year, has been added to the outfield corps and will play centerfield.

Others competing for a garden spot are Joe Grace, from the Nats, who has been impressive in camp; Max West, former major leaguer who cracked 43 home runs for San Diego last season and was drafted by the Bucs from that club, and Wally Westlake, who is making a determined bid to retain a job he won last year.

Phillips Oilers Favored To Win Over Kentucky

Olympic Cage Finale Scheduled Tonight

By TED SMITS

NEW YORK, March 30 (AP) — Kentucky, a lightning fast basketball team, meets the Phillips Oilers, a toweringly tall team, tomorrow night in the Olympic tryout finals.

There is complete agreement on two points.

1—Both coaches think the Oilers will win.

2—Both teams will contribute five men to the Olympic basketball squad.

"They've got too much experience and height for us," said Coach Adolph Rupp of Kentucky's national collegiate champions. "I honestly don't think we can win. If we do, it will be a miracle."

"In the long run we will make less mistakes then Kentucky," said Coach Bud Browning of the National A.A.U. champion Oilers.

Kentucky's first team averages 6 feet 2 1-5 inches. The starting Oilers average nearly 6 feet 5 inches. With the experts, the Oilers are favored by a couple of points.

18,400 To See Finale

As a preliminary to tomorrow night's big game in Madison Square Garden, for which a sellout crowd of 18,400 is assured, Baylor meets the Denver Nuggets in a consolation game at 8 p. m., EST.

Selection of the squad will be made following tomorrow night's doubleheader. At first it was proposed that the coaches of the two finalists select the five men from each team. "But this would put too much of a strain on them," said Wilke. "The committee will make the choice.

The Oilers substitute more freely than Kentucky, but on the strength of their two preliminary round victories, Gordon Carpenter, Bob Kurland, and Jessie Renick appear to have first consideration, closely pressed by Lew Beck, Gerald Tucker, and Ed Beisser.

Groza Faces Kurland

Tomorrow night's final will find two titans opposing each other. Groza, six feet seven, is the heart of Kentucky's offensive. When Kentucky downed Baylor 77-59 in the semi-finals, Groza made 15 baskets in 26 shots from the court. In all he scored 33 points.

The seven-foot Kurland made eight field goals in 26 tries. He had a total of 21 points as the Oilers beat the Nuggets, 69-40.

Terps Battle Harvard To 13-Inning Deadlock

COLLEGE PARK, Md., March 30 —(AP)—Harvard and Maryland baseball teams battled to a 13-inning deadlock here today after the Terps overcame an early Harvard rally to knot the score at 3-3 in the eighth. The game was called because of darkness.

The New Englanders drew first blood in the second with a home run clout by Wally Coulson with none on. They added another run in the same inning through a walk, a sacrifice and a single.

Maryland's last two tallies came on a homer by Ralph Beach in the fifth and single by Bob Wilson in the eighth.

Appling Will Play Third For Chicago

Moves Over After 17 Years As Shortstop

PHOENIX, Ariz., March 30 (INS)—Third base came to Luke Appling today as it must to every shortstopping great when father time crooks his bony finger.

After 17 years as one of the truly top-grade shortfielders in baseball annals, Appling, who will celebrate his 39th birthday Friday, has been officially named regular third baseman for the Chicago White Sox.

Sox manager Ted Lyons announced the change today. Said he:

"For a long time I've felt Luke could add one or two years to his career if he shifted over to third base. He was never keen about the move until this spring—but now that he's at third, he doesn't want to leave. I'm happy about his taking so strongly to the new position."

Lyons wants Floyd Baker, regular pale hose third-sacker last year, to take a shot at replacing Appling at short. Lyons explains:

"Baker has a good arm and it is strong enough for shortstop. We know he's a great fielder, and, oddly enough, Floyd has never been sold on the third base assignment, probably due to the fact he was a shortstop the first six years of his career."

Ruth Names All-Time All-Star Ball Team

The Ruth team published in the Saturday Evening Post:

Catcher—Ray Schalk, Chicago White Sox.

Second base—Napoleon Lajoie, Cleveland Indians.

Shortstop—Honus Wagner, Pittsburgh Pirates.

Right field—Mr. X.

Boxing Weights Juggled

Three Teams In One Park?

"Rattle" Fleming Dies

By C. V. BURNS

Ed Knepp, heavyweight member of the Lewistown (Pa.) team, who has registered three straight victories here—doesn't like the idea of juggling weights of boxers just for the sake of making the fans believe the boys are evenly matched in avoirdupois.

He cites the Bill Frazier-Elmer Rothrock match on Monday night. The weights were announced as: Frazier 150 and Rothrock 148.

The last time Rothrock boxed here and decisioned Ray Alcorn of Washington he tipped the beam at 147. Three weeks ago Frazier's weight was announced as 158 for his match with Danny Merwood.

Frazier actually outweighed Rothrock 10 pounds in Monday's bout and that seems to be too much of a difference for amateurs.

Matchmaker "Sparky" Chisholm of the Amvets suggested to Knepp that another bout be arranged between Homer Boone and Randall "Skeets" Starkey and Ed replied:

"Homer has whipped him twice and he's Starkey's master so why match them for the third time."

Maybe "Sparky" got his boxing confused with the Shaughnessy playoffs and figured out the series on a best-of-five bouts basis.

Remember the first time the Lewistown amateur team made its appearance here?

Matchmaker John Henry Stitcher brought the Pennsylvanians here for the first time on October 21, 1946 for a Police Boys' Club show at SS. Peter and Paul gym. And it was a bad night for the visitors.

Pat Murphy knocked out Junior Boreman in 44 seconds, Joe Niland TKO'd Elmer Rothrock in the third, Jim Catanese trounced Arky "Tarban" Klinger and Jim Klosterman TKO'd Bill Klinger in the second stanza.

The Keystone State team has appeared in eight local shows. Four times they've won a majority of their bouts and four times they finished on the short end in bouts won.

Lewistown's record in eight Cumberland shows is an even .500 per cent—14 wins and 14 losses.

Ed Knepp leads with a record of 3-0. Homer Boone is runner-up with 5-1 and Rothrock is even-Stephen at 4-4. Rothrock has appeared in all of the shows.

Prognosis, according to Webster's Dictionary, means "a forecast of the probable course and end of a disease."

The Cumberland Amvets baseball team would rather play its home games at Community Park than Taylor Field but feels that three teams—the Eagles, Legion and Amvets—can't crowd their home contests into the Wineow Street park.

Believe it, or not, the three teams could play all their home games at Community Park if both leagues open their season Sunday, April 25, close on Labor Day, Monday, September 6, and the Legion and Eagles agree to play three games as parts of double headers or as single twilight games.

There wouldn't be any open dates on Saturdays but there is plenty of room for playing off postponed games as twilight games with Daylight Saving Time in effect again this summer.

"Rattle" starred on the gridiron and diamond and it was an injury he suffered in the former sport that cut short his athletic career.

He was tackled out-of-bounds at Community Park during a football game between the Ridgeley Firemen and Cumberland Hurricanes and was seriously injured when he leg struck the players' bench on the sidelines. He always walked with a slight limp thereafter.

Fleming drove a Potomac Edison bus for a number of years and played with the P. E. championship baseball team that included Jim Stevenson, Sam Rainey, Joe Buskey, Joe Barley and Lefty Joe Decker.

His brother Phil, who was pitching for the American Legion that year stopped the P.E. winning streak in a 13-inning thriller at Taylor Field.

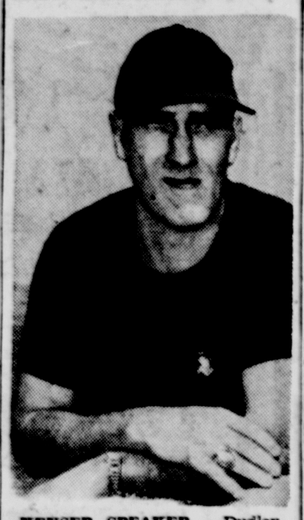
"Rattle" played his first football at Allegany High School and he looked so promising as a baseball player that he received a trial with the Cumberland Colts of the Mid-Atlantic League.

Potomac Valley Team Names Chaney Manager

Oberlin Chaney, well known athlete and athletic instructor at Cresaptown Junior High School, will manage the Potomac Valley softball team of the County League this season.

Chaney appointed John R. Armstrong as assistant manager and called for practice sessions each Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings at 5:30 p. m., prior to the opening of the league season.

Twenty-two candidates for the team met at the home diamond Monday and engaged in a light workout. Several more candidates are expected to try out for the 18-player roster.



KEYSER SPEAKER — Dudley Sargent DeGroot, West Virginia University's new football coach, will be the principal speaker at the dinner honoring Potomac State School's basketball squad tonight at Keyser. DeGroot formerly coached the Los Angeles Dons and Washington Redskins, professional teams. He will be accompanied by Roy M. "Legs" Hawley, athletic director at W. V. U.

Dudley S. DeGroot To Speak Tonight At Potomac State

Cat Cagers Will Be Honored At Dinner

DeGroot will be accompanied by Roy "Legs" Hawley, athletic director of the state university, and James McCartney.

"Dud" as DeGroot is more familiarly known, returns to the collegiate coaching field after four years with the professionals. He was first with the Washington Redskins of the National League and more recently with the Los Angles Dons of the All-America Football Conference. Previous to that he coached for 18 years in college and junior college football.

Before joining the Redskins, DeGroot coached at Rochester University from 1940 to 1943. He also tutored grid teams at Santa Barbara College, Menlo Junior College and San Jose State, which won three Far West Conference titles. Teams coached by DeGroot have won 80 per cent of their games.

West Virginia's new grid mentor made the All-America eleven when he played center at Stanford. He later served as Glenn "Pop" Warner's assistant at the California university. In his college days, "Dud" was also a champion swimmer and was a member of the United States Olympic Rugby team that copped the title in Paris, France, in 1924.

On Monday night, DeGroot addressed a smoker at the Waldo Hotel in Clarksburg, and yesterday he spoke at the Kiwanis Club luncheon there.

Tonight's dinner is scheduled for 7 o'clock in Potomac State's dining room. Approximately 120 persons will attend. Vernon E. Rankin, prosecuting attorney for Mineral county, will be the toastmaster.

LONACONING CLUB PLANS TWO DRILLS

LONACONING, March 30—Larry McKenzie, manager of the Lonaconing Republican Club of the Bi-State Baseball League, has called practice sessions for his squad Wednesday and Friday at 4 p. m. at the Lonaconing ball park.

A meeting of players and fans is scheduled for Friday at 7:30 in the club room.

Mangus To Pilot Reed's, Team Will Meet Tonight

BAYLOR BEARS IRKED BY SONG ABOUT TEXAS, JEER NANCY WALKER

NEW YORK, March 30 (AP)—The Baylor University Bears are carrying chips on both shoulders today.

Their feelings were ruffled last night when they were drubbed by Kentucky, 77-59, in the semi-finals of the Olympic basketball trials in Madison Square Garden.

Dickson Of Cards Hurls No-Hitter Against Yankees

Musial Wallops 3-Run Homer In 7-0 Victory

Murry Dickson

It was the first no hitter in the spring exhibition season since the late Cy Blanton of the Pittsburgh Pirates handcuffed the Cleveland Indians, 6-0, April 9, 1939, in New Orleans.

Dickson, who won 13 and lost 16 for the Cardinals last year, walked five batters today and hit one. He fanned six, including Linus Frey, Ed Stewart and Johnny Lindell who came to the plate in that order in the sixth inning.

Stan Musial smacked a three-run homer off Bevens and later in the frame. Al Schoeneidnst also drove in a trio of mates with a base-clearing double.

The triumph gave the Cardinals a four to three edge in the spring series with the Yankees.

After the fray it was announced that Outfielder Charley Keller, out since last June because of a spinal operation, would be in the Yankees starting lineup on Thursday in hopes of bolstering the New Yorkers' attack. On that day the Yankees will play the Philadelphia Phils.

Tomorrow, however, the Yanks and Cardinals tangle again here. Score:

Bevens Believes Arm Is "Through"

Yank Hurler Suffers Excruciating Pains

ST. PETERSBURG, March 30 (INS)—Floyd (Bill) Bevens, New York Yankee hurler said today that he is "through" pitching because of excruciating pains in his pitching arm.

Bevens, obviously discouraged after being shelled for all seven runs scored by the Cardinals today, rubbed his right arm and said:

Dr. Sidney Gaynor admitted he is puzzled. Dr. Gaynor said that X-rays do not reveal any growth or tear in the right-hander's arm.

Bevens almost achieved baseball immortality in the 1947 world series by pitching 8-⅔ innings of hitless ball against the Brooklyn Dodgers before surrendering a game-winning double to Cookie LaVagetto.

Bevens said that he is going to request the Yankee management to send him to Johns Hopkins Hospital or to Dr. Robert F. Hyland noted St. Louis physician.

The Southworth System

BRADENTON, Fla., March 30—A good many years ago Harvard had a football coach who counted seconds. He planned his working schedule the night before, allotting as many minutes to each form of work. His name was Percy Haughton. Haughton was the most systematic football coach I've ever known.

Today, Boston has another leader who is just as systematic as Haughton used to be. His name is Billy Southworth. I would like to bet a fair amount of money, if I had it, that Southworth is the only manager in baseball who can tell you what every member of his big squad is doing at any given moment between 10 A. M. and 4 P. M.

The answer is that every member of his squad has been given certain duties to look after at certain hours, and you can bet they will be looking after those duties at the time set.

"I wouldn't quite call that a system," Billy said in a long interview. "I have only so much time with a big squad that I don't want to waste a second.

"If I had a system, which I doubt, it would be this—condition and hustle. I ask my men to do many things. I only demand two things—that they get and keep in shape—and that

PIRATES BANK ON IMPROVED PITCHING TO LIFT CLUB OUT OF SECOND DIVISION

By Central Press

In fact, Meyer is worried about his hitting, which probably should be the least of his worries with such fence busters as Ralph Kiner, home run king, and Dixie Walker among his employes.

Woefully weak in hill talent last year when the club finished seventh, the Pirate management went out and bought or bargained for talent which is expected to give the Bucs a major league pitching staff.

Hal Gregg, a big righthander who has a world of stuff but has been an in-and-outer, was brought over from Brooklyn. Vic Lombardi, the little left-hander who won 12 games for the Dodgers, is another Brooklyn fugitive. Elmer Riddle, also an in-and-outer with Cincinnati, is another righthander added to the Pirate slab corps. Mel Queen, who once was on Meyer's club in the minors, is another addition, having come over from the Yankees.

Most-talked-about rookie in the Pirates camp also is a pitcher, Bob Chesnes, who was purchased from San Francisco for a big price. Chesnes, a right-hander, notched 22 victories for the Seals in the Pacific Coast league last season and he is reported ready for sure-fire brackets.

In his debut in the camp games, Chesnes went against the Giants and gave up one unearned run on two hits in three innings. He admitted he was nervous, however, but despite this he passed the first test.

Holdover staff of twirlers is headed by Ernie (Tiny) Bonham, 11-8 last year; Kirby Higbe, veteran righthander, and Fritz Ostermueller, ancient portsider. One of the most impressive in camp thus far has been Riddle, who gave up but five hits in 10 innings against major league opposition.

With strength added to the pitching department the Pirate management looked for help for the catching slot. The bigwigs came up with Eddie FitzGerald, who pounded the ball for a .363 mark for Sacramento and stole 25 bases. This rookie has been in organized ball only two years but he has shown so much stuff that the Pirates figure him for the No. 1 receiving spot behind Clyde Kluttz, the club's starting backstop.

The Pirate infield presents new faces and an untested first-sacker, Eddie Stevens, who hit .290 for Montreal. Only regular from the 1947 varsity is Frankie Gustine, the third baseman. Eddie Bockman, who failed to get much of a chance with the Indians last year, also is a third sacker and has been playing in most of the camp games.

Danny Murtaugh, former Phil infielder and a .302 belter with Milwaukee in 1947, and Romanus Basgall, who comes up from Fort Worth, are competing for the second base job that Murtaugh will win. Stan Rojek, who understudied Peewee Reese in Brooklyn last year, is the shortstop.

Kiner, who knocked in 127 runs and smashed out 51 homers last season, is the big gun in the outfield. He's in left. Walker, the "people's choice" in Brooklyn, still can play good ball and his hitting ability ranks with the best in the loop. Johnny Hopp, a fine outfielder who wound up with a .288 bat mark with the Boston Braves last year, has been added to the outfield corps and will play centerfield.

Others competing for a garden spot are Joe Grace, from the Nats, who has been impressive in camp; Max West, former major leaguer who cracked 43 home runs for San Diego last season and was drafted by the Bucs from that club, and Wally Westlake, who is making a determined bid to retain a job he won last year.

Phillips Oilers Favored To Win Over Kentucky

Olympic Cage Finale Scheduled Tonight

By TED SMITS

NEW YORK, March 30 (AP) — Kentucky, a lightning fast basketball team, meets the Phillips Oilers, a toweringly tall team, tomorrow night in the Olympic tryout finals.

There is complete agreement on two points.

1—Both coaches think the Oilers will win.

2—Both teams will contribute five men to the Olympic basketball squad.

"They've got too much experience and height for us," said Coach Adolph Rupp of Kentucky's national collegiate champions. "I honestly don't think we can win. If we do, it will be a miracle."

"In the long run we will make less mistakes then Kentucky," said Coach Bud Browning of the National A.A.U. champion Oilers.

Kentucky's first team averages 6 feet 2 1-5 inches. The starting Oilers average nearly 6 feet 5 inches. With the experts, the Oilers are favored by a couple of points.

18,400 To See Finale

As a preliminary to tomorrow night's big game in Madison Square Garden, for which a sellout crowd of 18,400 is assured, Baylor meets the Denver Nuggets in a consolation game at 8 p. m., EST.

Selection of the squad will be made following tomorrow night's doubleheader. At first it was proposed that the coaches of the two finalists select the five men from each team. "But this would put too much of a strain on them," said Wilke. "The committee will make the choice.

The Oilers substitute more freely than Kentucky, but on the strength of their two preliminary round victories, Gordon Carpenter, Bob Kurland, and Jessie Renick appear to have first consideration, closely pressed by Lew Beck, Gerald Tucker, and Ed Beisser.

Groza Faces Kurland

Tomorrow night's final will find two titans opposing each other. Groza, six feet seven, is the heart of Kentucky's offensive. When Kentucky downed Baylor 77-59 in the semi-finals, Groza made 15 baskets in 26 shots from the court. In all he scored 33 points.

The seven-foot Kurland made eight field goals in 26 tries. He had a total of 21 points as the Oilers beat the Nuggets, 69-40.

Appling Will Play Third For Chicago

Moves Over After 17 Years As Shortstop

PHOENIX, Ariz., March 30 (INS)—Third base came to Luke Appling today as it must to every shortstopping great when father time crooks his bony finger.

After 17 years as one of the truly top-grade shortfielders in baseball annals, Appling, who will celebrate his 39th birthday Friday, has been officially named regular third baseman for the Chicago White Sox.

Sox manager Ted Lyons announced the change today. Said he:

"For a long time I've felt Luke could add one or two years to his career if he shifted over to third base. He was never keen about the move until this spring—but now that he's at third, he doesn't want to leave. I'm happy about his taking so strongly to the new position."

Lyons wants Floyd Baker, regular pale hose third-sacker last year, to take a shot at replacing Appling at short. Lyons explains:

"Baker has a good arm and it is strong enough for shortstop. We know he's a great fielder, and, oddly enough, Floyd has never been sold on the third base assignment, probably due to the fact he was a shortstop the first six years of his career."

Ruth Names All-Time All-Star Ball Team

The Ruth team published in the Saturday Evening Post:

Catcher—Ray Schalk, Chicago White Sox.

Second base—Napoleon Lajoie, Cleveland Indians.

Shortstop—Honus Wagner, Pittsburgh Pirates.

Right field—Mr. X.

Holmes Will Bat Sixth In Boston Braves' Lineup

1947 Leadoff Man Will Swing For The Fences

BRADENTON, Fla., March 30—(AP)—Tommy Holmes, a line driver hitter will be swinging for the fences toward a goal of 20 homers for the Boston Braves this year. This is another move in the pennant lush by the Braves who are highly respected around the Grapefruit League as hot contenders.

Tommy Holmes

Hitting is strictly a business proposition with Holmes, a likeable Brooklyn Irishman. He celebrated his 30th birthday today. Either you punch for average or you go for the long one. Tommy has deceided to go for the long one.

"I think I can help the club more, swinging for homers," said Holmes. "After all, that's what the fans like. Our club will have pretty good punch and I ought to be able to add some more.

Last year Outfielder Holmes was a leadoff man in many games. This spring Manager Billy Southworth has been using him in the sixth hole. Down there he figures to be more dangerous with distance wallops.

"A leadoff man just has to have a good average," Holmes explained. "His most important job is to get on base. If he can walk, punch a hit to left or beat out a roller, it's all the same. Just get on there.

"Not that I didn't try to hit homers last year—don't get me wrong. When the time was ripe I swung for the fences but usually I was just trying to get on base My average may suffer when I swing away but I think I'll be able to hit that ball out of the park more often."

Holmes said he tried for distance last July. That was when he hit Mose of his year's total of nine home runs. His big homer year was 1945 when he collected 28. That also was the big year of his career in many respects. He finished second to Phil Cavarretta for the batting championship with .352 and set a new modern National League record by hitting safely in 37 consecutive games.

Holmes Will Bat Sixth In Boston Braves' Lineup

1947 Leadoff Man Will Swing For The Fences

BRADENTON, Fla., March 30—(AP)—Tommy Holmes, a line driver hitter will be swinging for the fences toward a goal of 20 homers for the Boston Braves this year. This is another move in the pennant lush by the Braves who are highly respected around the Grapefruit League as hot contenders.

Tommy Holmes

Hitting is strictly a business proposition with Holmes, a likeable Brooklyn Irishman. He celebrated his 30th birthday today. Either you punch for average or you go for the long one. Tommy has decided to go for the long one.

"I think I can help the club more, swinging for homers," said Holmes. "After all, that's what the fans like. Our club will have pretty good punch and I ought to be able to add some more.

Last year Outfielder Holmes was a leadoff man in many games. This spring Manager Billy Southworth has been using him in the sixth hole. Down there he figures to be more dangerous with distance wallops.

"A leadoff man just has to have a good average," Holmes explained. "His most important job is to get on base. If he can walk, punch a hit to left or beat out a roller, it's all the same. Just get on there.

"Not that I didn't try to hit homers last year—don't get me wrong. When the time was ripe I swung for the fences but usually I was just trying to get on base My average may suffer when I swing away but I think I'll be able to hit that ball out of the park more often."

Holmes said he tried for distance last July. That was when he hit Mose of his year's total of nine home runs. His big homer year was 1945 when he collected 28. That also was the big year of his career in many respects. He finished second to Phil Cavarretta for the batting championship with .352 and set a new modern National League record by hitting safely in 37 consecutive games.

LONDON, March 30—(AP)—Ted Broadribb, manager of British light heavyweight champion Freddie Mills, said tonight in a radio broadcast that his fighter would oppose Gus Lesnevich, world champion of the division, in London on July 26.

Lesnevich knocked out Mills here in the tenth round a year ago. There has been considerable talk of a re-match lately. A date close to the July 29 opening of the Olympic Games here had been sought.

Louis will do road work and general conditioning work at Bloomingdale, Mich., from mid-April until May 18, when he moves to Pompton, N. J., for five weeks of intensive boxing.

Harbert Recovers

GREENSBORO, N. C., March 30 (AP)—An attack of appendicitis won't keep Chick Harbert, Detroit golf pro, from playing in the Masters' tourney at Augusta, Ga., next week.

Sewer Work Begins

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, March 30 (INS) The Paul Munis are on the high seas headed for Sweden, and Paul has an idea which he thinks is his best since he won an Oscar for "Pasteur."

Louella Parsons

He intends to film the life of Alfred Bernard Nobel—he of the famed Nobel prizes—in Sweden, France, Switzerland and Italy. Nobel, the Swedish chemist and engineer, directed that the bulk of his huge fortune be used for annual awards to those persons who make the greatest contributions to peace, physics and medicine, and offer the most distinguished work in literature.

His life story is a wonderful opportunity for Muni, and although it is not generally known, he has been working on the scrip for a long time. Naturally, he will star in it as well as produce.

If he is able to make the film abroad, the Munis will remain in Europe eight months. If not, Paul will return and attempt to make it here.

De Witt Bodeen, who did such a fine job on the script of 'I Remember Mama," has moved into the David Selznick studios to adapt "What Every Young Bride Should know." This is Shirley Temple's next picture, and since its supposed to go before the cameras next month, De Witt will have to get his script out without delay.

Mel Ferrer will direct our Shirley, and as I told you, Guy Madison and Shirley's husband, John Agar, will be the movie men in her life.

Sam Goldwyn told me some time ago that the best romantic young team he has had since Rod La Rocque and Vilma Banky, is Farley Grainger and Cathy O'Donnell.

Well, I take back my suspicions after seeing these young people in "Your Red Wagon." Not since Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell were the personification of young romance.

Varied Programs Are Scheduled For Radio Tonight

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, March 30—Without any particular fanfare, MBS says it has put back on its schedule that afternoon series, Red Hook 31. It's now at 3:30 p. m. instead of a couple hours earlier, the time previous to a two weeks vacation.

While the program title is taken from a farmer's line telephone number, it is a Mr. and Mrs. type talkfest by a couple who live on an upstate New York farm.

A note from ABC about its Star Theater at 10:30, in which Gordon MacRae is now singing instead of the former songs of Tony Martin, says "Eliminate mention of Alan Young." In other words he's out of the program.

As a temporary replacement for its Open Hearing at 10:30, the CBS network has planned a series of 15-minute programs in which the seven declared candidates for the presidential nomination are being invited to participate. Each program will be devoted to a separate candidate. The first speaker is Harold E. Stassen.

Bing Crosby says Dick Powell will be heard when his recorded ABC displays itself again on ABC at 10. Instead of playing detective, Dick is to revert to his days when he was a crooner.

Vox Pop of ABC at 8:30 will have "Father and Son" stunt for their questions. It has something to do with a prospective movie.

Not exactly revealing what it all will be about, the District Attorney, radio kind, has revealed that on NBC at 9:30 there will be "The Case of the Deadly Hog."

An added CBS show at 9:30 is on behalf of the cancer fund drive, to include Bob Hope, The Godfrey, Dinah Shore and others.

SALLY'S SALLIES

"Why keep calling him Harry so palsy-walsy like when he doesn't even know you're from Missouri."

RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

Soul Searching Without Box Tops

Drew Pearson, never a man to ignore a good thing, has jumped headlong into the contest mania and, if you don't mind, I'd rather let him explain this one himself. Without further ado, I introduce Mr. Pearson quoting from a speech he made on a special broadcast the other night called "That Sacred Fire" (A.B.C.):

Drew Pearson

"No box tops. No entry blanks," said the beardless prophet. "All you do is write me a letter of 250 words or less on the subject — 'How To Make Democracy Live' and please write it on one side of the paper only. Put your name and address at the top of the page. There are over 150 prizes. First prize—$5,000. The next four winners will each receive a 1948 sedan of a famous make, completely equipped. . . ."

Right here Mr. Pearson grew eloquent: "No matter who you are, we all benefit from democracy. Only man's will and constant vigilance can keep it alive and that is why at this crucial period I am inviting the American people to do some further soul searching on the the most priceless heritage we have, and write in their ideas on how we can work, strive, give, make democracy live."

As Fourth of July oratory this statement would be generally accepted with clamorous enthusiasm, but in the light of the contest which Mr. Pearson outlined I'm not so sure. In this case only about 150 of us are going to benefit from democracy and the benefits aren't at all equal though, of course, they are free. One of us wins $5,000, the next four automobiles, the other lucky ones lesser largesse but the great majority get nothing at all. What sort of democracy is that, Mr. Pearson?

My friends, John and Sylvia Mainwaring of Scarsdale, who are among the great contest enterers of our time, have already searched their souls and have compressed their ideas on our most priceless heritage into 250 words which have been committed to the mail, registered air mail. They haven't much hope. They have never won a contest and, though they put their names and addresses on the top of the paper, wrote only on one side and searched their souls with diligence, they see no particular reason for winning this one.

For the first time, since they started entering contests, they are seriously worried not because of the loss of the $5,000 or those four cars, but for deeper, darker reasons. "You know," John told me with unexpected vehemence the other night, "I've never eaten a mouthful of that Popsie cereal since the contest. You remember! $25,000, one hundred new automobiles, lot of other stuff. 'Popsies give me a lift because' and then twenty-five words or less. I was really proud of that one. Neat, original, well expressed and only twenty-four words too. I didn't get a mention —not a car, not a dime."

He stared at the fire bitterly. "I never bought another bar of Whozit after their contest either. I didn't expect to win the house, understand—it wasn't one of my best ones—but, if my letter wasn't a darned sight more logical than half of those others, I'll eat the whole candy industry. Discrimination! They throw it to the housewives down in some territory where sales aren's so good. They'll do the same thing on this one too, you watch and see. If I don't win something on this one. . . ."

He took a savage pull at his pipe and reflected a moment. Then he added somberly: "In Russia every one gets prizes."

One small suggestion, in case you're thinking of entering Mr. Pearson's contest. "All entries remain our property," Mr. Pearson warns. "None can be returned." You'd better make a carbon copy of your soul-searching concerning our priceless heritage or you'll lose it irrevocably to Mr. Pearson.

Market Enjoys Day Of Recovery Despite Wall Street Picketing

NEW YORK, March 30. (AP)—The stock market today took the Wall Street strike in stride and enjoyed one of its best recoveries of the past two weeks.

While heavy picket lines surrounded the exchange, and there was a forenoon outburst of violence, brokerage and floor operations again were reported "more or less normal."

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was up .6 of a point at 64.4, a peak since last Jan. 16. Of 986 issues registering, 588 rose and 202 fell.

Superior Oil of Calif. was the day's broadest jumper, up 22 points at 185, a new high, in the final hour on only 400 shares.

Ahead a point or more were U. S. Steel at 73¼, Youngstown Sheet 75½, Southern Pacific 51, Pacific Western Oil 52½, Goodrich 55½, International Harvester 87¾, Schenley 30½, Allied Chemical 181, Pullman 47 and Eastman Kodak 43½.

Stumblers included Graham-Paige, Oliver Corp., Caterpillar Tractor, National Distillers, Kennecott, Owens-Illinois, U. S. Gypsum, United Air Lines and Atlantic Coast Line.

Among forward leaners in the curb were Cities Service, Creole Petroleum, and Kaiser-Frazer. Turnover here was 230,000 shares versus 170,000 yesterday.

Bond volume increased substantially.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

Curiosity

Montaigne retired to his "castle" that he might devote the rest of his life to writing, to the examination of himself, and "to put on paper not what he did, but what he was." His curiosity was aroused, as to the thinking and action of men, but he sought first to learn about himself, which he discussed in the frankest manner of anyone who has ever put his thoughts honestly into a book.

On one of the beams in his library were these words: "I stop—I examine—I do not understand—I remain poised in the balance—I take for my guide the ways of the world and the experiences of the senses."

Curiosity begins at the moment when a child's intelligence starts. It wants to know. It is forever asking questions. Why? Who? When? And this curiosity to find out and to learn, follows us throughout life—and happily so, for that is the way we become informed.

Whenever I read a genuinely fine, or great, book I immediately search out for all the information that I can locate about the writer. That refreshes the book for me. It makes it more intimate and human. When I read Norman Douglas's great book "South Wind" I hunted until I found a little book in which he told how he happened to write it. Then I read George Gissing's fine book "By The Ionian Sea," because that was a favorite with Douglas, and both books were about Italy—one about the mainland, and one about the famous island of Capri, about which Dr. Munthe wrote so beautifully. In fact the reading of "South Wind" drove me back to read "The Story of San Michele" again! To a lover of literature, curiosity is forever breaking in.

It was Franklin's curiosity that led him into his experiments with electricity, as it is indeed with all inventors and investigators. When one's curiosity withers, the zest for life and its thrills begins to die. Curiosity stimulates the imagination, and this impagination spreads out in many a direction, leading to many a discovery. Newton was the discoverer of the theory of gravitation. There is a story that it came about that he was taking a nap under a tree and got to thinking the matter over, and so threw an apple into the air and it came down. That started it, but undoubtedly it was his curiosity that initiated it.

There was a lull in national politics last week and both sides claimed it.

According to my late March poll the nation is Democratic for breakfast, Republican for supper and non-partisan for lunch. We will not know about Hank Wallace until the picnics start.

Hankus is doing all right for a fellow who isn't doing much of anything. If consistency is the bugaboo of little minds then Hank rates a larger hat.

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, March 30 (INS)—The Paul Munis are on the high seas headed for Sweden, and Paul has an idea which he thinks is his best since he won an Oscar for "Pasteur."

Louella Parsons

He intends to film the life of Alfred Bernard Nobel—he of the famed Nobel prizes—in Sweden, France, Switzerland and Italy. Nobel, the Swedish chemist and engineer, directed that the bulk of his huge fortune be used for annual awards to those persons who make the greatest contributions to peace, physics and medicine, and offer the most distinguished work in literature.

His life story is a wonderful opportunity for Muni, and although it is not generally known, he has been working on the scrip for a long time. Naturally, he will star in it as well as produce.

If he is able to make the film abroad, the Munis will remain in Europe eight months. If not, Paul will return and attempt to make it here.

De Witt Bodeen, who did such a fine job on the script of 'I Remember Mama," has moved into the David Selznick studios to adapt "What Every Young Bride Should know." This is Shirley Temple's next picture, and since its supposed to go before the cameras next month, De Witt will have to get his script out without delay.

Mel Ferrer will direct our Shirley, and as I told you, Guy Madison and Shirley's husband, John Agar, will be the movie men in her life.

Sam Goldwyn told me some time ago that the best romantic young team he has had since Rod La Rocque and Vilma Banky, is Farley Grainger and Cathy O'Donnell.

Well, I take back my suspicions after seeing these young people in "Your Red Wagon." Not since Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell were the personification of young romance.

Varied Programs Are Scheduled For Radio Tonight

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, March 30—Without any particular fanfare, MBS says it has put back on its schedule that afternoon series, Red Hook 31. It's now at 3:30 p. m. instead of a couple hours earlier, the time previous to a two weeks vacation.

While the program title is taken from a farmer's line telephone number, it is a Mr. and Mrs. type talkfest by a couple who live on an upstate New York farm.

A note from ABC about its Star Theater at 10:30, in which Gordon MacRae is now singing instead of the former songs of Tony Martin, says "Eliminate mention of Alan Young." In other words he's out of the program.

As a temporary replacement for its Open Hearing at 10:30, the CBS network has planned a series of 15-minute programs in which the seven declared candidates for the presidential nomination are being invited to participate. Each program will be devoted to a separate candidate. The first speaker is Harold E. Stassen.

Bing Crosby says Dick Powell will be heard when his recorded ABC displays itself again on ABC at 10. Instead of playing detective, Dick is to revert to his days when he was a crooner.

Vox Pop of ABC at 8:30 will have "Father and Son" stunt for their questions. It has something to do with a prospective movie.

Not exactly revealing what it all will be about, the District Attorney, radio kind, has revealed that on NBC at 9:30 there will be "The Case of the Deadly Hog."

An added CBS show at 9:30 is on behalf of the cancer fund drive, to include Bob Hope, The Godfrey, Dinah Shore and others.

RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

Soul Searching Without Box Tops

Drew Pearson, never a man to ignore a good thing, has jumped headlong into the contest mania and, if you don't mind, I'd rather let him explain this one himself. Without further ado, I introduce Mr. Pearson quoting from a speech he made on a special broadcast the other night called "That Sacred Fire" (A.B.C.):

Drew Pearson

"No box tops. No entry blanks," said the beardless prophet. "All you do is write me a letter of 250 words or less on the subject — 'How To Make Democracy Live' and please write it on one side of the paper only. Put your name and address at the top of the page. There are over 150 prizes. First prize—$5,000. The next four winners will each receive a 1948 sedan of a famous make, completely equipped. . . ."

Right here Mr. Pearson grew eloquent: "No matter who you are, we all benefit from democracy. Only man's will and constant vigilance can keep it alive and that is why at this crucial period I am inviting the American people to do some further soul searching on the the most priceless heritage we have, and write in their ideas on how we can work, strive, give, make democracy live."

As Fourth of July oratory this statement would be generally accepted with clamorous enthusiasm, but in the light of the contest which Mr. Pearson outlined I'm not so sure. In this case only about 150 of us are going to benefit from democracy and the benefits aren't at all equal though, of course, they are free. One of us wins $5,000, the next four automobiles, the other lucky ones lesser largesse but the great majority get nothing at all. What sort of democracy is that, Mr. Pearson?

My friends, John and Sylvia Mainwaring of Scarsdale, who are among the great contest enterers of our time, have already searched their souls and have compressed their ideas on our most priceless heritage into 250 words which have been committed to the mail, registered air mail. They haven't much hope. They have never won a contest and, though they put their names and addresses on the top of the paper, wrote only on one side and searched their souls with diligence, they see no particular reason for winning this one.

For the first time, since they started entering contests, they are seriously worried not because of the loss of the $5,000 or those four cars, but for deeper, darker reasons. "You know," John told me with unexpected vehemence the other night, "I've never eaten a mouthful of that Popsie cereal since the contest. You remember! $25,000, one hundred new automobiles, lot of other stuff. 'Popsies give me a lift because' and then twenty-five words or less. I was really proud of that one. Neat, original, well expressed and only twenty-four words too. I didn't get a mention —not a car, not a dime."

He stared at the fire bitterly. "I never bought another bar of Whozit after their contest either. I didn't expect to win the house, understand—it wasn't one of my best ones—but, if my letter wasn't a darned sight more logical than half of those others, I'll eat the whole candy industry. Discrimination! They throw it to the housewives down in some territory where s'ries aren's so good. They'll do the same thing on this one too, you watch and see. If I don't win something on this one. . . ."

He took a savage pull at his pipe and reflected a moment. Then he added somberly: "In Russia every one gets prizes."

One small suggestion, in case you're thinking of entering Mr. Pearson's contest. "All entries remain our property," Mr. Pearson warns. "None can be returned." You'd better make a carbon copy of your soul-searching concerning our priceless heritage or you'll lose it irrevocably to Mr. Pearson.

Today's Talk

Curiosity

Montaigne retired to his "castle" that he might devote the rest of his life to writing, to the examination of himself, and "to put on paper not what he did, but what he was." His curiosity was aroused, as to the thinking and action of men, but he sought first to learn about himself, which he discussed in the frankest manner of anyone who has ever put his thoughts honestly into a book.

On one of the beams in his library were these words: "I stop—I examine—I do not understand—I remain poised in the balance—I take for my guide the ways of the world and the experiences of the senses."

Curiosity begins at the moment when a child's intelligence starts. It wants to know. It is forever asking questions. Why? Who? When? And this curiosity to find out and to learn, follows us throughout life—and happily so, for that is the way we become informed.

Whenever I read a genuinely fine, or great, book I immediately search out for all the information that I can locate about the writer. That refreshes the book for me. It makes it more intimate and human. When I read Norman Douglas's great book "South Wind" I hunted until I found a little book in which he told how he happened to write it. Then I read George Gissing's fine book "By The Ionian Sea," because that was a favorite with Douglas, and both books were about Italy—one about the mainland, and one about the famous island of Capri, about which Dr. Munthe wrote so beautifully. In fact the reading of "South Wind" drove me back to read "The Story of San Michele" again! To a lover of literature, curiosity is forever breaking in.

It was Franklin's curiosity that led him into his experiments with electricity, as it is indeed with all inventors and investigators. When one's curiosity withers, the zest for life and its thrills begins to die. Curiosity stimulates the imagination, and this impagination spreads out in many a direction, leading to many a discovery. Newton was the discoverer of the theory of gravitation. There is a story that it came about that he was taking a nap under a tree and got to thinking the matter over, and so threw an apple into the air and it came down. That started it, but undoubtedly it was his curiosity that initiated it.

There was a lull in national politics last week and both sides claimed it.

According to my late March poll the nation is Democratic for breakfast, Republican for supper and non-partisan for lunch. We will not know about Hank Wallace until the picnics start.

Varied Programs Are Scheduled For Radio Tonight

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, March 30—Without any particular fanfare, MBS says it has put back on its schedule that afternoon series, Red Hook 31. It's now at 3:30 p. m. instead of a couple hours earlier, the time previous to a two weeks vacation.

While the program title is taken from a farmer's line — telephone number, it is a Mr. and Mrs. type talkfest by a couple who live on an upstate New York farm.

A note from ABC about its Star Theater at 10:30, in which Gordon MacRae is now singing instead of the former songs of Tony Martin, says "Eliminate mention of Alan Young." In other words he's out of the program.

As a temporary replacement for its Open Hearing at 10:30, the CBS network has planned a series of 15-minute programs in which the seven declared candidates for the presidential nomination are being invited to participate. Each program will be devoted to a separate candidate. The first speaker is Harold E. Stassen.

Bing Crosby and Dick Powell will be heard when his recorded ABC displays itself again on ABC at 10. Instead of playing detective, Dick is to revert to his days when he was a crooner.

Vox Pop of ABC at 8:30 will have "Father and Son" stunt for their questions. It has something

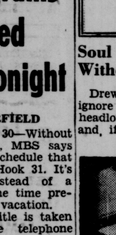
Soul Searching Without Box Tops

Drew Pearson, never a man to ignore a good thing, has jumped headlong into the contest mania and, if you don't mind, I'd rather let him explain this one himself. Without further ado, I introduce Mr. Pearson quoting from a speech he made on a special broadcast the other night called "That Sacred Fire" (A.B.C.):



Drew Pearson

"No box tops. No entry blanks," said the beardless prophet. "All you do is write me a letter of 250 words or less on the subject — 'How To Make Democracy Live' and please write it on one side of the paper only. Put your name and address at the top of the page. There are over 150 prizes. First prize—$5,000. The next four winners will each receive a 1948 sedan of a famous make, completely equipped. . . ."

Right here Mr. Pearson grew eloquent: "No matter who you are, we all benefit from democracy. Only man's will and constant vigilance can keep it alive and that is why at this crucial period I am inviting the American people to do some further soul searching on the the most priceless heritage we have, and write in their ideas on how we can work, strive, give, make democracy live."

As Fourth of July oratory this statement would be generally accepted with clamorous enthusiasm, but in the light of the contest which Mr. Pearson outlined I'm not so sure. In this case only about 150 of us are going to benefit from democracy and the benefits aren't at all equal though, of course, they are free. One of us wins $5,000, the next four automobiles, the other lucky ones lesser largesse but the great majority get nothing at all. What sort of democracy is that, Mr. Pearson?

Not exactly revealing what it all will be about, the District Attorney, radio kind, has revealed that on NBC at 9:30 there will be "The Case of the Deadly Hog."

An added CBS show at 9:30 is on behalf of the cancer fund drive, to include Bob Hope, The Godfrey, Dinah Shore and others.

My friends, John and Sylvia Mainwaring of Scarsdale, who are among the great contest enterers of our time, have already searched their souls and have compressed their ideas on our most priceless heritage into 250 words which have been committed to the mail, registered air mail. They haven't much hope. They have never won a contest and, though they put their names and addresses on the top of the paper, wrote only on one side and searched their souls with diligence, they see no particular reason for winning this one.

For the first time, since they started entering contests, they are seriously worried not because of the loss of the $5,000 or those four cars, but for deeper, darker reasons. "You know," John told me with unexpected vehemence the other night, "I've never eaten a mouthful of that Popsie cereal since the contest. You remember! $25,000, one hundred new automobiles, lot of other stuff. 'Popsies give me a lift because' and then twenty-five words or less. I was really proud of that one. Neat, original, well expressed and only twenty-four words too. I didn't get a mention —not a car, not a dime."

He stared at the fire bitterly. "I never bought another bar of Whozit after their contest either. I didn't expect to win the house, understand—it wasn't one of my best ones—but, if my letter wasn't a darned sight more logical than half of those others, I'll eat the whole candy industry. Discrimination! They throw it to the housewives down in some territory where s-'s aren's so good. They'll do the same thing on this one too, you watch and see. If I don't win something on this one. . . ."

He took a savage pull at his pipe and reflected a moment. Then he added somberly: "In Russia every one gets prizes."

One small suggestion, in case you're thinking of entering Mr. Pearson's contest. "All entries remain our property," Mr. Pearson warns. "None can be returned." You'd better make a carbon copy of your soul-searching concerning our priceless heritage or you'll lose it irrevocably to Mr. Pearson.

Today's Talk

Curiosity

Montaigne retired to his "castle" that he might devote the rest of his life to writing, to the examination of himself, and "to put on paper not what he did, but what he was." His curiosity was aroused, as to the thinking and action of men, but he sought first to learn about himself, which he discussed in the frankest manner of anyone who has ever put his thoughts honestly into a book.

On one of the beams in his library were these words: "I stop—I examine—I do not understand—I remain poised in the balance—I take for my guide the ways of the world and the experiences of the senses."

Curiosity begins at the moment when a child's intelligence starts. It wants to know. It is forever asking questions. Why? Who? When? And this curiosity to find out and to learn, follows us throughout life—and happily so, for that is the way we become informed.

Whenever I read a genuinely fine, or great, book I immediately search out for all the information that I can locate about the writer. That refreshes the book for me. It makes it more intimate and human. When I read Norman Douglas's great book "South Wind" I hunted until I found a little book in which he told how he happened to write it. Then I read George Gissing's fine book "By The Ionian Sea," because that was a favorite with Douglas, and both books were about Italy—one about the mainland, and one about the famous island of Capri, about which Dr. Munthe wrote so beautifully. In fact the reading of "South Wind" drove me back to read "The Story of San Michele" again! To a lover of literature, curiosity is forever breaking in.

It was Franklin's curiosity that led him into his experiments with electricity, as it is indeed with all inventors and investigators. When one's curiosity withers, the zest for life and its thrills begins to die. Curiosity stimulates the imagination, and this imagination spreads out in many a direction, leading to many a discovery. Newton was the discoverer of the theory of gravitation. There is a story that it came about that he was taking a nap under a tree and got to thinking the matter over, and so threw an apple into the air and it came down. That started it, but undoubtedly it was his curiosity that initiated it.

Baering Down On The News

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

There was a lull in national politics last week and both sides claimed it.

According to my late March poll the nation is Democratic for breakfast, Republican for supper and non-partisan for lunch. We will not know about Hank Wallace until the picnics start.

Hankus is doing all right for a fellow who isn't doing much of anything. If consistency is the bugaboo of little minds then Hank rates a larger hat.

Varied Programs Are Scheduled For Radio Tonight

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, March 30—Without any particular fanfare, MBS says it has put back on its schedule that afternoon series, Red Hook 31. It's now at 3:30 p. m. instead of a couple hours earlier, the time previous to a two weeks vacation.

While the program title is taken from a farmer's rural telephone number, it is a Mr. and Mrs. type talkfest by a couple who live on an upstate New York farm.

A note from ABC about its Star Theater at 10:30, in which Gordon MacRae is now singing instead of the former songs of Tony Martin, says "Eliminate mention of Alan Young." In other words he's out of the program.

As a temporary replacement for its Open Hearing at 10:30, the CBS network has planned a series of 15-minute programs in which the seven declared candidates for the presidential nomination are being invited to participate. Each program will be devoted to a separate candidate. The first speaker is Harold E. Stassen.

Elsa Maxwell says Dick Powell will be heard when his recorded ABC displays itself again on ABC at 10. Instead of playing detective, Dick is to revert to his days when he was a crooner.

Vox Pop of ABC at 8:30 will have "Father and Son" stunt for their questions. It has something to do with a prospective movie.

Not exactly revealing what it all will be about, the District Attorney, radio kind, has revealed that on NBC at 9:30 there will be "The Case of the Deadly Hog."

An added CBS show at 9:30 is on behalf of the cancer fund drive, to include Bob Hope, The Godfrey, Dinah Shore and others.

SALLY'S SALLIES

"Why keep calling him Harry so palsy-walsy like when he doesn't even know you're from Missouri."

RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

Soul Searching Without Box Tops

Drew Pearson, never a man to ignore a good thing, has jumped headlong into the contest mania and, if you don't mind, I'd rather let him explain this one himself. Without further ado, I introduce Mr. Pearson quoting from a speech he made on a special broadcast the other night called "That Sacred Fire" (A.B.C.):

Drew Pearson

"No box tops. No entry blanks," said the beardless prophet. "All you do is write me a letter of 250 words or less on the subject — 'How To Make Democracy Live' and please write it on one side of the paper only. Put your name and address at the top of the page. There are over 150 prizes. First prize—$5,000. The next four winners will each receive a 1948 sedan of a famous make, completely equipped. . . ."

Right here Mr. Pearson grew eloquent: "No matter who you are, we all benefit from democracy. Only man's will and constant vigilance can keep it alive and that is why at this crucial period I am inviting the American people to do some further soul searching on the the most priceless heritage we have, and write in their ideas on how we can work, strive, give, make democracy live."

As Fourth of July oratory this statement would be generally accepted with clamorous enthusiasm, but in the light of the contest which Mr. Pearson outlined I'm not so sure. In this case only about 150 of us are going to benefit from democracy and the benefits aren't at all equal though, of course, they are free. One of us wins $5,000, the next four automobiles, the other lucky ones lesser largesse but the great majority get nothing at all. What sort of democracy is that, Mr. Pearson?

Not exactly revealing what it all will be about, the District Attorney, radio kind, has revealed that on NBC at 9:30 there will be "The Case of the Deadly Hog."

An added CBS show at 9:30 is on behalf of the cancer fund drive, to include Bob Hope, The Godfrey, Dinah Shore and others.

My friends, John and Sylvia Mainwaring of Scarsdale, who are among the great contest writers of our time, have already searched their souls and have compressed their ideas on our most priceless heritage into 250 words which have been committed to the mail, registered air mail. They haven't much hope. They have never won a contest and, though they put their names and addresses on the top of the paper, wrote only on one side and searched their souls with diligence, they see no particular reason for winning this one.

For the first time, since they started entering contests, they are seriously worried not because of the loss of the $5,000 or those four cars, but for deeper, darker reasons. "You know," John told me with unexpected vehemence the other night, "I've never eaten a mouthful of that Popsie cereal since the contest. You remember! $25,000, one hundred new automobiles, lot of other stuff. 'Popsies give me a lift because' and then twenty-five words or less. I was really proud of that one. Very original, well expressed and only twenty-four words too. I didn't get a mention —not a car, not a dime."

He stared at the fire bitterly. "I never bought another bar of Whizit after their contest either. I didn't expect to win the house, understand—it wasn't one of my best ones—but, if my letter wasn't a darned sight more logical than half of those others, I'll eat the whole candy industry. Discrimination! They throw it to the housewives every time in some territory where a aren's so good. They'll do the same thing on this one too, you watch and see. If I don't win something on this one. . . ."

He took a savage pull at his pipe and reflected a moment. Then he added somberly: "In Russia every one gets prizes."

One small suggestion, in case you're thinking of entering Mr. Pearson's contest. "All entries remain our property," Mr. Pearson warns. "None can be returned." You'd better make a carbon copy of your soul-searching concerning our priceless heritage or you'll lose it irrevocably to Mr. Pearson.

Market Enjoys Day Of Recovery Despite Wall Street Picketing

NEW YORK, March 30. (AP)—The stock market today took the Wall Street strike in stride and enjoyed one of its best recoveries of the past two weeks.

While heavy picket lines surrounded the exchange, and there was a forenoon outburst of violence, brokerage and floor operations again were reported "more or less normal."

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was up .6 of a point at 64.4, a peak since last Jan. 16. Of 986 issues registering, 588 rose and 202 fell.

Superior Oil of Calif. was the day's broadest jumper, up 22 points at 185, a new high, in the final hour on only 400 shares.

Curiosity

Montaigne retired to his "castle" that he might devote the rest of his life to writing, to the examination of himself, and "to put on paper not what he did, but what he was." His curiosity was aroused, as to the thinking and action of men, but he sought first to learn about himself, which he discussed in the frankest manner of anyone who has ever put his thoughts honestly into a book.

On one of the beams in his library were these words: "I stop—I examine—I do not understand—I remain poised in the balance—I take for my guide the ways of the world and the experiences of the senses."

Curiosity begins at the moment when a child's intelligence starts. It wants to know. It is forever asking questions. Why? Who? When? And this curiosity to find out and to learn, follows us throughout life—and happily so, for that is the way we become informed.

Whenever I read a genuinely fine, or great, book I immediately search out for all the information that I can locate about the writer. That refreshes the book for me. It makes it more intimate and human. When I read Norman Douglas's great book "South Wind" I hunted until I found a little book in which he told how he happened to write it. Then I read George Gissing's fine book "By The Ionian Sea," because that was a favorite with Douglas, and both books were about Italy—one about the mainland, and one about the famous island of Capri, about which Dr. Munthe wrote so beautifully. In fact the reading of "South Wind" drove me back to read "The Story of San Michele" again! To a lover of literature, curiosity is forever breaking in.

It was Franklin's curiosity that led him into his experiments with electricity, as it is indeed with all inventors and investigators. When one's curiosity withers, the zest for life and its thrills begins to die. Curiosity stimulates the imagination, and this impagination spreads out in many a direction, leading to many a discovery. Newton was the discoverer of the theory of gravitation. There is a story that it came about that he was taking a nap under a tree and got to thinking the matter over, and so threw an apple into the air and it came down. That started it, but undoubtedly it was his curiosity that initiated it.

Baering Down On The News

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

There was a lull in national politics last week and both sides claimed it.

According to my late March poll the nation is Democratic for breakfast, Republican for supper and non-partisan for lunch. We will not know about Hank Wallace until the picnics start.

Hankus is doing all right for a fellow who isn't doing much of anything. If consistency is the bugaboo of little minds then Hank rates a larger hat.

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, March 30 (INS)—The Paul Munis are on the high seas headed for Sweden, and Paul has an idea which he thinks is his best since he won an Oscar for "Pasteur."

Louella Parsons

He intends to film the life of Alfred Bernard Nobel—he of the famed Nobel prizes—in Sweden, France, Switzerland and Italy. Nobel, the Swedish chemist and engineer, directed that the bulk of his huge fortune be used for annual awards to those persons who make the greatest contributions to peace, physics and medicine, and offer the most distinguished work in literature.

His life story is a wonderful opportunity for Muni, and although it is not generally known, he has been working on the scrip for a long time. Naturally, he will star in it as well as produce.

If he is able to make the film abroad, the Munis will remain in Europe eight months. If not, Paul will return and attempt to make it here.

De Witt Bodeen, who did such a fine job on the script of 'I Remember Mama," has moved into the David Selznick studios to adapt "What Every Young Bride Should know." This is Shirley Temple's next picture, and since its supposed to go before the cameras next month, De Witt will have to get his script out without delay.

Mel Ferrer will direct our Shirley, and as I told you, Guy Madison and Shirley's husband, John Agar, will be the movie men in her life.

Sam Goldwyn told me some time ago that the best romantic young team he has had since Rod La Rocque and Vilma Banky, is Farley Grainger and Cathy O'Donnell.

Well, I take back my suspicions after seeing these young people in "Your Red Wagon." Not since Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell were the personification of young romance has there been a team to compare with Farley and Cathy. I advise Sam to sign them both up on a long, long contract—and I suggest RKO change the "Red Wagon" title.

Farley Grainger, in my opinion, is the best young actor we have had in several years. As for Cathy O'Donnell, she has a wistful sweetness about her that I find most charming. She is not beautiful, but beauties are a dime a dozen in Hollywood, and real talent is hard to find.

George Raft carries a picture in his pocket of Marlene Carol, the French girl he put under personal contract when he was in Paris. He came and sat with us at Le Papillon Saturday night and showed me the girl's picture. She is very beautiful, and he believes she will be a success on the screen when she comes to Hollywood.

I asked him if it was a romance with him. "Well," he said, "I could fall for her easily, but John Ringling North, the circus millionaire, was there first and I think she prefers him."

George is still very thin and I wish he would shave off that mustache.

Chatter in Hollywood: Although Bob Topping is extremely reluctant to discuss his matrimonial troubles with Arline Judge, he did tell me that his lawyers had prepared a new complaint.

Arline's lawyer asked for a more specific complaint in their reply to the charge of cruelty he filed in Connecticut.

I don't believe Bob really does know whether Arline plans to divorce him or not. He insists that he never offered her any financial settlement.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

The David Hopkins expect their fifth child in about two months. They have four little girls. David, now a movie executive, is the son of the late Harry Hopkins. Mrs. Hopkins is the former Cherry Preisser.

The Danny Kayes had dinner together the night after he got back from London so everything looks hopeful. He brought home hundreds of letters from admiring Britons for Sylvia to read.

The Easter party given by Sir Charles and Lady Mendl, in honor of Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt, was the gayest affair of the spring season. Just everyone was there.

Greta Garbo, looking better than I have ever seen her and much friendlier to everyone, really had a good time. If she had any doubt of how she stands with Hollywood she must have realized how many admirers she has for everyone made a point of seeking her out.

Official Pay Cuts Asked For India

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—One of the tasks of the new Indian national government has set before itself is to reduce the top-heavy administration to modest Indian standards.

The viceroy and governor-general of India still draws an annual basic salary of about 250,000 rupees (75,000 U.S. dollars)—besides many other allowances—while the vast majority of the subjects on the average earn three and one-half cents a day.

The commander-in-chief of India and the governors of Madras, Bombay and Bengal got 120,000 rupees per annum—besides their upkeep and other allowances. Other governors received a little less. The chief justice of India got 84,000 rupees per annum, chief justice of Bengal 72,000 rupees and chief justices of other provinces 60,000 rupees each. Judges of provincial high courts received 48,000 rupees apiece.

Libby Holman, Back on Broadway, Now Sings "Earth" Not Torch Songs

By GILBERT SWAN
Central Press Correspondent

NEW YORK.—Back in the night spots, where there has never been a shortage of midnight oil and smoke gets in your eyes, Libby Holman has virtually abdicated as "queen of the torch singers" to become the outstanding exponent of "earth" songs.

A slick-trick phrase, that's likely to get around, earth songs refer to those American refrains that are native, indigenous, from-the-soil—or whatever better simile happens to come to mind. As Miss Holman explains it: "They contain the essence of almost everything in our music."

For it now develops that any serious safari into the unexplored jungles of folk music is certain to come upon the discovery that our pioneer settlers had their own versions of "Moaning Low."

During the several years in which she has been absent from Broadway, Miss Holman has been engaged in an exploring venture that picked up forgotten song-trails in the hills of the Carolinas; in Tennessee and Kentucky and Georgia; on the southern seacoasts and in the old west.

This was no routine search for mere old songs, for Libby's collection includes numbers for which words were never written. Fact is, most of the Scotch-Irish hill settlers and other pioneers of the plains and mountains either could not write down the words or neglected to do so.

Thus they passed from mother to son and from neighbor to neighbor. Having plenty of money to spend on her experiment, and Miss Holman has a sizeable fortune—her co-explorers ranged from experienced college researchers to Negro minstrels who picked up verses during their wanderings.

It was with a repertory of some 1,000 such songs to choose from that Libby returned to Broadway a few weeks ago and presented them for the first time in a new and streamlined little bistro. Most of the visiting Hollywoodians and various stage celebrities turned out.

• • •

GENERAL RESULT was so encouraging that exploress Holman will try the Pittsburgh Cocacablanca next. After that she will tour the large American universities.

Curious about how this had all come about, I dropped over to call on Libby as she was preparing to take to the road. Her apartment is well hidden and cleverly camouflaged. She occupies the top floor of a building she owns in New York's swanky Turtle bay section.

A stairway to her town residence leads through hallways that link the offices of several physicians. A dignified doctor, white-aproned and carrying a stethoscope, gave me final directions.

LIBBY HOLMAN—'Earth' songs now

Libby was wearing pale blue lounging pajamas. Her raven-hair was hoydenishly knotted over one ear. She was bright eyed with enthusiasm over her new adventure. She seemed strangely younger than when I saw her about six years ago.

Decorating the living room were vases filled with rare flowers. They arrive almost daily from her handsome Stamford, Conn., estate, where expert horticulturists raise fabulously lovely orchids. When in New York, Libby week-ends there. Her son, Christopher Reynolds, is now 15, and attends a school in Vermont. His inheritance was once placed at about $6,000,000. He plans to be an engineer.

"With all your money and comforts, why do you choose to go singing over the countryside and in smoky night spots?" I asked.

"Because I love to sing," she smiled. "I've always loved to sing. I'd do it with or without money. The difference is that I can afford to sing what I want to and where I want to. When I first made my success I didn't know what I was doing. When I began to go deeply into the music of our ancestors, I found how earthy they were and how little was known about them.

"Don't think that some of them are not good low-down stuff of which blues are made. I have a number, for instance, titled, 'Evil Hearted Me.' Sounds just like a hot tropical number, doesn't it? Sure, I still give them 'Moaning Low' and 'Body and Soul' for encores.

• • •

"HOWEVER, the old Missouri, Georgia and Kentucky ballads are downright exciting—full of tragedy and pathos and comedy. I'd take them around the world—if there was a world left. Remember, I come from pretty old stock myself—some Dutch—some Scotch Irish."

"I owe something of what I'm doing to them," she explained. "My mother, who now lives in Florida, used to show me many such pictures, and my father—he was a law professor, you remember—used to tell me stories about them.

"You may remember, too, that Josh White used to accompany me on the guitar when I sang blues. He gave me dozens of tips on these songs. So I went on the trail."

The music to the songs she has collected has been worked over by her partner, Gerald Cook, who gives them something of an off-beat, modernistic twist.

The piano, itself—well, take it from Libby, it's "inspired" and mildly "haunted," since its the one used by John La Touche, when he composed "Cabin in the Sky."

Jerusalem Convoys Become Nature Study

JERUSALEM. — (AP) — Jerusalem children still play with dolls. But barbed wire and bombed houses are also of their world.

On their way to kindergarten they hear more or less distant shots and explosions and tell themselves that they are not frightened. They see steel plated bus convoys leaving town with escorts should there be occasional snipers on the road.

On an early spring morning, five-year-old Nurit saw a flock of storks on its flight northwards. "Why, they are travelling in convoys too" she cried in surprise.

Husband And Wife Are House Builders

MILKAUKEE. — (AP) — When they were married 52 years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kessler formed a house building team. They estimated they have built more than 100 houses together.

Residents of Bookfield, Wisc., they still are building. In the last six years they have built a house for themselves, two for a son and one for a daughter.

Official Pay Cuts Asked For India

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—One of the tasks of the new Indian national government has set before itself is to reduce the top-heavy administration to modest Indian standards.

The viceroy and governor-general of India still draws an annual basic salary of about 250,000 rupees (75,000 U.S. dollars)—besides many other allowances—while the vast majority of the subjects on the average earn three and one-half cents a day.

The commander-in-chief of India and the governors of Madras, Bombay and Bengal got 120,000 rupees per annum—besides their upkeep and other allowances. Other governors received a little less. The chief justice of India got 84,000 rupees per annum, chief justice of Bengal 72,000 rupees and chief justices of other provinces 60,000 rupees each. Judges of provincial high courts received 48,000 rupees apiece.

Libby Holman, Back on Broadway, Now Sings "Earth" Not Torch Songs

By GILBERT SWAN
Central Press Correspondent

NEW YORK.—Back in the night spots, where there has never been a shortage of midnight oil and smoke gets in your eyes, Libby Holman has virtually abdicated as "queen of the torch singers" to become the outstanding exponent of "earth" songs.

A slick-trick phrase, that's likely to get around, earth songs refer to those American refrains that are native, indigenous, from-the-soil—or whatever better simile happens to come to mind. As Miss Holman explains it: "They contain the essence of almost everything in our music."

For it now develops that any serious safari into the unexplored jungles of folk music is certain to come upon the discovery that our pioneer settlers had their own versions of "Moaning Low."

During the several years in which she has been absent from Broadway, Miss Holman has been engaged in an exploring venture that picked up forgotten song-trails in the hills of the Carolinas; in Tennessee and Kentucky and Georgia; on the southern seacoasts and in the old west.

This was no routine search for mere old songs, for Libby's collection includes numbers for which words were never written. Fact is, most of the Scotch-Irish hill settlers and other pioneers of the plains and mountains either could not write down the words or neglected to do so.

Thus they passed from mother to son and from neighbor to neighbor. Having plenty of money to spend on her experiment, and Miss Holman has a sizeable fortune—her co-explorers ranged from experienced college researchers to Negro minstrels who picked up verses during their wanderings.

It was with a repertory of some 1,000 such songs to choose from that Libby returned to Broadway a few weeks ago and presented them for the first time in a new and streamlined little bistro. Most of the visiting Hollywoodians and various stage celebrities turned out.

• • •

GENERAL RESULT was so encouraging that exploress Holman will try the Pittsburgh Cocacabanca next. After that she will tour the large American universities.

Curious about how this had all come about, I dropped over to call on Libby as she was preparing to take to the road. Her apartment is well hidden and cleverly camouflaged. She occupies the top floor of a building she owns in New York's swanky Turtle bay section.

At first glance, it appears dedicated to the medical profession. The shingles of several prominent doctors are displayed on the brick entrance.

Inside the foyer, above a bell, appears a tiny card reading: "L. H. REYNOLDS." The "L. H." is for Libby Holman. The Reynolds is for her late husband, Smith Reynolds, heir to the tobacco fortune, who was mysteriously slain some years ago at "Reynolda," just outside Winston Salem, N. C.

A stairway to her town residence leads through hallways that link the offices of several physicians. A dignified doctor, white-aproned and carrying a stethoscope, gave me final directions.

LIBBY HOLMAN—'Earth' songs now

Libby was wearing pale blue lounging pajamas. Her raven-hair was hoydenishly knotted over one ear. She was bright eyed with enthusiasm over her new adventure. She seemed strangely younger than when I saw her about six years ago.

Decorating the living room were vases filled with rare flowers. They arrive almost daily from her handsome Stamford, Conn., estate, where expert horticulturists raise fabulously lovely orchids. When in New York, Libby week-ends there. Her son, Christopher Reynolds, is now 15, and attends a school in Vermont. His inheritance was once placed at about $6,000,000. He plans to be an engineer.

"With all your money and comforts, why do you choose to go singing over the countryside and in smoky night spots?" I asked.

"Because I love to sing," she smiled. "I've always loved to sing. I'd do it with or without money. The difference is that I can afford to sing what I want to and where I want to. When I first made my success I didn't know what I was doing. When I began to go deeply into the music of our ancestors, I found how earthy they were and how little was known about them.

"Don't think that some of them are not good low-down stuff of which blues are made. I have a number, for instance, titled, 'Evil Hearted Me.' Sounds just like a hot tropical number, doesn't it? Sure, I still give them 'Moaning Low' and 'Body and Soul' for encores.

• • •

"HOWEVER, the old Missouri, Georgia and Kentucky ballads are downright exciting—full of tragedy and pathos and comedy. I'd take them around the world—if there was a world left. Remember, I come from pretty old stock myself—some Dutch—some Scotch Irish."

She pointed to three daguerreotypes on the wall, just above the piano. They are the enlargements of portraits of stern-faced pioneer people.

"I owe something of what I'm doing to them," she explained. "My mother, who now lives in Florida, used to show me many such pictures, and my father—he was a law professor, you remember—used to tell me stories about them.

"You may remember, too, that Josh White used to accompany me on the guitar when I sang blues. He gave me dozens of tips on these songs. So I went on the trail."

The music to the songs she has collected has been worked over by her partner, Gerald Cook, who gives them something of an offbeat, modernistic twist.

The piano, itself—well, take it from Libby, it's "inspired" and mildly "haunted," since its the one used by John La Touche, when he composed "Cabin in the Sky."

Jerusalem Convoys Become Nature Study

JERUSALEM. — (AP) — Jerusalem children still play with dolls. But barbed wire and bombed houses are also of their world.

On their way to kindergarten they hear more or less distant shots and explosions and tell themselves that they are not frightened. They see steel plated bus convoys leaving town with escorts should there be occasional snipers on the road.

On an early spring morning, five-year-old Nurit saw a flock of storks on its flight northwards. "Why, they are travelling in convoys too" she cried in surprise.

Husband And Wife Are House Builders

MILKAUKEE. — (AP) — When they were married 52 years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kessler formed a house building team. They estimated they have built more than 100 houses together.

Residents of Bookfield, Wisc., they still are building. In the last six years they have built a house for themselves, two for a son and one for a daughter.

PE Requests Increase In Bus Fares

Plan To Eliminate Two Types Tickets

An application was filed with the Public Service Commission yesterday by the Potomac Edison Company to increase certain types of bus fares for company bus operations in and running out of Cumberland.

The company said the increase is necessary to absorb about $49,000 estimated annual increase in costs of operations, and requested that the new rate schedule be made effective May 2.

No change was proposed in the present five-cent school fare, or the present cash fare of 10 cents per individual ride.

The company asked permission, however, to eliminate the three-for-25-cents and 15-for $1 tickets, and to establish six-for-50-cents tickets.

It is also proposed that tickets on the Cresaptown and Celanese routes now selling at 10 for 80 cents be eliminated and tickets sold on a basis of six-for-50-cents be introduced.

Operating Costs Up

Henry W. Price, district manager, said a wage increase of 12 cents per hour, granted March 1, would advance total annual wages about $32,000, and that increased costs of gasoline and other operating items are estimated at about $17,000 a year.

Price declared the operating costs of the bus company have been steadily increasing, but much of these costs have been absorbed through more efficient operation and other economy moves. These new wage increases and other advancing costs create a problem the company cannot meet without a rate change, he indicated.

The increase, if granted, will be the first boost in fares here since the bus line began operations in 1930, except for a change in the school tickets which were boosted from three and a half cents to five cents per ride several years ago.

Under the proposed schedule, eight and one-third cents will be the minimum cost per ride, except for school children, Price explained.

Increases Granted

The Public Service Commission recently granted fare rate increases to the Cumberland and Westernport Transit Company, effective March 21, and to Emery's Motor Coach Lines, effective April 1.

The C & W lines, which operate between Cumberland and Westernport, by way of Frostburg, was granted a flat five-cent fare increase on cash fares exceeding 35 cents and a 10 to 15 per cent increase on tickets.

Commuters to LaVale, who formerly rode on four tickets for 50 cents, now pay 15 cents fare per trip, since the ticket system was eliminsted.

The Emery lines, which operate between Keyser, Piedmont and Cumberland, was granted a 10 per cent increase on one-way and round trip fares and a 20 per cent increase on commuters' tickets.

"FIRST LADY"—Miss Jeanette Bonig (center) who was named Cumberland's First Lady of 1947 in a recent contest sponsored by the four chapters of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, is shown above receiving a certificate of recognition from Mrs. W. E. Ruehl, publicity chairman of the contest and social sponsor of Lambda Chapter. The presentation was made at a banquet last night at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. Looking on at the left is Mrs. Lee W. Witherup, who was voted "first lady" two years ago.

Sororoty To Hold Annual Contests

Approximately 70 persons attended a banquet last night at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club, when Miss Jeannette Bonig, executive secretary of Associated Charities since 1938, received a certificate and a gift of a handmade black purse as Cumberland's First Lady of 1947.

Miss Bonig was named in a recent contest sponsored by the four chapters of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, which held the banquet in her honor.

Miss Catherine Lippold, director of Omicron Chapter and general chairman of the banquet committee, acted as toastmistress and gave the address of welcome.

The certificate of recognition was sent here from the international office of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority in Kansas City.

John T. Fey, local attorney who acted as one of the three judges in selecting the "first lady," reviewed Miss Bonig's work with the Associated Charities during the past 10 years.

The purse was presented to Miss Bonig by Mrs. Ambrose McKenzie, past president of Omicron Chapter and director of Nu Phi Mu Chapter.

Brief talks were given by Mrs. Lee W. Witherup, executive secretary of Allegany County Chapter, American Red Cross, who held the title of Cumberland's first lady in 1945; and two other judges in this year's contest, J. William Hunt and John M. Robb.

Rotarians Will Attend Session

About 45 members of the Cumberland Rotary Club are planning to attend the 178th Rotary District conference to be held April 11, 12 and 13 at Bedford Springs Hotel, Bedford, Pa., according to a poll taken at yesterday's weekly luncheon meeting of the club at Central YMCA.

The Bedford Rotary Club, which will be host at this year's conference, was sponsored by the local organization when the former was founded about 15 years ago.

The luncheon and program on Monday, April 12, has been arranged by the Cumberland club. Guest speaker at that time will be Earl J. Bunting, Winchester, Va., president of the National Association of Manufacturers, who will speak on the topic, "Democracy Is the Safest Way."

Swearingen will preside at the luncheon session, which will take the place of the weekly session of the Cumberland Club on Tuesday, April 13.

The district include clubs in Western Pennsylvania, Western Maryland and West Virginia.

Instead of their customary meeting next week, Rotarians will attend a joint luncheon meeting Wednesday, April 7, with the Kiwanis and Lions Clubs in the Central YMCA gymnasium.

The Kiwanis Club, which is sponsoring a concert that evening by Rubinoff and his violin, has invited the famed violinist to be a guest at the luncheon.

126 Applications Already Received

A total of 126 applications have been received by the Allegany County Liquor Control Board for renewal of alcoholic beverage licenses May 1, according to Fred Crowe, board secretary.

All applications for new licenses and renewal of present licenses must be filed at the office of the clerk of court or the liquor board office not later than April 10, Crowe explained. This is necessary because the applicants' names must be published 15 days prior to the date of issuance, and the board must have time to prepare the necessary paper work.

Crowe said the board will meet April 22 to study all applications and generally review them in preparation for hearings.

Regular hearings will be held at the Court House on April 28 on club and liquor licenses, on April 29 on beer licenses, and on April 30 on beer and wine licenses.

Crowe again called attention to the section of the law which requires all applicants to post a notice in their places of business at least 10 days before April 30, informing the general public that an application has been made for an alcoholic beverage license.

Failure to comply with this regulation may result in the board refusing to grant a license, board members explained.

Increased County Assessments Bring Loss In State Aid

Equalization Fund To Shrink $116,498

The increase in property assessment in Allegany County during the past 12-months period will bring new tax revenue to the county, but will decrease the amount of state aid to schools from the Equalization Fund by $116,489, county commissioners discovered yesterday when the school board's budget for 1948-49 was submitted.

Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools, acting as spokesman for the Board of Education, submitted the county school budget and outlined in detail the various figures.

Based upon the present tax rate of $1.72 per $100 of assessable property, the county will collect an additional $238,280 in taxes for the new fiscal year, on a 12-months basis, it was disclosed. However, with a loss of $116,489 in the Equalization Fund, the county, with its advanced assessments, actually gains only $121,782. Of this gain, the School Board needs an additional $66,650 because of automatic salary increases, which leaves a net increase in new revenue from new assessments of only $54,132, for use in other departments or to apply in overall tax rate reductions.

In addition to this comment on the budget, which totals $2,467,658 for the period from July 1, 1948 to June 30, 1949, Kopp submitted a letter which outlines some of the details.

The letter stated that the budget for the next fiscal year is an increase of $66,650 over the allowance for the current year, ending June, 1948, which is $2,401,008. The increase results largely from the automatic salary increases provided by legislation enacted in the 1947 session of the Maryland General Assembly.

County Share Advances

While the budget increase is $66,650, it is to be noted that the county's increase for school purposes is $105,688. During the 1947-48 fiscal period the county's share of school costs was $891,473 while for the coming fiscal period the sum has increased to $997,161.

It is further noted that the county commissioners were relieved of levying the amount of $75,000 for salaries last year, that amount having been appropriated from the Board of Education balance, June 30, 1947. This increase of $105,688 in the county share of budget costs results from the reduction in the state Equalization Fund allotment to this county.

This reduction becomes a necessity under the laws of the state by virtue of the very great increase in the county taxable basis over last year. The taxable basis upon which the 1947-48 State Equalization Fund is computed is $100,578,222, while for the year 1948-49, the basis is estimated to be $114,431,742.

This increase of $13,853,520 in the taxable basis results chiefly from an increase of nearly $11,000,000 in foreign ordinary business corporations taxable basis. This resulted from a court decision which killed tax exemptions to the three large industries granted by the county.

The real and personal property increase is about $1,500,000. The Equalization Fund for the county is affected by $90,047.88 being cut from the amount allotted to the county. Because of the state's schedule of increased salaries for teachers and the county taxable basis increase, the total amount of Equilization money loss amounts to $116,498. If the taxable basis had remained the same for next year as last the Equalization Fund would be $992,374 instead of an estimated $875,876.

Position Explained

In his letter Kopp said:

"Attention is called to the fact that while the equalization loss is $116,498 on account of the taxable basis increase, the county collects, from this added taxable basis, at the current $1.72 tax rate per hundred dollars an additional $238,280, a gain of $121,782. This figure is to be compared with the school budget increase of $66,650 and with $105,688, the increase in the county's share of the total budget. It is to be noted that the net increase in revenues of $121,782 is $16,094 in excess of the net budget increase to the county of $105,688; this represents a decrease of about one and one-half cents of the tax rate on account of the school budget.

"Attention is called to an item of receipts for the Board of Education which under the laws enacted in the 1947 session of the Maryland

Cresaptown Trio Found Guilty Of Assault Charges

Three Cresaptown men were found guilty yesterday in Trial Magistrates Court of assaulting a local couple near a Baltimore Pike restaurant last Thursday night, and Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., deferred passing sentence until April 6.

The men were identified as Walter Johnson, Jr., his half-brother, Merrill Lambert, and Julian A. Rotruck, an employe of the Western Maryland Railway. Johnson and Lambert are Celanese workers.

Ethel Jean Jarrett, 925 Grand Avenue, an employe of the Hi Dee Club, and Kenneth Walizer, 638 Lincoln Street, said they were driving back from Bean's Cove, Pa., to Cumberland when they were forced off the road and beaten by the three men.

Walizer told police $87 was missing from his wallet, but he later said he might have lost it during the scuffle. No theft charge was preferred against the three men, who pleaded not guilty to the assault charges.

Authorities said Rotruck and Lambert have police records. Rotruck was arrested some time ago on a disorderly conduct charge, and a sentence of one year in the House of Correction against Lambert on an asault charge two years ago was suspended, according to police.

Charged with drunken and reckless driving, James F. Smith, 9 Broadway Circle, was fined a total of $112.20 on both charges by Magistrate Frank A. Perdew.

Smith, who said he also resides in Keyser, W. Va., pleaded not guilty to operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol but admitted driving in a reckless manner.

Smith said he had not "taken a drink for nine years," stating he was using the car to go for groceries. He said he has been under a physician's care for the past five months.

Samuel Miller, Beall Street, posted $100 bond for his appearance this morning for trial on an assault charge preferred by his sister, Mrs. Esther Eplinger, Dexter Street. Court attaches said the alleged assault took place March 23 at Mrs. Eplinger's home following a property dispute.

Virginia Avenue Group Seeks Playground Aid

Five representatives of the Virginia Playground Association said yesterday they plan to attend a meeting of the Mayor and Council today at 10 a. m. regarding possible financial assistance toward the purchase of equipment for the playground.

The group, which included Mrs. Kathryn England, Mrs. Grace Van Pelt, Mrs. Jessie Brotemarkle, Mrs. Vivian Turley and Mrs. Eloise Krapf, conferred with Mayor Thomas S. Post yesterday. The mayor referred them to Street Commissioner Myers G. Light.

However, a total of $659.79 was allocated to Mapleside Playground during this month to purchase materials for shelter at that playground, and on Monday the Mayor and Council agreed to buy materials costing $1,028 for the Gephart Playground Association.

To Be Succeeded By Edward Ewald

Garland L. Johnston, commercial manager of the Potomac Edison Company here since 1940, has been promoted to the district managership of the PE system in Waynesboro, Pa., according to Henry W. Price, Cumberland district manager.

Johnston, who has been active in community and service club work since 1940, when he was transferred here from Keyser, W. Va., will be succeeded by Edward L. Ewald, Hagerstown.

Ewald, a native of Mt. Savage and a Potomac Edison employe here in 1934-35, will assume his new duties this week, Price said.

For the past two years Ewald has served as assistant to D. E. Schultz, vice president of the Potomac Edison Company in Hagerstown. He was first employed by the company as a meter reader in Piedmont, W. Va., in 1931, after attending the University of Maryland. Since that time he has been employed in company offices in Hagerstown, Cumberland, Keyser and Piedmont.

Ewald worked in the commercial department of the company's local offices before he was promoted to the chief clerkship at Keyser. In 1937 he was promoted to the position of assistant to the company's general merchandise manager in Hagerstown.

Mr. and Mrs. Ewald and their 7-year-old son are expected to take up residence here in the near future.

Johnston, who began his career with Potomac Edison 23 years ago in Winchester, Va., is past president of the Cumberland Rotary Club and a member of the Chamber of Commerce. He has taken an active part in YMCA and Community Chest campaigns.

He resides with his wife and 11-year-old daughter, Judith, at 756 Cleveland Avenue. Although Johnston expects to assume his new duties in Waynesboro by May 1, his family will remain here until the end of the school term.

Man Is Victim Of Rifle Shot

Accidents reported at Memorial Hospital last night took on a more serious nature as one man was accidentally shot in the leg and two received fractured legs.

At 6:30 last night, Roy Ritchie, Spring Gap, Md., was admitted to the hospital with a bullet wound in his right thigh which traveled through the leg and lodged in the inner calf of his left leg. According to hospital attaches, Ritchie was about two miles down the Potomac River from Spring Gap, when the rifle he was carrying accidentally discharged.

Earlier in the night, a 15-year-old boy, Garl Rhodes, Romney, W. Va., was admitted with a fractured right leg. It is understood that Rhodes was riding a bicycle and hit a railroad rail which threw him, causing the injury.

Mrs. Ethel Hamilton, 65, Romney, fell as she was crossing the street at her home and was admitted. She has a fractured left leg.

Merry Albright, 7, daughter of Wilma Albright, Ridgeley, was treated for injuries of the elbow and wrist last night, after a bicycle had been pushed over on her by a playmate.

Walsh To Direct Study Of State's Corporation Laws

Group To Recommend Changes In Statutes

ANNAPOLIS, March 30 (AP)—Governor Lane today named Former Judge William C. Walsh, Cumberland, to head a nine-man commission to study Maryland's general corporation laws.

The measure was introduced by Senators Bolton (D-Balto County) and Hoff (R-Carroll), who declared that although corporation laws had been amended occasionally, they had not been revised as a whole since 1908.

Several proposed amendments have been considered by the legislature, the resolution said, but died "due to a lack of time for the study of technical questions."

Other members of the commission appointed by the Governor were:

Frederick W. Brune, Jr., president of the State Bar Association; Albert W. Ward, secretary of the State Tax Commission; J. Kemp Bartlett, Jr., McKenney W. Egerton and Delegate Bernard S. Melnicove, Baltimore attorneys.

One of Maryland's best known attorneys, Walsh entered the Cumberland law firm of his father, William E. Walsh, in 1912 after completing his legal training at Catholic University. After serving in France during World War I, he was named city solicitor of Cumberland in 1920.

The following year he was appointed associate judge of the Fourth julicial circuit and in 1924 became chief judge of the circuit and a member of the Maryland Court of Appeals.

He was state insurance commissioner from 1931 to 1935 and retired

Acquisition Of Flood Land Is Topic Of Session

Burdette Outlines Three Phases

Three phases of acquiring real estate which will be needed for the local flood control project were outlined yesterday by two representatives of the Corps of Engineers at a conference with local officials in the office of Mayor Thomas S. Post.

One of the representatives was J. C. Jacobs of the District Engineer's Office in Washington, D. C. Jacobs is district engineer in charge of a 10-man surveying party which is expected to come here tomorrow to begin work on preliminary surveys.

The survey, which will determine the amount of property required and the exact location of each lot, as well as ownership, is expected to take several months.

1. The portion the government would ultimately require.

2. The portion to which the City of Cumberland would accept title.

3. The portion which will require only temporary easements for construction purposes.

No definite decision was reached in a discussion regarding title work. This could be done either through a government contract with a title company, or through arrangements with local attorneys.

However, the group indicated they favored using local legal assistance wherever possible.

Procedure of tract maps to be used was outlined. Burdette said efforts would be made to supply the city with maps of the area Cumberland would acquire, to avoid duplication of surveying and mapping.

Besides Burdette, Jacobs and Mayor Post, others attending the conference were City Attorney Thomas B. Finan, City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer and James Alfred Avirett, chairman of the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission.

Appraisal values of property needed for the project are approximately $80,000 less than an overall appraisal based on 1942 unit prices made by Whitman, Requardt and Associates, Baltimore engineering firm.

In 1942, the city's share was estimated at $472,800. Ridgeley was expected to pay $330,000 for an overall total of $802,800 gross.

On Monday, four local real estate agents reported to the Mayor and Council the overall cost would be $442,606 net. Total cost was estimated at $721,555 but the appraisers allowed $278,950 for resale values.

Using the $278,950 resale value the difference between that appraisal and the overall estimate six years ago is $81,255. In 1942 the net amount would have been $523,850.

James A. Perrin, one of the four appraisers, said the recent estimate does not include the cost of land to be purchased by the federal government, since the city had asked only for an estimate on the property which it would have to buy.

Moviegoer Denied Rehearing Of Suit

ANNAPOLIS, March 30 (AP)—The Maryland Court of Appeals today denied a Cumberland moviegoer's petition for a rehearing of a damage suit against the Cumberland Theater Company.

Joseph P. Codire, Cumberland, claimed a Washington County Circuit Court jury had incorrectly examined evidence in the jury room after testimony had been concluded.

The jury last June 17 refused to award Codire damages for personal injuries received March 16, 1946, when he stubbed his toe on a rubber mat and fell while leaving the Maryland Theater in Cumberland.

Codire appealed from a ruling by Circuit Judge Joseph D. Mish last August, denying a motion for a new trial.

The appelate court dismissed the petition on grounds that a transcript of lower court proceedings was not delivered to the Court of Appeals within the time specified by law. The court pointed out that it is the appellant's responsibility to supply transcripts.

Codire's lawyers had contended in briefs prepared for delivery that the lower court jury sent for the rummer mat to see whether there was a hole in it "after the case was formally closed."

This, they said, would "leave the door of the jury room open in such a manner that after a jury retires they will be free to try any case again in their own jury room."

The theater company said Codire's lawyers had waited so long to file an appeal "that the appellee thought the appeal had been abandoned."

Mrs. Anna Long Dies Suddenly

Mrs. Anna C. Long, 78, widow of Harry H. Long, died suddenly late yesterday afternoon at her home, 832 Shriver Avenue.

Mrs. Long died quietly in a rocking chair at her home yesterday just after her pastor, Dr. H. Hall Sharp, pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran Church, completed administering the sacrament of Communion.

At the end of the service, Mrs. Long's daughter went to the kitchen of the home to rinse the chalice and it was during these few moments that she went into a coma and quietly passed away.

She had been seriously ill about a month ago but although apparently recovered from that attack, had not been able to attend church on Easter.

She was a native of this city, a daughter of the late Jown W. and Elizabeth Bachman Rueschlein, and was a member of one of Cumberland's oldest families. Her husband died here 44 years ago.

She was a lifetime member of St. Luke's Lutheran church.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Scott Street, this city, and Mrs. S. Ruggles Townshend, Drexel Hill, Pa., two grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Three brothers, Charles F. Reuschlein, Huntington, W. Va., and Martin W. Ruschlein and Richard J. Russhlein, both of this city also survive.

The body is at the Stein Funeral Home.

Paper Drive Nets Over 18 Tons

Temperature Reading

Have you liked the weather since Easter? The weatherman predicts considerable cloudiness and mild with scattered showers for today, this to follow on the heels of temperature of 72 degrees yesterday. Spring weather apparently has come back with a bang. Low temperature Tuesday was 29. The 8 a. m. reading was 48 degrees, while at 11 last night the mercury was recorded at 56.

Dorothy Maynor, Talented Negro Soprano, To Sing Here Tomorrow

Dorothy Maynor, the young Negro soprano who will appear at Fort Hill High School Thursday night, April 1, might still be singing in the choir of a small Norfolk church, had it not been for Dr. Nathaniel Dett, choir director of Hampton Institute.

As the story goes, Dr. Dett altered Miss Maynor's application cards to make her a music major.

The amazing Negro soprano, who is being hailed as the "voice of the decades," liked home economics and thought that in the future, it would be of more benefit to her.

The singer was born in Norfolk, Va., the daughter of a Methodist church minister. Miss Maynor, her sister and brother comprised the choir in her father's church and from then on it was an uphill grind to attain the heights which she has reached today.

It wasn't until 1939 that she was "discovered" by Dr. Serge Koussevitzky and after that her rise to fame was fast, in fact, the first season saw her singing with four symphony orchestras in New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago.

The concert is being sponsored by Carver High School.

Cumberland Aerie No. 245, FOE Inducts Class Of 16 New Members

Cumberland Aerie No. 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles, inducted a class of 16 members into the lodge last night, bringing the total number of new members obtained during the 50th Anniversary Gold Rush membership campaign to 319.

At the same time plans are being made for a large class to be inducted on Mothers' Day, Sunday afternoon, May 9. Mothers' Day is a traditional day in the annals of the Eagles, since the order took a long and active interest in having Mothers' Day become a national day of observance.

C. William H. Baer, worthy president, and the lodge officers conducted the initiation last night, with Francis H. Schultz, trustee, instructing the candidates and Herman L. Myers, past president, also making a short talk.

Those admitted to active membership last night include Joseph A. Beck, Charles F. Eberly, Jr., Fred H. Harshberger, Oswald J. Hutson, Carl H. Keller, Donald T. Knieriem, Ray K. Matthew, George E. Miller, John H. Miller, Robert L. Maiers, H. Edward McFarland, James C. Rowand, Harry E. Smith, George S. Siebel, Walter E. Smith, and John J. Zullo.

Baer said last night an effort is being made to initiate a record class on Mothers' Day.

PE Requests Increase In Bus Fares

Plan To Eliminate Two Types Tickets

An application was filed with the Public Service Commission yesterday by the Potomac Edison Company to increase certain types of bus fares for company bus operations in and running out of Cumberland.

The company said the increase is necessary to absorb about $49,000 estimated annual increase in costs of operations, and requested that the new rate schedule be made effective May 2.

No change was proposed in the present five-cent school fare, or the present cash fare of 10 cents per individual ride.

The company asked permission, however, to eliminate the three-for-25-cents and 15-for $1 tickets, and to establish six-for-50-cents tickets.

It is also proposed that tickets on the Cresaptown and Celanese routes now selling at 10 for 80 cents be eliminated and tickets sold on a basis of six-for-50-cents be introduced.

Operating Costs Up

Henry W. Price, district manager, said a wage increase of 12 cents per hour, granted March 1, would advance total annual wages about $32,000, and that increased costs of gasoline and other operating items are estimated at about $17,000 a year.

Price declared the operating costs of the bus company have been steadily increasing, but much of these costs have been absorbed through more efficient operation and other economy moves. These new wage increases and other advancing costs create a problem the company cannot meet without a rate change, he indicated.

The increase, if granted, will be the first boost in fares here since the bus line began operations in 1930, except for a change in the school tickets which were boosted from three and a half cents to five cents per ride several years ago.

Under the proposed schedule, eight and one-third cents will be the minimum cost per ride, except for school children, Price explained.

Increases Granted

The Public Service Commission recently granted fare rate increases to the Cumberland and Westernport Transit Company, effective March 21, and to Emery's Motor Coach Lines, effective April 1.

The C & W lines, which operate between Cumberland and Westernport, by way of Frostburg, was granted a flat five-cent fare increase on cash fares exceeding 35 cents and a 10 to 15 per cent increase on tickets.

Commuters to LaVale, who formerly rode on four tickets for 50 cents, now pay 15 cents fare per trip, since the ticket system was eliminsted.

The Emery lines, which operate between Keyser, Piedmont and Cumberland, was granted a 10 per cent increase on one-way and round trip fares and a 20 per cent increase on commuters' tickets.

Sororoty To Hold Annual Contests

Approximately 70 persons attended a banquet last night at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club, when Miss Jeannette Bonig, executive secretary of Associated Charities since 1938, received a certificate and a gift of a handmade black purse as Cumberland's First Lady of 1947.

Miss Bonig was named in a recent contest sponsored by the four chapters of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, which held the banquet in her honor.

Miss Catherine Lippold, director of Omicron Chapter and general chairman of the banquet committee, acted as toastmistress and gave the address of welcome.

The invocation was given by Miss Mary Sirna, president of Alpha Chapter.

Mrs. W. E. Ruehl, social sponsor of Lambda Chapter and publicity chairman of the contest, in which local clubs and organizations took part, presented the certificate to Miss Bonig.

The certificate of recognition was sent here from the international office of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority in Kansas City.

John T. Fey, local attorney who acted as one of the three judges in selecting the "first lady," reviewed Miss Bonig's work with the Associated Charities during the past 10 years.

The purse was presented to Miss Bonig by Mrs. Ambrose McKenzie, past president of Omicron Chapter and director of Nu Phi Mu Chapter.

Brief talks were given by Mrs. Lee W. Witherup, executive secretary of Allegany County Chapter, American Red Cross, who held the title of Cumberland's first lady in 1945; and two other judges in this year's contest, J. William Hunt and John M. Robb.

R. J. Reuschlein Retires Today After 56 Years

After serving Western Union for 56 years, R. J. Reuschlein, 308 Decatur Street, will retire this morning at 8 o'clock.

Reuschlein, who is 68 years old now, started working for Western Union when he was 12 years old and has been with the same company all his life.

Although he is retiring as night wire chief, there was a day when he had to carry messages by hand.

A lifelong resident of Cumberland, Reuschlein is married and has two children, Mrs. Lawrence F. Kyle, at home, and Richard W. Kyle, Silver Spring.

April 10 Is Last Day To File For Liquor Licenses

126 Applications Already Received

A total of 126 applications have been received by the Allegany County Liquor Control Board for renewal of alcoholic beverage licenses May 1, according to Fred Crowe, board secretary.

All applications for new licenses and renewal of present licenses must be filed at the office of the clerk of court or the liquor board office not later than April 10, Crowe explained. This is necessary because the applicants' names must be published 15 days prior to the date of issuance, and the board must have time to prepare the necessary paper work.

Crowe said the board will meet April 22 to study all applications and generally review them in preparation for hearings.

Regular hearings will be held at the Court House on April 28 on club and liquor licenses, on April 29 on beer licenses, and on April 30 on beer and wine licenses.

Crowe again called attention to the section of the law which requires all applicants to post a notice in their places of business at least 10 days before April 30, informing the general public that an application has been made for an alcoholic beverage license.

Failure to comply with this regulation may result in the board refusing to grant a license, board members explained.

Increased County Assessments Bring Loss In State Aid

Equalization Fund To Shrink $116,498

The increase in property assessment in Allegany County during the past 12-months period will bring new tax revenue to the county, but will decrease the amount of state aid to schools from the Equalization Fund by $116,489, county commissioners discovered yesterday when the school board's budget for 1948-49 was submitted.

Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools, acting as spokesman for the Board of Education, submitted the county school budget and outlined in detail the various figures.

Based upon the present tax rate of $1.72 per $100 of assessable property, the county will collect an additional $238,280 in taxes for the new fiscal year, on a 12-months basis, it was disclosed. However, with a loss of $116,489 in the Equalization Fund, the county, with its advanced assessments, actually gains only $121,782. Of this gain, the School Board needs an additional $66,650 because of automatic salary increases, which leaves a net increase in new revenue from new assessments of only $54,132, for use in other departments or to apply in overall tax rate reductions.

In addition to this comment on the budget, which totals $2,467,658 for the period from July 1, 1948 to June 30, 1949, Kopp submitted a letter which outlines some of the details.

The letter stated that the budget for the next fiscal year is an increase of $66,650 over the allowance for the current year, ending June, 1948, which is $2,401,008. The increase results largely from the automatic salary increases provided by legislation enacted in the 1947 session of the Maryland General Assembly.

County Share Advances

While the budget increase is $66,650, it is to be noted that the county's increase for school purposes is $105,688. During the 1947-48 fiscal period the county's share of school costs was $891,473 while for the coming fiscal period the sum has increased to $997,161.

It is further noted that the county commissioners were relieved of levying the amount of $75,000 for salaries last year, that amount having been appropriated from the Board of Education balance, June 30, 1947. This increase of $105,688 in the county share of budget costs results from the reduction in the state Equalization Fund allotment to this county.

This reduction becomes a necessity under the laws of the state by virtue of the very great increase in the county taxable basis over last year. The taxable basis upon which the 1947-48 State Equalization Fund is computed is $100,578,222, while for the year 1948-49, the basis is estimated to be $114,431,742.

This increase of $13,853,520 in the taxable basis results chiefly from an increase of nearly $11,000,000 in foreign ordinary business corporations taxable basis. This resulted from a court decision which killed tax exemptions to the three large industries granted by the county.

The real and personal property increase is about $1,500,000. The Equalization Fund for the county is affected by $90,047.88 being cut from the amount allotted to the county. Because of the state's schedule of increased salaries for teachers and the county taxable basis increase, the total amount of Equilization money loss amounts to $116,498. If the taxable basis had remained the same for next year as last the Equalization Fund would be $992,374 instead of an estimated $875,876.

Position Explained

In his letter Kopp said:

"Attention is called to the fact that while the equalization loss is $116,498 on account of the taxable basis increase, the county collects, from this added taxable basis, at the current $1.72 tax rate per hundred dollars an additional $238,280, a gain of $121,782. This figure is to be compared with the school budget increase of $66,650 and with $105,688, the increase in the county's share of the total budget. It is to be noted that the net increase in revenues of $121,782 is $16,094 in excess of the net budget increase to the county of $105,688; this represents a decrease of about one and one-half cents of the tax rate on account of the school budget.

"Attention is called to an item of receipts for the Board of Education which under the laws enacted in the 1947 session of the Maryland

Cresaptown Trio Found Guilty Of Assault Charges

Three Cresaptown men were found guilty yesterday in Trial Magistrates Court of assaulting a local couple near a Baltimore Pike restaurant last Thursday night, and Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., deferred passing sentence until April 6.

The men were identified as Walter Johnson, Jr., his half-brother, Merrill Lambert, and Julian A. Rotruck, an employe of the Western Maryland Railway. Johnson and Lambert are Celanese workers.

Ethel Jean Jarrett, 925 Grand Avenue, an employe of the Hi Dee Club, and Kenneth Walizer, 638 Lincoln Street, said they were driving back from Bean's Cove, Pa., to Cumberland when they were forced off the road and beaten by the three men.

Walizer told police $87 was missing from his wallet, but he later said he might have lost it during the scuffle. No theft charge was preferred against the three men, who pleaded not guilty to the assault charges.

Authorities said Rotruck and Lambert have police records. Rotruck was arrested some time ago on a disorderly conduct charge, and a sentence of one year in the House of Correction against Lambert on an asault charge two years ago was suspended, according to police.

Paul M. Fletcher, assistant state's attorney, conducted the prosecution.

Charged with drunken and reckless driving, James F. Smith, 9 Broadway Circle, was fined a total of $112.20 on both charges by Magistrate Frank A. Perdew.

Smith, who said he also resides in Keyser, W. Va., pleaded not guilty to operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol but admitted driving in a reckless manner.

Smith said he had not "taken a drink for nine years," stating he was using the car to go for groceries. He said he has been under a physician's care for the past five months.

Samuel Miller, Beall Street, posted $100 bond for his appearance this morning for trial on an assault charge preferred by his sister, Mrs. Esther Eplinger, Dexter Street. Court attaches said the alleged assault took place March 23 at Mrs. Eplinger's home following a property dispute.

Virginia Avenue Group Seeks Playground Aid

Five representatives of the Virginia Playground Association said yesterday they plan to attend a meeting of the Mayor and Council today at 10 a. m. regarding possible financial assistance toward the purchase of equipment for the playground.

The group, which included Mrs. Kathryn England, Mrs. Grace Van Pelt, Mrs. Jessie Brotemarkle, Mrs. Vivian Turley and Mrs. Eloise Krapf, conferred with Mayor Thomas S. Post yesterday. The mayor referred them to Street Commissioner Myers G. Light.

At the end of February the balance in the playground fund was $1,687.52.

However, a total of $659.79 was allocated to Mapleside Playground during this month to purchase materials for shelter at that playground, and on Monday the Mayor and Council agreed to buy materials costing $1,028 for the Gephart Playground Association.

To Be Succeeded By Edward Ewald

Garland L. Johnston, commercial manager of the Potomac Edison Company here since 1940, has been promoted to the district managership of the PE system in Waynesboro, Pa., according to Henry W. Price, Cumberland district manager.

Johnston, who has been active in community and service club work since 1940, when he was transferred here from Keyser, W. Va., will be succeeded by Edward L. Ewald, Hagerstown.

Ewald, a native of Mt. Savage and a Potomac Edison employe here in 1934-35, will assume his new duties this week, Price said.

For the past two years Ewald has served as assistant to D. E. Schultz, vice president of the Potomac Edison Company in Hagerstown. He was first employed by the company as a meter reader in Piedmont, W. Va., in 1931, after attending the University of Maryland. Since that time he has been employed in company offices in Hagerstown, Cumberland, Keyser and Piedmont.

Ewald worked in the commercial department of the company's local offices before he was promoted to the chief clerkship at Keyser. In 1937 he was promoted to the position of assistant to the company's general merchandise manager in Hagerstown.

Mr. and Mrs. Ewald and their 7-year-old son are expected to take up residence here in the near future.

Walsh To Direct Study Of State's Corporation Laws

Group To Recommend Changes In Statutes

ANNAPOLIS, March 30 (AP)—Governor Lane today named Former Judge William C. Walsh, Cumberland, to head a nine-man commission to study Maryland's general corporation laws.

The measure was introduced by Senators Bolton (D-Balto County) and Hoff (R-Carroll), who declared that although corporation laws had been amended occasionally, they had not been revised as a whole since 1908.

Several proposed amendments have been considered by the legislature, the resolution said, but died "due to a lack of time for the study of technical questions."

Other members of the commission appointed by the Governor were:

They are empowered to recommend changes in corporation laws to the General Assembly.

One of Maryland's best known attorneys, Walsh entered the Cumberland law firm of his father, William E. Walsh, in 1912 after completing his legal training at Catholic University. After serving in France during World War I, he was named city solicitor of Cumberland in 1920.

The following year he was appointed associate judge of the Fourth julicial circuit and in 1924 became chief judge of the circuit and a member of the Maryland Court of Appeals.

He was state insurance commissioner from 1931 to 1935 and retired

Acquisition Of Flood Land Is Topic Of Session

Burdette Outlines Three Phases

Three phases of acquiring real estate which will be needed for the local flood control project were outlined yesterday by two representatives of the Corps of Engineers at a conference with local officials in the office of Mayor Thomas S. Post.

One of the representatives was J. C. Jacobs of the District Engineer's Office in Washington, D. C. Jacobs is district engineer in charge of a 10-man surveying party which is expected to come here tomorrow to begin work on preliminary surveys.

The survey, which will determine the amount of property required and the exact location of each lot, as well as ownership, is expected to take several months.

Jack C. Burdette, chief of the real estate division of the Middle Atlantic Division Engineer Office in Baltimore, outlined the three phases of land acquisition as follows:

1. The portion the government would ultimately require.

2. The portion to which the City of Cumberland would accept title.

3. The portion which will require only temporary easements for construction purposes.

No definite decision was reached in a discussion regarding title work. This could be done either through a government contract with a title company, or through arrangements with local attorneys.

However, the group indicated they favored using local legal assistance wherever possible.

Procedure of tract maps to be used was outlined. Burdette said efforts would be made to supply the city with maps of the area Cumberland would acquire, to avoid duplication of surveying and mapping.

Besides Burdette, Jacobs and Mayor Post, others attending the conference were City Attorney Thomas B. Finan, City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer and James Alfred Avirett, chairman of the Municipal Planning and Zoining Commission.

Appraisal values of property needed for the project are approximately $80,000 less than an overall appraisal based on 1942 unit prices made by Whitman, Requardt and Associates, Baltimore engineering firm.

In 1942, the city's share was estimated at $472,800. Ridgeley was expected to pay $330,000 for an overall total of $802,800 gross.

On Monday, four local real estate agents reported to the Mayor and Council the overall cost would be $442,605 net. Total cost was estimated at $721,555 but the appraisers allowed $278,950 for resale values.

Using the $278,950 resale value the difference between that appraisal and the overall estimate six years ago is $81,255. In 1942 the net amount would have been $523,850.

James A. Perrin, one of the four appraisers, said the recent estimate does not include the cost of land to be purchased by the federal government, since the city had asked only for an estimate on the property which it would have to buy.

Moviegoer Denied Rehearing Of Suit

ANNAPOLIS, March 30 (AP)—The Maryland Court of Appeals today denied a Cumberland moviegoer's petition for a rehearing of a damage suit against the Cumberland Theater Company.

Joseph P. Codire, Cumberland, claimed a Washington County Circuit Court jury had incorrectly examined evidence in the jury room after testimony had been concluded.

The jury last June 17 refused to award Codire damages for personal injuries received March 16, 1946, when he stubbed his toe on a rubber mat and fell while leaving the Maryland Theater in Cumberland.

Codire appealed from a ruling by Circuit Judge Joseph D. Mish last August, denying a motion for a new trial.

The appelate court dismissed the petition on grounds that a transcript of lower court proceedings was not delivered to the Court of Appeals within the time specified by law. The court pointed out that it is the appellant's responsibility to supply transcripts.

Codire's lawyers had contended in briefs prepared for delivery that the lower court jury sent for the rummer mat to see whether there was a hole in it "after the case was formally closed."

This, they said, would "leave the door of the jury room open in such a manner that after a jury retires they will be free to try any case again in their own jury room."

The theater company said Codire's lawyers had waited so long to file an appeal "that the appellee thought the appeal had been abandoned."

Mrs. Anna Long Dies Suddenly

Mrs. Anna C. Long, 78, widow of Harry H. Long, died suddenly late yesterday afternoon at her home, 832 Shriver Avenue.

Mrs. Long died quietly in a rocking chair at her home yesterday just after her pastor,Dr. H. Hall Sharp, pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran Church, completed administering the sacrament of Communion.

At the end of the service, Mrs. Long's daughter went to the kitchen of the home to rinse the chalice and it was during these few moments that she went into a coma and quietly passed away.

She had been seriously ill about a month ago but although apparently recovered from that attack, had not been able to attend church on Easter.

She was a native of this city, a daughter of the late Jown W. and Elizabeth Bachman Rueschlein, and was a member of one of Cumberland's oldest families. Her husband died here 44 years ago.

She was a lifetime member of St. Luke's Lutheran church.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Scott Street, this city, and Mrs. S. Ruggles Townshend, Drexel Hill, Pa., two grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Three brothers, Charles F. Reuschlein, Huntington, W. Va., and Martin W. Ruschlein and Richard J. Russhlein, both of this city also survive.

Dorothy Maynor, Talented Negro Soprano, To Sing Here Tomorrow

Dorothy Maynor, the young Negro soprano who will appear at Fort Hill High School Thursday night, April 1, might still be singing in the choir of a small Norfolk church, had it not been for Dr. Nathaniel Dett, choir director of Hampton Institute.

As the story goes, Dr. Dett altered Miss Maynor's application cards to make her a music major.

The amazing Negro soprano, who is being hailed as the "voice of the decades," liked home economics and thought that in the future, it would be of more benefit to her.

The singer was born in Norfolk, Va., the daughter of a Methodist church minister. Miss Maynor, her sister and brother comprised the choir in her father's church and from then on it was an uphill grind to attain the heights which she has reached today.

It wasn't until 1939 that she was "discovered" by Dr. Serge Koussevitzky and after that her rise to fame was fast, in fact, the first season saw her singing with four symphony orchestras in New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago.

The concert is being sponsored by Carver High School.

Man Is Victim Of Rifle Shot

Accidents reported at Memorial Hospital last night took on a more serious nature as one man was accidentally shot in the leg and two received fractured legs.

At 6:30 last night, Roy Ritchie, Spring Gap, Md., was admitted to the hospital with a bullet wound in his right thigh which traveled through the leg and lodged in the inner calf of his left leg. According to hospital attaches, Ritchie was about two miles down the Potomac River from Spring Gap, when the rifle he was carrying accidentally discharged.

Earlier in the night, a 15-year-old boy, Garl Rhodes, Romney, W. Va.,was admitted with a fractured right leg. It is understood that Rhodes was riding a bicycle and hit a railroad rail which threw him, causing the injury.

Mrs. Ethel Hamilton, 65, Romney, fell as she was crossing the street at her home and was admitted. She has a fractured left leg.

Merry Albright, 7, daughter of Wilma Albright, Ridgeley, was treated for injuries of the elbow and wrist last night, after a bicycle had been pushed over on her by a playmate.
